FRANCIS H. SISSON, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company, repeats what has often been said here, that the big problem is not production but distribution.

Business is on the upgrade. Mr. Sisson does not agree with that distinguished political economist, Solly Wertheim, who says "business is looking up, flat on its back, looking up."

MR. SISSON reminds merchants that with adequate advertising goods can be sold at a lower price than without advertising.

First, have what the people want, then let them know you have it.

MONT BLANC Mont Blanc, nice mountain in Switzerland.

One million and eighty thousand people visited Mont Blanc last year, spending more than $10,000,000 in little communities near the mountain. Only 100 climbed to the top.

WE HAVE bigger and better mountains, but they don't get the advertising that Mont Blanc gets, and they don't take in the money.

It is true that established reputation helps Mont Blanc. It is also true that advertising helps to establish reputations, and keep them established.

THERE is no better work than distributing good books. They are the light of the mind, stimulate ambition, develop good taste, prepare men's minds for services in the present by making them acquainted with the achievements, discoveries and services of the past.

TROOPERS IN DRIVE ON AUTOISTS

100 Cars Stopped and 25 Operators Without 1930 Permits Face Hearing

State highway patrolmen today started a drive against motorists who have not taken out 1930 operators' cards.

On the Sharpsburg Bridge and the Freeport road two highway patrolmen and a Sharpsburg policeman were stopping all autos and "arresting" motorists who were still driving under 1929 licenses, which expired last midnight.

25 FACE HEARING

Of the first 100 drivers, 25 did not have the proper credentials and were told that they will be notified to appear before Justice of the Peace James A. Hernon, of Sharpsburg, next week. They were not detained.

One of the drivers was arraigned today and fined $10, with the option of five days in jail, by Justice Hernon. He was John Ritter, driver for Morris & Co. Highway Patrolman Robert Clark testified that Ritter, when told he would have to appear next week, predicted that he wouldn't. Ritter went to jail pending payment of the fine.

The first woman to be notified was Anna J. Puskarich, of Universal. Paul V. Kline, of 1936 Chislett street, was the first man.

SECOND SQUAD

A second squad of patrolmen were stopping motorists on the boulevard section of East Ohio street.

Sergt. James A. Blair, of the State Highway Patrol, said that the drive will endure for 10 days and will take in various parts of the city. Offenders will be charged with violating a state law.

SNOOKSTORY TO WARDEN CLEARS GIRL

Carried Weapons to Slay Co-Ed, Awaited Chance, Last Confession Reveals

CLEVELAND, O., March 1. — (AP.) — The Cleveland Plain Dealer and the Columbus Dispatch this morning printed a copyrighted story written by Warden P. E. Thomas, of the Ohio penitentiary, stating that Dr. James H. Snook told him prior to his electrocution that he had deliberately planned the slaying of Miss Theora Hix.

Snook died in the electric chair in Ohio Penitentiary at Columbus at 7:11 last night. He showed remarkable calmness and fortitude to the last.

WARDEN'S STORY

Warden Thomas said:

"At the trial, Dr. Snook testified in great detail regarding a brutal attack he said Miss Hix made on him. This testimony Dr. Snook told me, was absolutely false in its entirety.

"Snook's only regret was that the story 'did me more harm than good and probably had something to do with the severity of the verdict.' He admitted it was a grave mistake for him to have told this story.

"He then went at length into the character of Miss Hix saying she had threatened to expose the whole affair and ruin him socially and professionally.

FEAR OF DISGRACE

"This fear of disgrace and loss of position caused him to make up his mind to kill her. From that time on he planned to carry out this decision.

"The instruments of death—the hammer and knife, Snook said, 'I always carried with me.' He made the final decision to carry out his plan to kill her

Mae West's Trial Set for March 10

NEW YORK, March 1.—(INS.)—The much postponed trial of Mae West, playwright and actress, and 50 members of the cast of "Pleasure Man" will start March 10, it was announced today, after agreement was reached by attorneys in the case. All of the defendants are accused of appearing in an improper production.

Haldeman Flies Plane 33,500 Feet

WILMINGTON, Del., March 1.—(INS.)—George W. Haldeman, co-pilot on the plane in which Ruth Elder attempted to fly the Atlantic, today claimed a new world's altitude record for commercial airplanes. He flew a Bellanca plane to a height of 33,500.

Martin Jensen held the former record of 25,700 feet.

POLICE AND UTILITIES RESCUE WORKERS IN LONG BATTLE TO SAVE LIFE OF MRS. CATHERINE KANE, 75, WITH OXYGEN

TAFT'S DEATH HOURS AWAY

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(INS.)—Though his renowned smile has faded, and his even semi-conscious periods are less frequent, William Howard Taft, only American to achieve both presidency and the chief justiceship, clung to life today as members of his immediate family were en route to the bedside of the 72-year-old patient.

The passing of his picturesque figure, physicians declare, is but the matter of hours—perhaps days; as many as five. Only his remarkable physique has enabled him to withstand the attacks of a bladder trouble, hardening of the arteries and, recently, of a weakened heart.

Last night, like all days and nights, Taft spent in comfort and apparently restful, as opiates have long been administered, his physicians report. He recognized one of his physicians, Dr. Thomas A.

NEIGHBORS CONSOLING FIRE VICTIM'S DAUGHTER

Miss Anna Kane, 30, as she stayed nearby during the efforts to save her mother's life. She refused repeated moves to take her away.

FINDS MOTHER FIRE VICTIM

Anna Kane, 30, was the sole support of her mother, Mrs. Catherine Kane, 75. They lived in a modest room in a three-story rooming house at 3455 Forbes street.

Anna had been unable to get work but yesterday there appeared a ray of hope—a temporary job. Anna reported early and worked late, to make a better impression.

She was homeward bound at 6:30 o'clock last night. Within a few blocks of home the trolley car was stopped. There had been a fire nearby.

Anna hurried the rest of the distance. The fire was near her home, it seemed. When she reached her home she found firemen climbing over it and smoke pouring from the windows.

And on the back porch she saw a dozen firemen and policemen working feverishly over the body of a woman.

"Who is it?" Anna asked.

"It's Mrs. Kane," somebody answered.

An hour later Mrs. Kane was dead. Anna had watched the attempts to revive her mother, refusing to leave.

The fire started in a rear room on the first floor, and by the time firemen arrived had spread throughout the building. Two additional alarms were sounded. Firemen from Oakland, the South Side, East End and Squirrel Hill battled the flames several hours. Slight damage was done to three nearby buildings.

Mrs. Kane was trapped in her room on the second floor, and when found by firemen, was lying unconscious near a door, with one arm across her face. The fire had eaten through the floor and had burned her on the head and arm.

BOTH SIDES HOLD FIRM ON UNION

Companies Fear 'Financial Disaster' in Closed Shop Demand Upheld by Drivers

An indefinite deadlock in the taxicab drivers' strike, seven weeks old, was in prospect today.

In rejecting the proffer of settlement by the Yellow and Green Cab companies yesterday by a vote of 1,153 to 1, the drivers apparently indicated their belief in a long-drawn-out contest, by authorizing their executive committee to conduct any further negotiations.

The committee is instructed, however, to insist on full recognition of the union and 40 per cent of gross receipts. These demands the companies refused to meet in their terms submitted yesterday.

FIRMS FEAR UNION

Recognition of the union spell financial disaster, the owners declared in a statement issued today. The statement, signed by Walter S. Laird, president of the Yellow Cab Company, and Paul L. Houston, president of the Greer Cab Company, follows:

"The statement of the committee shows that our proposals were rejected solely because we refused to give union recognition and the closed shop. Based on our knowledge of the failures which have followed union recognition by taxicab companies, we could not in justice to our patrons or to ourselves adopt a method of operation which meant inevitable failure both in service and in financial results.

CITE FAILURES

"The history of the various union operations in the taxicab business shows conclusively that it results in inadequate service to the public, neglect and deterioration of equipment and eventual financial failure to the company. A taxicab driver is a salesman of service, and he cannot successfully operate under the rigid restrictions and deadening level imposed by union control.

"To the drivers, recognition of the union appears to be the only issue of importance. We cannot believe that the action just taken represents the will of the majority of our drivers, and can therefore only conclude that the matter was not fully explained to the men or that an opportunity was not

Poland Gets Willys' Name As Moore Successor

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(INS.)—President Hoover has again turned to American business for a diplomat, selecting John N. Willys, the automobile magnate, to be ambassador to Poland, succeeding the late Alexander P. Moore. It was learned today by International News Service.

Willys has been a prominent figure in the automobile world for a quarter of a century, and is now president of the Willys-Overland Company, with headquarters at Toledo, O.

The name has been proposed to the Polish government as to its acceptibility, and formal announcement of the appointment will be made when the expected favorable response is received.

Willys is 57 years old and was born in Canandaigua, N. Y. He has never been in politics.

UNION ISSUE BALKS CAB PEACE, BOTH SIDES STAND FIRM

afforded to express their real judgments.

"Our proposals are obviously fair and reasonable and were the result of three days of conferences with the Mayor and the men. We exceedingly regret that these proposals which would have given to the men every protection as to wages and working conditions, both now and in the future, and which would have obviated any future strikes should have been rejected."

FIRM HEADS CONFER

Issuance of the statement followed a conference that went into session as soon as the 1,153-to-1 vote of the men to reject the companies' proposal was reported to the officials. The meeting lasted until early today.

Ernest Miller, president, and S. S. Higgins, vice president of the Parmelee Transportation Company, attended the conference with their counsel, Attorneys C. K. Robinson and Frank B. Ingersoll.

Chairman A. T. Siford, of the strikers' committee, said the almost-unanimous vote was due to the refusal of the company to recognize the union and closed shop demand of the men.

STAND FIRM FOR UNION

Bitterness and misunderstandings were eliminated at the joint conferences of the men and Higgins, prior to yesterday's meeting, Siford said, but adsolute recognition of the union is still the men's unswerving demand.

The vote was cast under extreme difficulties.

In a room built to seat 500 persons the men packed themselves. They jammed a little roof garden that adjoins the room. One man fainted and was carried out.

But in spite of the handicaps and the excitement there was no disorder. Chairman Siford read the company proposal under which the men could have had a grievance committee and 37½ per cent commission, but not recognition of the union. Father James R. Cox, pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, and George Siegert, of the Pile Drivers, Wharf and Dock Builders' Union, No. 964, spoke briefly.

The men then took a vote by raising their right hands. This was said to be unanimous.

BOARD GIVEN POWER

Then they lined up and filed past the ballot box. There had been sporadic outbursts of vociferous disapproval voiced during the meeting, audible to newspapermen on the floor below. There was grim silence as each man dropped his cardboard slip in the slot of the ballot box. And only one man voted "Yes."

They also voted absolute authority to the committee to conduct future negotiations for them—but the committee is bound to 40 per cent commission and a closed shop — Chairman Siford announced after the meeting. This was a separate question on the reverse side of the ballot. The lone vote for acceptance was blank on the question.

U. S. SEES NAVAL PARLEY SLIP

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The fifth week of the London naval conference ended today with the five great powers that compose it apparently no nearer an agreement than they were when it started.

In fact, so pessimistic has Washington become over the delays, obstacles, and general course of the conference that there are many here who contend it has gone backward from its goal instead of toward it.

This feeling of pessimism, duly noted in these dispatches, is particularly apparent in the Senate where it reached the surface yesterday in an open demand from Senator McKellar (Dem.), of Tennessee, that the American delegation be recalled.

McKellar contended the conference has already failed of the purpose for which President Hoover and Premier MacDonald initiated it, that is, actual naval reduction, and that such being the case the United States would do well to withdraw.

STRIKE TERMS MEN REJECTED

The peace terms framed by the Parmalee Company, but rejected almost unanimously by the striking taxicab drivers, offered concessions on the part of the company on some of the matters in dispute. Following is a general summarization of the terms the company offered:

All drivers on payrolls January 12 to be re-employed, with full seniority rights and without discrimination or prejudice as to membership in union or any other organization, but the right of the companies to manage and operate their properties to remain unimpaired.

Drivers to be paid 37½ per cent of gross receipts, which certified public accountants show would increase the drivers' pay by more than $225,000 a year, cab operations to be based on 10 hours a day and six days a week.

Companies agree that number of cabs owned and drivers employed on January 12 shall not be exceeded during 1930.

No fines or deductions to be imposed on drivers, nor any deductions for windshield wipers, windshield rubbers, lost hub caps, door straps, or other parts or accessories, nor for towing charge and accident.

Former practice of requiring each driver to deposit $15 for tools furnished shall be abandoned and all deposit for tools eliminated.

Collective representation granted to drivers through committees of five Yellow and five Green Cab drivers.

Committees to meet with management representatives at times designated by committees, on 48 hours' notice, to present all grievances and establish more friendly co-operation and relationships between drivers and management.

In event of disagreement, such dispute to be referred to board of three arbitrators, whose decision shall be final and binding upon both management and drivers.

Telephone Pioneer, Born Here, Dies at 71

BALTIMORE, March 1.—(AP.)—John C. Distler, Jr., 71, a pioneer in the development of telephone communication in Baltimore, died of a heart attack near his home yesterday while out for a walk.

In the early nineties he became identified in the promotion of the Home Telephone Company and when it failed he was named as receiver. He later became president of the company which was eventually sold to the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company.

$73,573.05 Found On 18 Caught in Florida Raid

MIAMI, Fla., March 1.—(AP.)—Eighteen persons were arrested in a raid on an alleged gambling establishment which occupied the entire roof of a Miami Beach hotel. Another was held when he came to arrange bond.

Deputy sheriffs searching the prisoners on their arrival at the jail took $73,573.05, officials said.

Judge E. G. Collins fixed bonds for those charged with gambling and vagrancy at $200 each and at $1,000 each for two men charged with operating gaming tables.

HUNT FOR LOST PLANE FAILS

LOS ANGELES, March 1.—(AP.)—Continued search for the missing Western Air Express trimotored plane and its crew of three men, lost Sunday in the storm-swept San Bernardino Mountains while en route here from Kingman, Ariz., has failed to disclose the slightest clue.

Six airplanes, a commercial company's training blimp, and posses of men on horseback scoured the area about Cajon Pass for traces of the plane and James E. Doles, pilot; A. W. Bieber, co-pilot, and John W. Slaton, steward.

DEATH NEARER EX-PRESIDENT

Claytor, and his eyes lighted momentarily.

Earlier yesterday his son Robert A. Taft, arrived from Cincinnati, and was recognized by his father when he spoke, but there was no other response.

During the afternoon a number of distinguished callers stopped at the Taft residence and visited Mrs. Taft who has been constantly at the side of her distinguished husband, ever since his return to the capital from Asheville, N. C., nearly four weeks ago.

The patient was reported as resting quietly at 4:45 o'clock this morning, with no apparent change in his condition.

JUSTICES VISIT TAFT

Among the callers were Supreme Court Justices Sanford and Stone, Mrs. Charles MacVeagh, wife of the former ambassador to Japan, and Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of Vice President Charles Curtis.

Charles P., the other son, will arrive today from Cincinnati. The daughter, Mrs. Helen Taft Manning, made a hurried trip to Bryn Mawr, Pa., from her father's bedside yesterday, but will return late today. Henry Taft, a brother, of Augusta, Ga., is in communication with the family, but is not expected here until next week.

Snook Strides to Chair Maintaining Stoical Calm

COLUMBUS, O., March 1.—(INS.)—Dr. James H. Snook, former veterinary professor at Ohio State University, today had paid the supreme penalty for the murder of Theora Hix, his co-ed sweetheart.

Snook was buried at 6 a. m., today in Greenlawn Cemetery. The body was taken to the Snook home last night from a funeral director's parlors. Brief funeral services were held at the home.

Maintaining the stoical calm which marked his demeanor throughout his six months' stay in the penitentiary death row, Dr. Snook strode to the electric chair.

As he appeared in the death house red circles were noticeable under his eyes, apparently from crying during the farewell with his wife which followed a last meal which the two were permitted to have in the death cell.

GIVEN THREE CHARGES

The former professor was pronounced dead at 7:11 last night after the current was first applied at 7:05. Two more charges of high voltage were sent through his body, one at 7:06 and the last at 7:08.

Two ministers accompanied Snook into the death room. He walked with firm step and with head held high. He gazed straight ahead, apparently ignoring the spectators in the crowded death room. He did not speak. His last word had been:

"I have made absolute peace with my God."

Mrs. Snook, after saying farewell to her husband before the death march began, was led from the prison by two friends. She had difficulty dodging reporters and a crowd that had gathered outside. She had remained true during the long ordeal of trial and imprisonment.

U. S. Prepares Suit To Halt Oil Merger

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(INS.)—The government's suit to prevent the Standard Oil-Vacuum Oil merger probably will be filed in the Federal District Court in St. Louis next week, it was learned here today.

Attorney General Mitchell has obtained from St. Louis Federal Court records the history of the Standard Oil dissolution case tried there in 1911, and it is understood the government will utilize portions of that case in the suit against the Standard-Vacuum.

REBEL TO TAKE VASQUEZ POST

SANTO DOMINGO, March 1.—(AP.)—Gen. Rafael Estrella Urena, chief of the insurgent movement, will become provisional president of the Dominican Republic with departure shortly of President Vasquez from the country because of "ill health."

President Vasquez, yielding peaceably to the six-day-old insurgent movement, yesterday agreed to accept resignation of most of his cabinet and appoint Gen. Estrella Urena as secretary of interior, from which post he will succeed to the presidency by law as soon as President Vasquez is out of the country.

Directly after the appointment the president issued a request to the National Assembly to permit his leaving the republic "because of ill health." It was said that physicians to the president, who recently was forced to fly to the United States for a major operation, had told him he could not keep up the strain of the last few days much longer.

The arrangement, regarded as entirely constitutional, apparently had the approval of Charles B. Curtis, American minister, who previously had informed the insurgents that the American government would not recognize a de facto regime.

Slayer Battles Militia; Shoots 3, Ends Life

DEFIANCE, O., March 1.—(AP.)—Henry Floehr, 60, former inmate of the Toledo State Asylum, yesterday killed his wife in their home, stood off a small army of officers, citizens and national guardsmen for three hours, and then committed suicide in his second floor barricade just before dynamite ended the battle.

Eight sticks of dynamite were thrown up the stairway while a machine gun and a one-pounder, operated by the Defiance unit of the National Guard, played on Floehr's bedroom retreat. The charge destroyed the second floor of the house, but Floehr's body was found with a bullet wound in the forehead and powder marks around it, indicating that he had shot himself sometime earlier.

Floehr shot Chief of Police Karl Weaner in the cheek when he attempted to mount the stairs, wounded William Chappel, 32, a volunteer officer, in the abdomen so seriously that he was given a small chance to live, and shot Newell Littlefield, a Defiance College senior, through the right lung. Hospital attaches said he might survive.

BITTER FIGHT OVER SEAT FORECAST

Man Who Served 16 Years From 34th District Likely To Contest One-Term Rival

WASHINGTON, March 1. (AP.) — Representative P. J. Sullivan, of the Thirty-fourth Congressional District, comprising 10 wards in Pittsburgh, who is serving his first term, may be opposed for the Republican nomination in the May primaries by his predecessor, John M. Morin.

This was indicated today when it became known that Morin had been in communication with leaders in the district and that nominating petitions had been sent him from Harrisburg.

SERVED 16 YEARS

Morin, who was elected in 1912 and served eight continuous terms, lost his seat in 1928, in a bitter factional fight. Since his retirement from Congress, March 4, 1929, he has been a member of the United States Employes' Compensation Commission.

His decision to run was expected to be based in part, at least, on a conference he and others plan to have with William S. Vare, who is expected to return from Florida next week. If Vare repeats his declaration that he is going through with his senatorial candidacy, Morin's friends believe Vare may ask Morin to manage his campaign in Western Pennsylvania, as he did in 1926. In this event Morin might yield to his friends and remain out of the race.

Morin joined other Pennsylvania representatives today in forecasting two factional tickets in the forthcoming primary.

LINEUP SPECULATED

With an energtic campaign conducted by two factions, Pittsburgh congressmen speculated on the lineup of local leaders, including State Senator James J. Coyne and County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, both of whom are influential in the Thirty-fourth District. Coyne, who is regarded as the leader of the Fourth and Fifteenth wards, it was said, would undoubtedly stand for Sullivan if Armstrong were to declare for Morin, which at present is not regaraded as probable, but which could become a possibility in a factional fight, the Pittsburgh representatives believe, and his influence in the Third and Firth wards, known as "organization wards," would be thrown to Morin.

The rest of the wards within the district would be loked upon as oppen battleground, and the canvass of this territory would be thorough. Much would depend on the vote of the Tenth Ward, one observer pointed out, which is regarded as an important ward, under the leadership of P. J. Donahoe.

SOVIET STUDY PLANTS HERE

American railroad methods were being studied here today by 34 engineers of the Soviet Commissariat for Transportation, as guests of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The party arrived this morning in a special train from Altoona. The first inspection was made at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company plant in East Pittsburgh. The party next stopped at the Pitcairn shops of the railroad, particular attention was given to the steel car shop and yards.

The party is making a three-month tour of the country. Heading the group are D. E. Sulimov, vice commisar, and J. N. Rukhov, head of railway transportation. They were welcomed by A. Dobson, superintendent of the Pittsburgh division, and L. H. Baldwin is in charge of the tour. Their train was served on Superintendent Dobson's car at Pitcairn. The party will leave for Chicago tomorrow morning.

MORE PAYROLL HEADS TO FALL

The city administration scythe, which lopped 110 heads from the payroll yesterday, will continue to cut its swath today.

More letters telling city employes their services are ended went into the mail last night. Several more will be mailed this morning.

Considerable secrecy was maintained concerning yesterday's shake-up. Director of Public Works Edward O. Lang announced that he would make public the list today. Practically all of the removals and changes to date are in his department.

They include the reduction of Charles E. Hillegas from head of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers to chief supervisor in the same bureau, the removal of Assistant Chief Engineer Fred Lyons, a city worker for 18 years and the discharge of Samuel Soffel, an engineer. Soffel is a brother of Representative George Soffel.

Edward Carey, chief clerk in the Bureau of Water, was reduced and his place given to Francis E. Miller, Sixth ward. Carey was active against Mayor Charles H. Kline in the First Ward at the last primary election.

The post held by Hillegas went to T. Lloyd Pillow, North Side. Hillegas is former chairman of the Thirteenth ward. He supported Kline at the primary.

60,000 FOR JOB PARADE SEEN

NEW YORK, March 1.—(INS.)—A parade in which it was claimed today "at least 60,000 persons will march" will be staged here next Thursday as a climax to unemployment demonstration throughout the United States.

Officials of the Trade Union Unity League, sponsoring the protest, said 10,000 workers would call a general strike Thursday in order to be free to appear at the demonstrations. Plans for the strike were to be made at a conference today and Sunday.

William Z. Foster, national secretary of the league, issued a statement denying that the Third International had sent $1,250,000 here to carry on Communistic propaganda among the unemployed.

A statement was also given out by J. Louis Engdahl, general secretary of the International Labor Defense, charging 650 workers had been arrested within the last five days in various parts of the country for taking part in demonstrations. Engdahl said 440 were arrested in Chicago, 46 in San Francisco, 38 in Los Angeles and vicinity and 75 in New York.

Engdahl said that branches of the defense in 481 cities of the United States would march Thursday in a protest against unemployment.

Present Industrial Plan to Boroughs

CONWAY, Pa., March 1.—Beaver County boroughs were urged to make as many public improvements as possible during the present industrial depression, at a meeting here of the Beaver County Federation of Boroughs. Officers nominated for re-election March 27, at Fallston, are: H. H. Hofelt, Homewood, president; J. H. Rockenstein, Freedom, vice-president, and R. E. Calhoon, New Brighton, treasurer. Secretary Harry H. Wohlwend, New Brighton, will probably be reappointed.

Blonde 'Scandals' Beauty Posts $1,000 Bond in $100,000 Balm Suit

Frances Williams, the beautiful blonde who sings songs in George White's "Scandals," was enjoying a breakfast of grapefruit and buttered toast in bed when news reached her hotel that she had been sued for a very pretty sum—$100,000.

"You are charged," said the reporter, "with alienating the affections of Alan Jones. His wife, Bertha, who comes from Beaver Falls, says you broke up their home and diverted his attentions."

"Ho," said Miss Williams, tackling the grapefruit, "but you can't alienate anybody's affections. You just can't."

"Well, now," said the reporter, "are you going to marry young Jones anyhow?"

"Sure! Sure! We're engaged and I'm going to marry him if I have to wait 10 years."

"Well, now, what about the suit?"

Miss Williams transferred her affections from the grapefruit to the toast.

"Why, she can't get anything out of me. I don't have any money. I don't have a dime. I've known Alan for seven months. I was just talking with him over the 'phone and he said he hadn't seen his wife in two years. I never thought this'd happen to me."

"Where's the boy friend now?"

"He's in 'Fifty Million Frenchmen' on Broadway. He plays the piano in the show's band, the California Collegians.

"You know, when I first met him I never knew we'd eventually get married. Alan's band was in the 'Scandals' then, and naturally we got to know each other.

"Oh, wait'll my mother hears about this suit. She'll be in hysterics."

Miss Williams turned to the coffee.

"You know you'll have to post a thousand bucks bond," the reporter said.

"I won't. I won't!" Miss Williams decided. "I'll go to jail. Won't that be nice. I'm just crazy about Pittsburgh."

A second reporter entered, armed with a copy of the suit.

Later a deputy sheriff visited her room with the writ, and left a few minutes later after $1,000 cash bail had been posted for her appearance in court.

LANGGUTH, GIRL TO SURRENDER

CHICAGO, March 1.—(INS.)—Surrender of Elmer Langguth, president of the defunct People's State Bank, of Maywood, and Miss Laverne Lindgren, pretty cashier for whom Langguth is alleged to have brought about the $200,000 crash, was expected today.

The grand jury yesterday returned seven indictments naming Langguth and the girl, both of whom are charged with carrying on a long romance allegedly financed by bank funds.

Total bonds are $50,000 for each.

The indictments name Langguth and Miss Lindgren together and individually for making all statements to deceive the bank examiners, for conspiracy to embezzlement and for forgery.

Miss Lindgren, under Langguth's regime as president, rose meteorically from stenographer to bank executive within the span of a few months.

OLD PALS WEEP OVER MABEL

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 1.—(AP.)—It was the Hollywood of old that buried Mabel Normand yesterday.

The body of the tr[illegible] haunted film comedienn[illegible] today in the receiving va[illegible] quiet chapel in Calvary Ce[illegible] awaiting the decision of her [illegible]ily as to its final resting pla[illegible] Miss Normand died last Sund[illegible] after a long fight against tub[illegible]culosis.

There was no great funeral the one-time sprite of scree[illegible] comedy, in accord with the wishes of her family. A crowd there was, of course, of several hundreds which waited outside the funeral parlors where the brief service of the Catholic church was read by the Rev. Michael J. Mullins, of the Church of the Good Shepherd.

NEW COLONY ABSENT

The new Hollywood of microphones and music and dancing chorus girls, was scarcely represented at Mabel Normand's funeral, except by those of the old days who survived in the new.

Still, if Mabel Normand's spirit looked on yesterday, it must have smiled.

For it was her own Hollywood, the Hollywood that loved her and remained loyal when the breath of scandal had wilted her career and burned away her health, the movie world of her own hey-day that followed her to the tomb.

The grief of those who wept was the real grief of friends, some who helped her rise to fame, some who rose with her and whose stars descended before her own; others, the majority, who were of the old film era a[illegible] had survived the new.

OLD FRIENDS PALLBEARERS

Honorary pallbearers were D. W. Griffith and Mack Sennett, her early directors; Douglas Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin; Ford Sterling, her old co-worker in comedy; Paul Bern and Samuel Goldwyn, the producer; Sid Grauman and Art Goebel, the aviator [illegible] all her friends.

Miss Normand's mother, M[illegible] Mary Normand, and siste[illegible] Gladys, who arrived from State Island, New York, shortly befo[illegible] the services, stood before the c[illegible]ket with Lew Cody, Miss [illegible]mand's husband. All were w[illegible]ing.

CAR, MAN FALL SIXTY FEET

Although the automobile in which he was driving toppled over a 60-foot embankment, and hung over a concrete wall on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at Turtle Creek Bridge, Elmer Cramer, 24, of 435 Price street, Braddock, escaped with minor injuries early today.

Cramer was rescued by Capt. Russel Brown, of Turtle Creek police; Constable Frank Smeltz, of Patton Township, and Andrew Rahaw, of Oak Hill.

He was taken to the Turtle Creek police station, where he was given medical treatment by a physician. Cramer was later able to go home.

Rahaw, a companion, was cranking the car when it began its mad flight down the hillside. Cramer sustained lacerations of the right knee, face and head, police said.

Just Call Central For Time— At 5c Cost

If you forgot to wind your watch last night, just call up the telephone central and she'll give you the time, it'll only cost you a nickel.

William Bradford, division manager for the company, announced that a state-wide service was inauguarted today. Correct time will be given subscribers at any hour of the day or night, for which a charge of five cents will be placed on the account and paid with the regular telephone bill each month.

HUSBAND SHOT, WIFE HELD

[illegible]lleged to have shot her husband in the right leg, Mrs. Tillie [illegible]mpbell, 38, of 1135 Ninth street, [illegible]st Park, is being held today by [illegible]ve Township police under [illegible]00 bail.

[illegible]e husband, George Campbell, [illegible] in Ohio Valley Hospital. His [illegible]tion was reported as not [illegible]s. According to police, the [illegible]ting occurred during a scuffle [illegible]y today when Campbell is re[illegible]ed to have returned to his [illegible]ne intoxicated.

Man Drops Dead In City Street Car

Stricken with heart disease, Stanley Szmagoy, 43, of 2616 Penn avenue, fell dead in a Western avenue street car today, near the Manchester barns, police reported. He was pronounced dead at the Presbyterian Hospital, and his body was removed to the morgue. He was on his way to report for work at the offices of the National Window Cleaning Company, Preble avenue.

Movie Fans Favor Sunday Shows, 12-1, in Poll

WESTON, W. Va., March 1.—Having taken a poll of its patrons and finding them in favor of Sunday movies by a majority of 12 to 1, a local theater will open for Sunday shows this Sunday afternoon. Two shows will be given in the afternoon and one at night, the latter starting at 9 o'clock so as not to interfere with church services.

Weston ministers are opposing the shows.

SCHOOLEY ALLY MAY GET POST

Paul G. Coultas, city inspector of building construction and political ally of City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley, is being mentioned for the superintendency of the bureau of sanitation, Department of Public Health.

Charles W. Parkinson, present head of the sanitation bureau, is eligible for a pension and it was reported that Mayor Kline would request him to retire and appoint Coultas.

Coultas now gets $2,700 a year and Parkinson $4,500.

Coultas and Parkinson live in the Eighth Ward, and Schooley, who is Republican chairman there, was said to be anxious to advance his friend and at the same time keep the job in the Eighth Ward.

Dr. J. C. McNeil, superintendent of the food inspection bureau, Department of Public Health, has been ill for months and is expected to be asked to retire on a pension in the near future.

The vacancy will be filled, from all appearances, by Lester Patton, chemist in the food inspection bureau, who has the indorsement of Dr. C. B. Maits, director of the Department of Public Health.

Guest in Auto Hurt, Sues for $10,000

Morris Kelsky, of Pittsburgh, asked $10,000 damages for personal injuries in a suit filed against Martin Fleishman, of Pittsburgh, in Common Pleas Court. Kelsky alleged that he was invited to ride in Fleishman's automobile August 9, 1928, and injured his finger on a broken door handle on the car, resulting in infection and a stiffening of the finger.

50 Autos on Trip, Boosting Aviation Show Here

Carrying Pittsburgh's invitation to join in the second annual aviation show opening at Motor Square Garden next week, Aero Club members and leaders in the industry here left this morning on a two-day automobile tour of neighboring communities to arouse interest in the show which promises to be the biggest aeronautical event in local history.

The show, sponsored by the Aero Club, is scheduled to run from March 7 to 15. Many new types of airplanes as well as innumerable interesting accessories and developments will be exhibited and prominent aeronautical leaders from all parts of the country are expected to attend.

The tour started at 9 o'clock this morning from the William Penn Hotel, with upwards of 50 automobiles in line.

Joseph M. Slater is chairman of the tour and Capt. Edison C. Speer associate chairman. Slater is one of the founders of the Aero Club and Capt. Speer is sales manager of the show.

The program follows:

Today—9 a. m., leave William Penn hotel; 10:30 a. m., arrive at Rochester for rally; 12:30 p. m., arrive at Butler airport for luncheon; 4:30 p. m., arrive at New Kensington for rally; 7 p. m., arrive at Greensburg for dinner and overnight stop.

Tomorrow: 11 a. m., leave Greensburg airport; noon, arrive at Connellsville for rally; 1:15 p. m., arrive at Uniontown for luncheon; 4 p. m., arrive at Charleroi for rally; 7 p. m., arrive at Washington for dinner; return to Pittsburgh.

Will Question Archdu[illegible] In Mystery of Necklace

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP.)—Archduke Leopold, of Austria, visiting here, was subpenaed by District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain to appear Monday morning to tell what he knows of the $60,000 Hapsburg diamond necklace reported sold in this city by a member of the British colonial secret service.

The necklace, originally owned by the Empress Marie Louise, wife of Napoleon Bonaparte and mother of L'Aiglon, was sent to this country for sale by the aged Archduchess Maria Teresa, of Austria.

The district attorney's investigation began when Mrs. Anna Eisenmenger, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., came from Vienna with power of attorney from the Archduchess Maria Teresa to find out what had become of the necklace.

Mrs. Eisenmenger said the archduchess had commissio[illegible] the British colonial secret ser[illegible] man, whom she had met thro[illegible] Archduke Leopold, to dispose [illegible] the necklace, a Hapsburg fa[illegible] heirloom for 100 years.

PLANS FOR NEW CHURCH

PROPOSED ST. PAUL'S CHURCH FOR MT. LEBANON

LET CONTRACT FOR CHURCH

With the signing of the contract for the erection of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Mt. Lebanon, plans were consummated this week for another fine edifice in the South Hills district. Work will be started at once on the congregation's property at Washington road and Mayfair drive by Henry Busse, contractor.

The structure will be of Indiana limestone. The nave, which alone is embraced in the initial unit of the building, will be 58 by 87 feet and the height from the threshold to the top of the cross will be 59 feet. It will have a seating capacity exceeding 200 persons. The lower floor, which will be entered on the ground level from Mayfair drive, will be fitted up for parish activities, the church school, social entertainments and the work of the guild.

St. Paul's church was organized five years ago and services have been held in the Mt. Lebanon public school building. Rev. Warren C. Herrick is the rector. Members of the building committee in charge of the new structure are: Stephen F. Elkins, chairman; Paul M. Magnus, Arthur B. Johnson, Roy Anderson, A. M. Linn, H. B. Johnston, Dudley R. Gibb, James W. Davis, Mrs. H. F. Lefurgy, M. Hoke Gottschall, John P. Cowan, Joseph E. Salisbury, G. J. Irwin.

AUXILIARY WILL HOLD SERVICES

The Rev. Dr. J. Gresham Machen, of Westminster Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, will speak at both services tomorrow in the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue. In the morning he will talk on "Objections to Christianity and the Way to Meet Them," and at the evening service he will discuss "The Gospel and the Modern World."

At the 11 o'clock service in the German Evangelical Protestant Church, Smithfield street, the Ladies' Aid Society will observe its forty-third anniversary. The Rev. Dr. Carl August Voss will speak on "Woman's Charms Endangered." At the German service he will speak on "Called to Be a Blessing."

The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, of the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street, has returned from California and will preach at both services tomorrow. His morning subject will be "Men Whose Hearts God Has Touched," and in the evening "Keep Cheerful: How?"

Dean Percy Kammerer, of Trinity Cathedral, will speak tomorrow morning on "Running Away From Life." At the evening service Canon Gookin will preach.

"The Prophet" and "The Scourge of Tongues" will be the topics at both services in the Unity Center of Pittsburgh, 435 Penn avenue. E. B. Anthony will be in charge.

The Rev. Dr. E. Marshall McFadden, of the New Covenant Mission, will conduct Sunday School services tomorrow at 3 o'clock. At the evening service Miss Elizabeth Zabriskie will deliver an illustrated Bible lecture.

WILL DEDICATE NEW CHURCH

The congregation of the Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church, Mt. Washington, will tomorrow celebrate the dedication of its new church building.

The pastor, the Rev. David F. Schultz, will have charge of the services. Additional meetings will be held throughout the week.

The church, which was completed at a cost of $100,000, is faced with Indiana limestone, similar to that being used on the Cathedral of Learning of the University of Pittsburgh. The architectural treatment of the church is an adaptation of the English Gothic style.

In addition to the new church, the congregation has also installed a new pipe organ. The organ contains two expression chambers, one for the swell organ and one for the great organ. Provision has been made for the installation of a set of cathedral chimes at some future date.

MUSIC TO MARK NORTH SIDE SERVICES

Special Program to Be Followed With Sermon; Will Observe Communion

WILKINS TAKES LINER FOR NEW YORK

Flier Braves Wind and Rain To Land Explorer at Dock In Time to Catch Liner

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS
Commander of the Hearst-Wilkins Antarctic Expedition.
Universal Service Special Cable.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, March 1. — We are all now safely aboard the liner Eastern Prince, at the point of leaving Montevideo for New York.

The body of this dispatch was written today aboard a New York-Rio-Buenos Aires airplane, flying from Buenos Aires to Montevideo. On that trip I learned that all heroes are not necessarily engaged in out-of-the-way places.

In a high wind and pouring rain through which we could see scarcely 100 yards, Pilot John Shannon, of the N. Y. R. B. A. line, made two trips to Montevideou from Buenos Aires through weather that was much too bad for flying.

FLIES TO CATCH BOAT

The second trip was made especially that I might catch the earliest possible boat for New York. Shannon landed his plane beside the Eastern Prince so that I might join Cheesman, Porter and Cramer.

We were late for the sailing schedule, but Houlder Brothers, the shipping agents, held up the boat for us. Yesterday, in almost as bad weather, Cheesman and Porter, flying the San Francisco, one of the planes used on our Antarctic exploration, crossed to Buenos Aires.

This enabled me to deliver both of our machines to the N. Y. R. B. A. airport, where they will be stored until the contract for their sale made with the Argentine director of aviation is completed.

AIR EQUIPMENT SOLD

All our flying equipment has by the contract been sold to the civil aviation department of the Argentine government. We are now free and happy to start our homeward journey to New York.

We have been treated with every courtesy by the officials in Montevideo and Buenos Aires. The N. Y. R. B. A. airline officials especially have been helpful and obliging.

The Aero Club of Argentina yesterday insisted that I attend a welcome at their club rooms, where, as the time was too short for greater preparations, they made me a member and presented me with the club insignia.

Our time en route to New York will not be idle, for, since starting home, we have been too busy to complete our reports. These will be finished aboard ship.

Obituary

Williams Funeral.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon for D. Curtis Williams, 69, who died Thursday at his home at 664 Maryland avenue. Services will be held in his home tomorrow and burial will be in Homewood Cemetery Monday morning. Williams, an engineer of the National Tube Company, was born in Shastsbury, Va., and came here many years ago. He was a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the Western Pennsylvania Society of Mechanical Engineers and the First Unitarian Church of Pittsburgh. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Ida Mencher Williams; a daughter, Miss Lorna N. Williams; a brother, Harvey D. Williams, and a sister, Mrs. William Herrinan.

Charles E. Rosenbaum.

Word has been received here of the death in Little Rock, Ark., of Charles E. Rosenbaum, whose wife was the former Miss Ida M. Havlin, who formerly lived here. Rosenbaum, who at the time of his death was a machinery manufacturer, was a Masonic leader in Arkansas. He leaves his wife and one daughter, Mrs. G. W. Harris, wife of the president of Harris & Ewing, Washington (D. C.), photographers.

Lappe Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Sophia B. Lappe, 89, who died Wednesday, were to be held today at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Amelia Townsend, 123 Bausman street, Knoxville. She was born in Germany and came to Pittsburgh 76 years ago. Besides Mrs. Townsend she leaves a son, William Lappe.

CORINNE GRIFFITH

MOVIE ACTRESS FINED $1,000

LOS ANGELES, March 1.—(AP.)—Corinne Griffith, motion picture star, appeared before Federal Judge William James today, pleaded guilty to a criminal information charging her with evasion of the 1927 income tax, and was fined $1,000.

Revenue agents told the court that Miss Griffith had "made good a shortage of $16,000" in her 1927 return and paid a penalty, which made the account approximately $25,000.

The actress had a gross income in 1927 of $198,495.11 and the government claimed a tax of $41,673.

Federal officials said "many other film celebrities" will be summoned to court shortly to pay "fines for short changing" the government on their income tax returns.

Fraternity to Mark 62nd Year at Feast

The sixty-second anniversary of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, will be observed with a banquet of the Pittsburgh chapter tonight in the Hotel Schenley. A feature of the banquet will be the reading of a message from Dr. Lawrence M. Gould, a member of the fraternity and professor at the University of Michigan, who is second in command of the Byrd expedition into the Anarctic. The message was sent by radio from Little America.

Vet Leaves County Job After 34 Years

Capt. John A. Reed, 84, Civil War veteran, has retired as chief clerk of the Allegheny County prothonotary's office, where he has served continually 34 years. His retirement on pension begins today. Other employes in the office honored Reed, presenting him with gifts.

P. R. R. WORKERS PROMOTED

E. W. Smith, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, announces the following appointments, effective today:

R. H. Flinn, general superintendent of motive power, Central Region, becomes general superintendent of the Western Pennsylvania Division, with headquarters in Pittsburgh, succeeding J. H. Redding deceased. H. W. Jones, superintendent of motive power, Western Pennsylvania division, suceeds Flinn.

B. M. Swope, superintendent of motive power, Central Pennsylvania Division, Williamsport, Pa., succeeds Jones. A. W. Byron, master mechanic, Philadelphia Terminal division, suceeds Swope.

Flinn is a native of Camden, N. J., a graduate of Cornell University, and has been with the Pennsylvania since 1901, when he entered service at Pavonia shop as a car builder apprentice.

Jones was born in Northumberland, Pa., and went with the Pennsylvania in 1903 as a machinist apprentice in Sunbury shops. He was master mechanic at Juniata shops before coming to Pittsburgh.

Swope is a native of Altoona, a graduate of Lehigh, and began P. R. R. service as a special apprentice in Altoona shops in 1909.

PROTEST BURST WATER PIPES

Complaints that water pipes were broken in several streets of West Ingram were being investigated today by members of the fire and water committee of Ingram Borough Council. A group of taxpayers informed Council at its meeting last night that lines in Samson, Miles, Chartiers, Dewey, Evans, Schley and Linshaw avenues, off Ingram avenue, had been broken frequently since last Wednesday.

The breaks were said to have been caused from the South Pittsburgh Water Company having flushed its lines, leaving the pressure at 180 pounds, twice the normal poundage, according to Councilman C. E. Grimm, chairman of the fire and water committee.

President L. C. Botkin suggested calls be made to his home after telephone officials complained they had a difficult time locating police by telephone.

'Partnership' Taken By Pastor as Theme

The Rev. R. L. Hutchinson, of the South Side Presbyterian Church, Twentieth and Sarah streets, will preach tomorrow morning on "God's Share in the Partnership." The pastor's evening subject will be "Can We Be Saved Without Repenting of Sin?"

Constable Dropped, Loses Commission

The commission of Robert C. Barr, deputy constable in the Twenty-sixth ward, has been revoked by Judge Harry H. Rowand, in Quarter Sessions Court, upon petition of Constable Albert L. Schliden, who stated Barr no longer serves writs in the ward.

Opportunities for profitable real estate investments are always advertised in the Sun-Telegraph Classified Ads.

SEIZE BEER IN RAID ON CLUB

A raid on the Homestead Eagles Club and the seizure of a carload of high test beer in the borough featured yesterday's activities of prohibition agents.

In a raid on the Eagles Club, at 325 East Ninth avenue, the agents reported finding five barrels of beer in the cellar and a pint of whisky. Charles A. Seuffert, a steward, was arrested by the agents who made the raid immediately after they had purchased two drinks of whisky, according to their report.

One hundred and twenty-five barrels of high test beer which was said to have been shipped from Newark, N. J., were seized in a freight car on the Pennsylvania Railroad in Homestead. The contraband had been shipped here as "petroleum."

ORDNANCE FETE WEDNESDAY

The annual banquet of the Pittsburgh posts of the Army Ordnance Association will be held in the William Penn Hotel next Wednesday night. Assistant Secretary of War F. T. Davidson, will be one of the guests of honor, coming to Pittsburgh from Washington by airplane. The principal speaker will be Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of the United States Army Engineers, who will speak on "Inland Waterways."

The committee in charge of the banquet consists of Maj. S. A. Canaritis, Taylor Allderdice, Capt. Fred A. McMahon, Maj. E. L. Messler and Capt. Harry W. Hill.

Rae Appoints Main To State Council

President James Rae, of the Chamber of Commerce, yesterday named Frank Wilbur Main, a chamber director, as the representative of the chamber in the recently organized state council of the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce. The new organization will meet biennially in Harrisburg.

The first meeting will be held March 25, when taxation will be considered. Franklin S. Edmonds, former chairman of the State Tax Commission, will be in charge.

Washing machines, baby carriages, gas ranges, all kinds of household equipment can be bought at bargain prices through the Classified Ads.

BETTER HOMES MONTH

Devoted to a Brilliant Display and Selling Of All That Is New in Furnishings and Home Decoration

March is the time to prepare your home for Spring. To make your refurnishing and redecorating plans for the new season — and to see how they may be turned into reality. The time to give your home the revivifying charm of new draperies, to add the interest that comes from a new rug or a new piece or group of furniture.

March is the time, too, to go through your cabinets and cupboards and closets to check up your supply of linens, china and glass, as well as the many practical incidentals of living, the "tools" that you need to be a smiling and successful home-maker.

We have made our March plans with a view to being of the utmost helpfulness to you. Not only with complete stocks of all that is new and best in things for the home—but with the savings to be had in our March Sale of Housewares, China and Glass, which begins Tuesday—and with special values from day to day in the most wanted merchandise for making "Better Homes." Watch our daily announcements throughout the month.

Better Homes Month Special

During March, as a part of the "Better Homes" Month program, we have arranged for a daily "Better Homes" Special, which will offer an unusual value each day in a timely item of home furnishings. Housekeepers will find it to their interest to watch for this Special daily, and profit by it to the extent of their requirements.

The first of these Specials, on sale Monday, will be

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

2 Important Weddings Today

PERHAPS because Lent begins Wednesday today is popular with brides. Late March will bring weddings however, and April many more. This spring there'll be more weddings, I do believe, than there have been for many a year.

The time is past. It seems when Lent meant a 40-day desert between winter and spring. Although there aren't large social events during the Lenten season, informal entertainments and news from all over the globe of home folks make the period a pleasant one.

And many social leaders taking advantage of the brief cessation of obligations find time for their personal interests such as literature, music, the theater, the fine arts, and philanthropy, of course.

BUT I started to talk about the weddings taking place this afternoon. Caroline Gilbert Johnson, daughter of Capt. Alfred W. Johnson, of the United States Navy, and Mrs. Johnson of Washington, is being married this afternoon. She has visited here often of late and of course has been honor guest at several entertainments here and in the Sewickley valley.

Notable Wedding

At 5 o'clock this afternoon in her father's and mother's home she is becoming the bride of James Elwyn Brown, Jr., of Mexico City and Sewickley, son of the James Elwyn Browns of Sewickley.

Before an altar of ferns and palms in the drawing room of the home the ceremony is being performed with the bride's father giving her in marriage. Caroline is wearing a gown of ivory satin, a family heirloom, and a veil of rose point lace, worn by many brides in her family. Her flowers are calla lilies.

Elvira Johnson, who has been a guest here, too, is her sister's maid of honor. She is a debutante of the season just past by the way. She is wearing flesh lace over satin of the same shade, and is carrying spring flowers.

PRISCILLA BROWN, the bridegroom's sister, and Elizabeth Kipp, of Ossining, N. Y., are the bridesmaids and they are wearing gowns of turquoise lace over satin of the same hue and are carrying spring flowers. Caroline Harris, small cousin of the bride, is flower girl.

Dresses Of Lace

Neale Brown is his brother's best man, and John F. Parsons and John C. Orr, of New York, are the ushers.

A reception in the home is to follow the wedding.

And the Rev. Dr. Alleyne Carlton Howell, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church of Sewickley, is the officiant.

Mrs. Howell is at the wedding too, as are the bridegroom's father and mother, the Samuel Grant Coopers, the Frank R. Dravos, the Robert A. Applegates, Mr. and Mrs. James West Arrott, III, Mrs. Hepburn Walker and Arthur L. Lovrie.

TODAY brings another bride of social importance, Esther Stockton Ely, daughter of the Sumner B. Elys of Pembroke Place and Clermont. S. Bowen, son of Mrs. C. C. Bowen, of Chicago. They are being married this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in the home of the bride's father and mother by the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church.

East End Girl Weds

The bride, who is being given in marriage by her father, is wearing a simple gown of white satin, fashioned with a train falling from the waistline. Her flowers are calla lilies.

Her only attendant is Mrs. Charles Burbank Crockett, of New York, formerly Mary Phillips Burgwin, who is wearing a pastelle flowered chiffon gown and is carrying spring flowers. William J. Louderback, Jr., of Chicago, is best man.

A small reception is to follow the ceremony. After a honeymoon the Bowens will live in Chicago.

CALIFORNIA is vieing with Florida in recent years for those seeing wintry gusts. At Pasadena may be found a small colony of Pittsburgh folks, many of whom have cottages at the Hotel Huntingdon.

West Is Popular

The William S. Stimmels have a cottage there, and Mrs. Thomas McCutcheon, the Benjamin Gilbert Follansbees, of Bigelow boulevard, and the Daniel M. Clemsons are there as are the George S. Cases and Mrs. William C. King.

Virginia Willock, daughter of the Frank Scott Willocks is a popular member of the younger set at the Pasadena winter colony.

The Thomas A. Standishes, Mary Anderson Standish and Mrs. William D. Henry represented Sewickley at Pasadena.

Hot Springs, Va., is becoming popular now with the advance of the season. Mrs. William Welch Collin, Jr., of East Drive, Sewickley, and her daughter, Katherine, who made her bow this winter, and Margaret Holdship are at the Hotel Homestead.

I HAVE another bit of news today. Mrs. Scott Alexander McKeown, of the Schenley Apartments, with her daughter, Scotty Jean, left for New York last night to visit another daughter, Sara Jane, who is a student at the Spence School in New York. On Monday Mrs. McKeown, accompanied by Scotty Jean, will motor to St. Petersburg. They plan to return about the middle of April.

YESTERDAY a very lovely wedding took place when Miss Violet Pennycook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pennycook, of Monroe avenue, Bellevue, became the bride of M. E. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clark, of the North Side, in the Fourth United Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Chalmers Morrow officiating. The church was conventionally decorated with ferns and palms and calla lilies were placed on the altar.

The bride wore eggshell satin and rose point lace. Her veil of maline, falling from a coronet of orange blossoms, formed a long court train, and she carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Betty Donaldson, maid of honor, wore peach taffeta and carried calla lilies and roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Agnes Shaw, wearing orchid satin, and Miss Frances Stewart, wearing green satin. They both carried arm bouquets of sweetheart roses. The flower girl was Marian Buchanan, small cousin of the bride, and she wore rose colored crepe and carried a basket of rose petals. Miss Katherine Black, the organist, wore blue chiffon. J. W. Pennycook, of Cadillac, Mich., was the soloist. Edward Richardson served as best man, and Thomas Clark, Jr., and Allan G. Clark, brothers of the bridegroom, Robert Pennycook, of Toronto, cousin of the bride, and Robert Stevenson were ushers.

At the reception following the wedding Mrs. Pennycook received with Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Clark, wearing blue chiffon and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Thomas Clark received with them, too, and wore dahlia crepe with a corsage of sweetheart roses. The decorations were in pink and white, with the table centered with calla lilies and Queen Elizabeth tulips and lighted by coral tapers in rose crystal candleholders.

The rehearsal dinner was given by Mrs. Thomas H. Stewart, of Bellevue, aunt of the bride. The decorations were in pink and green and narcissi was the only floral decoration.

The bride and bridegroom are to reside in Bellevue temporarily.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Pennycook, of Cadillac, Mich., and Mrs. John Pennycook and Miss Ruby Ireland, of Toronto, Can.

ON Wednesday morning at 8:45 o'clock Miss Ursula McCarthy, niece of Hugh A. McCloskey, of Saline avenue, became the bride of William M. Howley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Howley, of Beechwood boulevard, in St. Philomena's Roman Catholic Church, with the Rev. William Kenna officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Bruce Wandel, wore a gown of blue lace and wide brimmed hat of horsehair braid. She carried Talisman roses and freesia. Miss Mary Butler, of Monessen, was her cousin's maid of honor and wore flowered chiffon with a pink horsehair picture hat. Her flowers were sweetheart roses and sweet peas. Dr. Mortimer Cohen was best man and Edward Riehl and A. Dudley Devlin were ushers.

After a wedding breakfast in the Morrowfield, Mr. and Mrs. Howley motored to Miami. After April 15 they will live in Shady avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Howley gave the rehearsal dinner.

EVANGELIST TO OPEN REVIVAL

A series of revival meetings at the Duquesne Heights Methodist Episcopal Church, Oneida and Sycamore streets, will be opened Monday by the Rev. Dr. John W. Owen, evangelist, of Columbus, O. He will conduct services each night until March 16. Dr. Owen holds the chair of theology at Taylor University, Upland, Ind.

March 13 has been set aside for all-day services under the auspices of the Western Pennsylvania Holiness Association. Dr. Owen is well known in this district, having spoken at many of the Holiness meetings. Special music by the church choir will feature each night's service. The Rev. Jacob W. Schrader is pastor of the church.

K.-C. Valley Councils To Meet Tomorrow

Knights of Columbus of the Allegheny Valley councils will hold a third degree meeting tomorrow afternoon in New Kensington. District Deputy Edward P. Griffin will be in charge of the meeting to be held in St. Joseph's School at 2 o'clock. A dinner will follow the meeting.

"Teddy's" Boys at Play

"The White House Gang" is an unusual story. It's the treat of the year—an exciting real life narrative of the "gangsters" who kept the White House in turmoil for years. It's a story of the pranks of Quinten Roosevelt and his playmates—and their immortal father. Start reading "The White House Gang" in the Sun-Telegraph next Wednesday.

Citizenship Conference Is Held

THE first conference on citizenship training under auspices of this district of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women was held yesterday in the Congress of Clubs with representatives from Allegheny, Westmoreland and Washington counties present. Mrs. Rollins A. Haddock, Jr., district chairman of citizenship training, presided and outlined the plans of her division.

A round table on the United States Constitution took up part of the morning hours, the remainder of the time being given to Mrs. Ernest Waltz, of Washington, who talked on building programs around county government.

Mrs. Waltz urged her hearers to obtain knowledge of county government by personal contact observation and study, to apply that knowledge and to encourage desirable county officials after they have been elected. Mrs. F. H. Burdick, representing Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, congress president, offered the invocation at luncheon and afterwards there was a flag presentation pageant by the East Liberty Woman's Club and brief talks by Kenneth B. Magruder and Dr. S. B. Linhart.

"The criminal of tomorrow is the problem child of today," said Mr. Magruder, a member of the Pennsylvania Committee on Penal Affairs. "We have a menagerie system of taking care of offenders and have built our penal institutions with the bloodthirsty rogue in mind. In working on the theory of punishment, we think of the crime and not of the individual who committed it," he added, emphasizing the need of classification and segregation of prisoners.

Dr. Linhart told what the Committee on Education for Citizenship Training is doing among school and college students and its hopes for adult education. Bad government and bad laws grow out of the neglect of their privileges and responsibilities by intelligent people.

"No group of politicians can stand against intelligent consolidation of public opinion," he stated.

SUGGESTIONS for advancing the work financially through membership, in attendance and interest were exchanged yesterday at the meeting of the Allegheny County Council of Parents and Teachers which was held in the Chamber of Commerce. Each local representative (the council now has 53 associations) told of the work and aims of his or her organization, and P. W. Wentzell, of the Humane Society, spoke on "Humane Education." Announcement was made that all scrap books from the county that are to enter the national contest at the Denver convention must be sent to the office of Dr. C. E. Dickey before March 20.

A PATRIOTIC program was given yesterday at the meeting of the Turtle Creek Woman's Club in Mrs. Charles Milne's home, Maple avenue. Mrs. Paul Graham, vice-president, presided and Miss Jane Holiday directed the program, which was given almost entirely by high school students. It included a history of the flag by Bessie Skelton, Miriam Weber and Isabel Stevenson; Miss Weber gave "The American's Creed," Mildred Linhart read Edgar Guest's "The Flag," Gladys Freshwater spoke on the makers of the flag, Helen Liddell gave the story of naturalization and also read and Miss Martha Hodgson sang.

MRS. HAZEL COLE SHUPP gave an interesting talk before the College Club yesterday on "Psychological Devices of Some Modern Novels." She pointed out the great change that has come about in the last 20 years, formerly the novel had a definite plot structure, dealing with external life, but since the development of psychology, the inner self has become more prominent. Mrs. Shupp reviewed "Borgia," by Zona Gale, and "Fugitives Return," by Susan Claspell. There are, Mrs. Shupp said, no longer definite standards by which to judge a novel. Only one test can be applied—is it a true life experience?

IN addition to the debate on whether the chain store is a menace to public welfare, the program at the Sheraden Woman's Club meeting yesterday included piano and violin duets by Miss Grace and Miss Sarah Alles. The debate was staged by the Intercollegiate Debating Team, Miss Marie Hockmuth and Miss Louise Linn, of the University of Pittsburgh, taking the affimative, and Miss Margaret Harder and Miss Kathleen Montgomery, of University of Cincinnati, negative side.

PURPLE SHADOWS FALL UPON THE EVENING MODE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 1.—Purple shadows creep across the southern evening scene bringing with them a touch of that dark mysterious beauty that is always so intriguing. Purple, violet, dark dahlia and more than a touch of mauve are some of the shades used for the evening frocks and ensembles seen in the various Riviera resorts. Many of these dresses are of georgette. There is really something awfully appropriate to the moon-filled beauty of a languorous Riviera night, about an ethereal gown of soft georgette that seems to have been fashioned of starlight and shadowy clouds rather than of the stuff of which frocks are made. These long "dream frocks" are so much part of the picture that it is hard to believe that women for so long have been content to grace the evening in a short frocks that was built on the lines of a sports model rather than an evening frock. It is certain that the mode will remain feminine for a while, adding its quota of loveliness to a world that is ever more desirous and appreciative of beauty.

BOTH frocks shown are extremely new and charming. The first is a model from Jenny just completed for a client, Riviera bound. It is of georgette in an exquisite shade of violet. The graceful drapings at the sides and on the lower half of the skirt are cut in deep scallops with the edgings frayed out in a fringed effect. The close bodice is ever so slightly draped at the natural waistline. The V decolletage in front is repeated by a much deeper V in back.

THE second model was observed recently at the very smart Sporting Club at Monte Carlo which just now is filled with a group of perfectly dressed visitors. The dress which is also of georgette is in a deep dahlia shade. There are some interesting and attractive features about this frock, particularly the shoulder scarf knotted across the decolletage and flaring with a circular movement at the ends. The one-sided train formed by a circular flounce is also of interest.

SEEING THE EXHIBIT IN ADVANCE

MISS FERN KESTELOT — ANTOINE JENISCH

AN ADVANCE PEEK AT "SPIRIT OF SPRING" JENISCH'S EXHIBIT OF ART AT M'CREERY'S

'The Spirit of Spring' Strikes New Motif

By PENELOPE REDD

"The Spirit of Spring" will precede spring itself in an exhibition of paintings by the young French modernist, Antoine Jenisch, to be presented at McCreery's on March 6.

Penelope Redd

"The Spirit of Spring," wherein spring symbols—a shower, the sun, the rainbow, a contented snail, doves on the nest, roses and violets, accompany a modern Cleopatra with veil seductively slipping—are combined into geometric art more potent than the precise transcriptions of the same objects would prove.

METHOD ORIGINAL

Jenisch has an original method of painting. He builds a drawing in ordinary soft pencil with exceeding care, and then applies his color with a small air brush. He controls this tool, which one ordinarily associates with a hastily secured decorative effect, so skillfuly that his color has the unniglied effect of flower petals.

Jenisch, Bourdelle, and Toppi, all about 25 years old, are the pioneers of their generation now exhibiting simultaneously in Pittsburgh.

The element one notes in common is their freedom in selecting the traditional subject for which they seem to have a profound romantic regard, then rendering it in a syncopated design, that has an hypnotic effect on the vision of the fascinated observer.

This is particularly true of Jenisch and Bourdelle.

Jenisch must do his painting either from an airplane or a hypothetical stepladder, for no bird's-eye view could make the Chateau of Chantilly as "The Castle of Romance" so piquantly askew.

Or the "Trianon" leading the unsuspicious eye from a bit of cloud and sky mirrored in the pool of the foreground, into the adventure of diverting diagonals snapping up the little temple of love all awry, and culminating with a burst of blazing, autumnal foliage.

CHILD-LIKE MOTIF

Janisch takes the child-like motif of a haunted castle with its trite, melodramatic elements—spiral stairs, towers and a dungeon seen in mystery-heightened moonlight. He embodies them into an eerie lithograph. Another picture, in the same medium in a clear, blue-grey tone, "The Choppy Sea," builds up wind and waves into an integrated whole of jagged, swirling, battling masses.

Jenisch will be present during the exhibition to meet those who are interested in hearing him discuss his painting, which it is reasonable to assume will rouse considerable curious speculation.

HarvardAdvertisingAward Given Westinghouse

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 1 (AP.)—A gold medal and nine cash prizes aggregating $14,000, comprising the Harvard Advertising awards for 1929, were bestowed upon individuals and firms here last night. The award was established by Edward W. Bok, late philanthropist of Philadelphia.

Recipients named at the dinner of the Faculty Club of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration included Cyrus H. K. Curtis, Philadelphia publisher; Paul W. Stewart of the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington; Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborn, Inc., of New York; Northern States Power Company, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, Newell-Emmett Company, New York; Arthur Kudner, New York; Silas Spitzer and Anton Bruehl, New York; E. R. Squibb and Sons, New York, and Kenyon and Eckhardt, Inc., New York.

Curtis received the gold medal for distinguished contemporary service to advertising. Stewart received $2,000 for research conspicuous in forthering the knowledge and science of advertising."

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company received the prize of $2,000 given for "the general or institutional advertising campaign." The award was granted for the general campaign appearing in the rotogravure sections of newspapers.

"CHICKIE"

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Chickie Bryce is attending business college when the story opens. She confides her romantic thoughts to her friend, Mary Blake. She gets a position in an office in New York. One of her co-workers there is Janina Knowles. Through Janina she meets Jake Munson, rich and attractive bachelor. Mary suddenly marries a poor young chemist, much to Chickie's regret. Jimmy Blake, Mary's brother, begs Chickie to marry him, but without success. Chickie meets Barry Dunne at a party given by Munson. Barry drives her home. Barry calls, takes her motoring, tells her she's beautiful and kisses her. Munson, who has been greatly attracted by Chickie, insists on taking her to dinner. She goes out often with Barry and the depth of her feeling for him frightens her. Munson makes her a present of a barpin of sapphires. Chickie tries to return the pin but Jake persuades her to keep it.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXII.

CHICKIE and Barry started walking down the wet, glistening sands. Chickie dug her toe into the softness, sending the grains flying. She wanted to run away, to get hold of the thing that quivered and stormed within her. Tears were at her eyes, so she kept looking out at the waters and saying: "Isn't the light strong? Heavens, it's dazzling."

He went on quietly, swinging her hand. Abruptly, he said: "There's something cruel in the present economic order, isn't there?"

"A great deal. I'd say—for instance, that one so young and beautiful as I should have to work; and one so strong and brave as thou should have to pinch . . ."

"Yes—well, that's just it. Five or six years at least before I'll ever begin to make a go of it. There's my mother, too. No matter what I might wish to do—I have to put it out of my thoughts. That's not right. There ought to be some new arrangement."

"Like what? Do you mean that old stuff about dividing the money all over again?"

He shook his head, laughing, rubbing his hands. "No, ma'am!"

"Then what?"

"This dungeon question should be rearranged."

"Marriage?"

"How bright!"

"How would you have it?" She asked it softly and stole a hasty, flushed look into his eyes.

"Well, as it is now—most fellows who make their own way can't afford to marry until they're about 30. A fellow can't throw up his whole future even if he might wish to. But because he can't marry is no sign he won't love before that old age descends on him. Why shouldn't there be some scheme so that he'd have a right to this love? It's a part of life. Why should this everlasting postponement of living be demanded of us?"

A red stain spread slowly upward over her face. But she said valorously: "You mean there should be some substitute for marriage?"

Chickie Dreams

He shrugged: "Well—they'll have that in 50 years at most. Lots of people you and I know today aren't waiting for the conventions to catch up with the little old nature, are they? But what I mean was more adjustment between economics and emotions. For instance, some Edison ought to find a way to put us in a state of suspended animation until our pie is made. Then we would have the capacity and the means to enjoy it at once. As it is now, when we've made enough money to be able to live, we're ready to die."

"Ah—twee-twee—tombstones at our head and feet!" she said blithely enough. But she looked out at the immense gray water, feeling suddenly a forlorn chill desolation. She said sadly: "Don't the emotions ever wait for last until the economics catch up with them?"

"I guess they do—that's the only hope, isn't it?" He laughed merrily and added: "But suppose the economics and the emotions wait, but the girl doesn't?"

Chickie combed her hair a long while — dreaming. Her thoughts went back to the morning as she walked along the beach, sending the sands flying. She put the comb down, looked at her hands. They were trembling.

"Five years at least before I'll even begin to make a go of it. There's my mother, too." She wondered why she was dwelling on these words of Barry Dunne's.

And she felt as though a luminous searchlight had suddenly been flung across her path. She saw herself going along now with Jake; now with Barry, her days made bright — full of a sparkling interest because of them.

Visits Mary

She pulled her hair back tight from her forehead, screwed it into a knot on the top of her head — and laughed. But the weight that was loneliness or fear kept pressing like something bleak and heavy on her heart. Five or six years at least—

"Pooh! What about it!" Just what she wanted! She should go into the dungeon like Mary did! Any old time! Made it fine. They'd have all these years of freedom—walks on the beach—long rides—dancing.

But all the next day she didn't once look across the alley. She had a forlorn, empty feeling that the window over there was closed, the shade drawn down.

On her way home she stopped in at Mary's. She said to herself, flippantly, "Take a look at the dungeon." She was suddenly consumed with interest in Mary. Was it so bad? Was Mary glad for all her sacrifices? Or, in her secret thoughts, was she envious of Chickie and her freedom? Would she be delighted if someone said: "Well, here's [illegible] as you merrily please with them. Take a holiday from your life?"

Mary began at once to talk of Jake. "Have you come to tell me, Chickie? Jimmy says the machine is always at the door. You know, I always fancied you sweeping grandly along, a bird of paradise in your hair, an ermine train at your feet. What about it?"

Nothing. Why should you wish these things on me, Mary? You didn't wait for them."

Mary Satisfied

"They'd never have come to me. Besides, if you had them you'd send a limo when I wished to go shopping and a maid to look after my progeny. And I can do without things better than you could."

"That sounds regretful, Mary. Remember when you said Lucy would do the very same things over again?"

"I say it still, Chickie. Of course, once in a while I'd like to have a purse full of money—I'd like two or three hats. I'd love to go to all the good shows, but I wouldn't give up what I've got if I could stand on top of all the dollars in the world."

It's worth as much as that honestly, is it, Mary?"

"It's inevitable — and that's about all there's to it—at least for me. A girl that's cold and calculating can arrange her life to suit her mind, but I had to let mine run along after my heart. It's the richest way, but the hardest, perhaps."

"Well, suppose Edward couldn't have married you for years and years?" She began to talk rapidly, with a little catch in her voice. "What do you think you would have done, then? Put your heart in cold storage, or take some one else?"

Mary put down the vegetable knife and wheeled about, facing Chickie, staring at her for a long moment. "Don't you tell me, Chickie, that after all you've shouted from the housetops, you're going to let yourself fall for the hard things like poor Lucy did! And that poor dub of a Mary! Do you mean to say you'll turn down Jake Munson?"

Cites Stella Wilson

"Don't be alarmed, Mary. Jake isn't at my feet. He's not the marrying kind. I was only wondering about it. It seems to me that's about all a girl does, even you, Mary—is wondering about love. Awfully independent, aren't we? I was thinking about that today." Chickie was hurriedly running to cover—fearful that Mary would see her thoughts. "You know that new girl in the office—that Stella Wilson I told you about? She says she wouldn't give up her job for the best man on earth, and you know she just falls on the neck of any little shrimp that stops to talk to her. Thirty and beautiful and sour—poor old Stella! And all because no man got the notion to marry her. We don't amount to much, do we?"

"Alone—humph—I guess not. Women are born for love, Chickie. It's the cord that weaves them into the chain of life." Mary laughed. "Mother used to say we're a handful of beautiful beads thrown on a bare floor. Then a little kid comes along with a darning needle and picks the beads onto a bright red string that brings out all their colors, gives them meaning . . . picks them out any old way, leaving out some of the prettiest. And all the beads want like everything to be a part of that chain. Because otherwise, what are they? Transparent, meaningless."

"I suppose the red string is alive, then? The beads that get left may be the luckiest. They're free—they can roll wherever they choose."

"Yes—on a bare floor—remember that!"

Jake Brings Dog

The baby began to cry. Mary ran in and took him from his crib. She stood at the door, holding him on her hip as she bade good-by to Chickie. She said: "You didn't tell me the truth, Chickie. I'd like to bet that Jake asked you to marry him and you wanted to find out if money was worth enough. Is that it?"

"He hasn't asked me, Mary—and I don't believe he has the remotest intention of it."

"Oh, yes—well, his type always does marry. And I wouldn't put too much stock in that gossip we used to hear. He looks good enough."

Chickie laughed: "Mary, you look just like your mother, standing there with the baby."

"Feel like a princess? Come here, Wildie, and make a bow to your mistress."

"Is he mine for keeps? Do you mean to let me have him all the time?" She kneeled on the floor, taking the beautiful long head in her hands. And suddenly, with a joyous laugh, she stooped down and kissed the dog's head. He licked her face.

Jake touched her shoulder, his red lips drawn together. He said quietly: "Chickie—well!" Then he laughed, but he gripped both her hands and stared at her. "Don't do it while I'm around!"

She couldn't sleep that night because of her excitement. She got up several times and went into the kitchen and put her arms around Wildie's neck and laughed. Sunday she took him for a walk. Barry Dunne went with her.

When he saw the dog he said suddenly: "Yours? Jake gave it to you? Say, do you realize that a dog like that might cost as much as an automobile?"

She stood stock still and stared. "No!"

"They do—some of them. Humph—What's a thousand to Jake if he wants to toss a little gift to a girl?"

"You think I shouldn't take it? I can't give it back now—I love it—"

"Why should you give it back? No—we'll keep it! Nice company for us! Come here, Wildie—take a good look at your dad—new one."

The end of the week Jake said to her suddenly: "Well, it's all arranged, Chickie. We'll have the finest kind of weather."

"What do you mean?"

"The yachting trip, of course. Haven't forgotten, have you? Down to Miami. There'll be 10 of us—jolliest kind of a crowd."

"Why, I couldn't go. I can't, really."

"Yes, you can! You're the mainsail, my dear. There'll be no trip without you. So—you're coming."

Camera Question Box

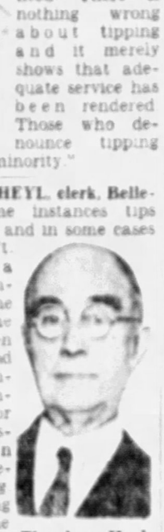
The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's Question: Is tipping a nuisance, or do you believe that this system of compensation for service really rewards the person who is most deserving?

ALICE HAHN, Lawrenceville: "The wage received by the average waitress or other person in this line of business is hardly sufficient to provide her with everything she may need. There is nothing wrong about tipping and it merely shows that adequate service has been rendered. Those who denounce tipping are in the minority."

Miss Hahn

THEODORE HEYL, clerk, Bellefield: "In some instances tips should be given and in some cases they shouldn't. The tip is a token that informs the one tipped that the service has been good. A good servitor is entitled to recompense for his or her efforts, especially when they are courteous and obliging. Tips go a long way to fill the breach for workers who receive meagre pay. I'm in favor of continuing the policy."



Theodore Heyl

ANNA MOYER, waitress Oakland: "If the average waitress or waiter didn't receive tips to augment their incomes, they wouldn't be able to meet expenses. I am sure that no one will say tipping constitutes a nuisance, because it doesn't. The average American's idea of a tip is a compensation for an extra service rendered. Everyone will be satisfied if it continues as such."

Miss Moyer

V. L. DICKINSON, surveyer, Mt. Washington: "The only time I believe tips should be given is when I am sure the recipients get the benefit. There are many concessionaires who force employes to turn over tips to them. Many of these operate right in Pittsburgh. I don't believe it is right to tip under such circumstances. Otherwise the practice is O. K., because it shows the person tipped that he or she has rendered efficient service."

V. L. Dickinson

RAY COCHRAN, supervisor, Carrick: "Whether or not tipping is a nuisance? To that question I'd say both yes and no. Tipping is all right when a man or woman isn't receiving an adequate wage. The remainder should be made up with tips. Perhaps the best service rendered the public is by street car motormen and conductors, and these men above all, should be tipped for the way they try to make car passengers comfortable."

Ray Cochran

GLADYS REYNOLDS, waitress: "The average man or woman does not consider tipping a nuisance, but on the other hand believes it to be the reward for good service bestowed. The person who receives such gratuity is really benefited by it. Tipping is quite a custom in the United States. It is popular and nearly everyone seems to be satisfied. Most waitresses give good service whether a tip is forthcoming or not. It's part of their duty."

Russians to Give Pitt Fund Benefit

Members of Pittsburgh's Russian colony tonight will stage a program of music and dramatic entertainment in Carnegie Music Hall for the benefit of the fund to furnish the Russian room in the Pitt Cathedral of Learning. Mrs. Ada Tchercoff, former grand opera singer, will head the program. Ralph Segerer will accompany her.

AMUSEMENTS CENTER AT SCHENLEY

Former Farm Property Now Considered As Possible Location For Town Hall

Pittsburgh has developed one of the nation's greatest civic centers out of a tract of land which, not so many years ago, was farm land.

When the Schenley Estate sold 103 acres of land to the Schenley Farms Company, there was nothing to it but old fields, a farmhouse, a row of houses on Fifth avenue known as Casey's row and dirt roads running through the property such as would run through any old farm. At that time it was bringing into the city in taxes $6,400 a year. At present this 103 acres plus the adjoining land which has been improved as a result of the Schenley Farms development, brings the city a tax income of approximately $600,000.

This former tract of farm land now is the location of such buildings as the Cathedral of Learning, Syria Mosque, the Masonic Temple, Soldiers Memorial Hall, Pittsburgh Athletic Association and the Schenley Hotel.

The developments already made in the section as well as its convenient transportation to other districts have been responsible for giving it frequent consideration as a site for the proposed Town Hall.

PARKING FACILITIES

In and about Schenley Farms there are more parking facilities than in any other section of the city where crowds gather. Frequently 5,000 cars are parked within a few blocks of the Masonic Temple during baseball games, football games and other activities.

The center of population of Allegheny County is directly at the location of the Masonic Temple.

A factor which is believed to have had much to do with the recommendation of the Schenley district for the Town Hall by the Allegheny County Planning Commission is that no other site has been presented which, with the building, can be secured for $6,000,000 or less which is the amount of the authorized county bond issue.

OTHER HALLS

Part of the reason why a Town Hall on this location can be built for at least $2,000,000 less than on any other location is that auditoriums of various sizes would be necessary in addition to the main hall. In the Schenley district these smaller theaters, banquet halls and lecture rooms would not be necessary since they are already available in the immediate neighborhood in buildings such as Carnegie Music Hall, Syria Mosque, Schenley Hotel, Soldiers Memorial Hall and the Twentieth Century Club.

Another factor in giving consideration to the Schenley site has been transportation. There are more car lines passing through the district than through any other section. All the bus lines except routes to the North and South Sides pass through Schenley.

The first year that Barney Dreyfuss moved the Pittsburgh Pirates to Oakland he received 15 cents per head more income at the gate than he had on the North Side and had a distinctly higher class of patronage.

TRADE VOLUME GREATER

WASHINGTON, March 1 — The dollar volume of trade during the week ended February 22, as indicated by check payments, was greater than in the preceding week but showed a decline from the same week of 1929, according to the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce. Operations in steel plants were on a lower level than in the same period of the previous year. The production of bituminous coal during the latest reported week was smaller than in the previous week and showed a decline also from a year ago. Petroleum output was greater than in the previous week, but showed a loss from the same week of 1929.

The general index of wholesale prices showed a further decline during the week, being lower also than in the same period of the preceding year. Prices for cotton averaged lower than in either the previous week or the same week of last year. Iron and steel prices showed no change from the previous week, but were lower than a year ago. Copper prices were unchanged from either period. Prices for wheat were lower than in either the previous week or the same week of last year.

Bank loans and discounts at the end of the week were lower than at the end of the previous week, but showed a gain over a year ago. Prices for stocks were lower than in either the preceding week or the same week of 1929. Bond prices were likewise lower than in either period. Business failures during the week were more numerous than in either the preceding week or the corresponding period of 1929.

Evans New Chairman Of Ward Baking

NEW YORK, March 1.—William C. Evans has been elected chairman of Ward Baking Company, filling the vacancy caused by the death of Charles A. Ward. Howard B. Ward was elected vice president.

PLATE GLASS OUTLOOK

The first of March finds the flat glass industry in a very quiet state, according to National Glass Budget. To date orders for plate glass from the automobile industry have not materially picked up. Nevertheless, the manufacturers of plate are optimistic and are looking for an early improvement in demand from this source. Jobbers and distributors of plate glass are placing orders with the manufacturers at about a seasonable rate. Mirror manufacturers are taking at least an average amount of glass for this season of the year. Production of plate now exceeds the demand. It is believed, however, that before long the market will consume more footage of plate glass than is being made.

A review of the window glass manufacturing industry shows that there are 17 tanks operating at the first of the month. Of this number 15 tanks supply molten metal for approximately 80 sheet drawing machines. The two other tanks are equipped with cylinder drawing machines. To one tank of the latter class are attached four machines and to the other six machines. Both these cylinder machine plants are located in the southwest.

If the week's record holds there is much in it of encouragement for those in the glass bottle business. Distributors are finding orders plentiful if not large, and of a total volume that makes business rather good. Any kind of a glass container in which food stuffs are packed and sold is in demand.

Farm Equipment Sales Show Gain

CHICAGO, March 1. — Total sales billed by 61 farm equipment companies during January were 30.3 per cent above January, 1929. Domestic billings of these companies were 18 per cent above a year ago and export billings of 34 companies showed an increase of 62.8 per cent.

WATER SUPPLY VITAL TO CITY

City Spends Large Sums To Insure Purity And Adequacy Of Service

By EDWARD G. LANG, Director of Public Works.

All the activities in the various bureaus in the Department of Public Works are relatively important so far as the well being, comfort, happiness and security of the public is concerned, but there is no activity in our department that exceeds in importance that of the Bureau of Water for its life giving and life maintaining elements, so that the health and well-being of the citizens may be met in the highest measure, and protection against loss by fire or conflagration may be assured to the fullest extent.

Little consideration is given by the public to this important element in our economic life, that of a pure and abundant supply of the first essential in the lives and health of the citizens of this great city, namely our water supply. Very little, if any, thought or consideration is given to this vast organization unless when a faucet, or a spigot is opened and there is no water forthcoming. Then and then only are the persons concerned interested, or give any thought to the maintenance and operation of this, in our judgment, the most important activity in any city.

The topography of our city, being constituted of hundreds of hills and valleys, separated by rivers and streams, makes it the most difficult city in all the world to improve, maintain and keep to the high standard that modern civilization demands. We are, therefore, offering to the public a succinct and as comprehensive discussion of the Bureau of Water of the City of Pittsburgh as is possible, so htat they may, in some measure, understand the magnitude, the importance and the engineering difficulties that enter into the efficient and economic administration of this branch of our service, which precedes in importance all the other functions of the city government embodied in the Department of Public Works.

NEW BUILDING

During the last four years the Bureau of Water has been active in construction work, major improvements in the various divisions have to a large degree made up for the lack of activity since the beginning of the war which here, as elsewhere, caused the postponement of industrial works.

The Bureau of Water now operates a plant whose reproduction value is about $65,000,000. A low lift pumping station supplies 122,000,000 galoins of raw river water daily to the 56 acres of covered filters, 118,000,000 gallons of filtered water are handled daily by the two large primary pumping stations, three secondary stations lift 31,000,000 gallons higher and a tertiary station sends 1,250,000 gallons to still higher elevations, a total daily pumpage of 272,250,000 gallons.

FILTRATION

The Filtration Division attends to the purification of the turbid and disease bearing raw river water. This function requires a constant force of 150 men and the total operating cost in 1929, was $250,000. With but slight modification from the original installation, first operated about 20 years ago, greatly increased capacity has been obtained by advanced technique in operation and no major expenditure for enlargement or repair is in prospect.

The Mechanical Division is charged with the maintenance and operation of the pumping stations and pumping equipment. This requires the uninterrupted employment of men and machinery, the normal operating force being 230 men and operating expenses being $820,000 in 1929.

STEEL BUYNG LOWER FOR WEEK

February Ingot Output To Show 10 Per Cent Gain; Scrap Market Dull

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel buying during the past week noticeably declined. The most prevalent picture concerning the steel trade is that buying of the metal took a sharp gain from the beginning of January until the end; a further slight increase marked the first part of February, but buying gradually tapered off toward the end of the month. Estimates put the rate of steel production this week at two points under that of last week.

A forecast is justified that the official report of Bessemer and open-hearth steel ingot production in February will show an average rate in the neighborhood of 10 per cent above the January rate, and as January was 21 per cent above December, February would be about 33 per cent above December, well above November and not a great deal below October.

RATE LOOKS HIGH

On the one hand the recent rate of steel production looks decidedly high in view of the business difficulties left over from last year, on the other hand it seems strange that steel demand and production should not be increasing at the beginning of March when the seasonal precedents are so plainly and strongly marked.

The state of the steel business and its nearby prospects are being gauged by direct reference to the sum total buying and the rate of production rather than by study of details of buying in the different lines and the particular prospects of the various consuming industries. There is little specific information as to details, and as to individual prospects no one is disposed to venture into realms admittedly unknown. What a consuming industry is doing or is likely to do can be gauged only by the rate at which it is now buying steel, with but three exceptions, involving forward business, the rail mills having a good order book for the half year, the structural fabricating shops being booked with about five months of fairly full operation and the freight car shops being moderately well filled for a few months.

MORE EXPANSION

On the basis of order receipts, then, steel is not engaged in expanding at the present time and as this is the time when usually it has been expanding recourse must be had to the idea that the recent expansion was somewhat excessive and that further improvement in steel must be looked for only in connection with improvement in trade generally. At the present time steel is not prophetic of trade generally and it is a question whether lately it has even been an index to the state of general trade.

Agricultural implement industry continues to run at a very high rate, above last year's general pace, but there is no basis for predicting what it will do in the next few months.

Automobile production has been a trifle lighter in the last fortnight than in the first half of February and the month will show no more than a slight gain over January, while March promises little increase over either February or January.

The scrap market has been particularly dull and prices are just a shade easier. Sometimes the scrap market is prophetic of steel production.

Youngstown Bank Ranks 7th in Ohio

YOUNGSTOWN, March 1. — With assets of $42,107,945, the Home Savings & Loan Co., of this city, ranks seventh in size of assets among savings and loan associations throughout the country. Of 26 companies in Ohio with assets in excess of $10,000,000, the Youngstown institution is second, and the Buckeye Savings & Loan Company, Columbus, first with $48,000,000.

The Railroad Men's Building & Loan Association, Indianapolis, Ind., is first in the country with assets of $59,732,000.

Expect Offering By Dow Chemical

CLEVELAND, March 1.—Offering of a note issue of the Dow Chemical Company involving around $3,500,000 will probably be made shortly by a syndicate headed by the Union Cleveland Corporation, security subsidiary of the Union Trust Company.

'Public Improvements Promote Progress'
Convinced that public improvements exert an important influence upon the progress of any community, the Board of County Commissioners of Allegheny County on January 1, 1924, initiated a program of major public works, many of which are already effectively serving the citizens, while others of vital importance are being rapidly brought to completion.
BABCOCK BOULEVARD — Curve Eliminations No. 4 and No. 5—McCandless Township. This improvement was carried out to eliminate a series of dangerous curves near the southern border line of the North Park on the heavily traveled Babcock Boulevard. One curve was at the Lentz property, 2.44 miles north of Keown Station, and the second curve at Anderson's property, 3.33 miles north of Keown Station. The new pavement consists of reinforced concrete 18 feet wide and 1.12 miles in length. New road locations were also involved in this work. The contract price was $87,230.00. The funds were provided for in the 1928 Peoples Bond Issue.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

Sharon Hoop Reduces Funded Debt

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

AGAIN of 38 per cent in earnings, the retirement of all preferred stock, the retirement of a large share of the bonds and an increase of nearly $1,000,000 in the value of plants were the outstanding developments shown by the annual report of the Sharon Steel Hoop Company for 1929.

Net income for the year was $1,341,215. This was equivalent to $3.69 a share on the 358,140 shares of common stock. It compared with $971,853 or $3.11 a share on 286,240 shares of common stock in the preceding year.

Retired Preferred Stock

ALL OF THE 8 per cent preferred stock, amounting to $999,700 was retired on April 1, 1929. In computing earnings per share on the common stock, preferred dividends for only one quarter were deducted in 1929.

The preferred stock retirement was financed by offering common stockholders of record April 15 rights to buy one additional share of common for each 10 shares held. This accounted for the increase in the number of common shares during the year.

Great progress was also made in reducing the amount of outstanding funded debt. The balance sheet shows that $1,267,530 of the first mortage 5½s were held in the treasury. All of these bonds were bought in during the year. This was in addition to $150,000 of the bonds completely retired. At present only $5,332,470 of the bonds are actually in the hands of the public.

Plant Improvements Made

CAPACITY was substantially increased last year. A new 14-inch continuous hot strip mill was put into operation. This has 14 stands of rolls and is entirely electrically driven.

Physical properties were carried at $19,764,464 at the end of 1929. This was an increase of $968,388 during the year. The gain in property values was shown after charging off $948,179 for depreciation, which indicates that a total of about $1,916,567 was spent for plant improvements.

The company showed a good current financial position at the close of the year. Current assets of $6,799,772 were 4.3 times current liabilities. Working capital of $5,205,570 was almost equal to the outstanding amount of funded debt.

Operates Four Plants

SHARON STEEL HOOP has four plants. These are located at Youngstown, Warren and Lowellville O., and at Sharon, Pa. The organization is complete, embracing every operation from the mining of iron ore to the rolling of highly finished products.

Several new products were added to the list of materials rolled during the year. In addition to steel hoops, strips, plates and sheets, the organization completed arrangements for the rolling of special materials. A contract has been closed for the right to roll steel made under the Krupp Nirosta patents. The company has also agreed to produce sheets made from Byers' new process wrought iron.

WEST PENN CO. BUYS BUS LINE

Company Now Operates Six Systems Between Baltimore and Detroit

The Union Motor Transit Company, operating between Pittsburgh, Steubenville, Canton, Akron and Detroit, became a part of one of the large bus operations in the East when it was acquired by the West Penn Electric Company. This company controls and operates motor coach lines in Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

At the present time the West Penn System comprises six interconnecting bus properties running from Baltimore and Washington on the east coast as far west as Detroit. These lines touch practically all the important cities between those points and have ramifications covering a wide territory.

SIX COMPANIES

These six companies are the Blue Ridge Transportation Company, covering practically all of Maryland, Northern Virginia and a small portion of Southern Pennsylvania. The Monongahela Transport Company, operating throughout Northern West Virginia and as far north as Pittsburgh; Penn Bus Lines, the most localized of the six properties serving the territory west of Pittsburgh as far as the West Virginia line. Ohio Valley Transit Company, traverses the river valley between Steubenville and Wheeling with some local service in Ohio and the West Virginia panhandle. White Star Lines, Inc., operates throughout Southwestern Pennsylvania and into West Virginia. The latest acquisition, Union Motor Transit Company, reaching from Pittsburgh to Detroit is familiar to local readers.

Headquarters for the entire system are in Pittsburgh with operating headquarters for the Union Motor Transit Company at Steubenville, O. Under the new management increased efficiency and service may be anticipated.

BUS LINES' EXPANSION

WEST PENN SYSTEM AFTER COMBINE

The extent of the West Penn bus system since its acquisition of the Union Motor Transit Company lines. The legend explains.

BETTER RETAIL TRADE TONE

Unseasonably warm weather has stimulated the sale of spring merchandise, but distribution both at wholesale and retail continues at a somewhat lower rate than is usual at this period, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review. Jobbers of dry goods and wearing apparel report business still slow with sales generally for comparatively small amounts.

Industrial operations show comparatively little change this week with steel mills still operating at about 80 per cent of capacity. There is no particular improvement as yet in the demand for plumbing supplies, although some improvement is looked for in the near future.

Manufacturers of electrical equipment continue busy, orders being sufficient to maintain the present operating rate for some time. Production of window glass shows little change, being maintained at a low level which has prevailed for some time, but a slight improvement in demand has been in evidence lately. Government reports for the year 1929 show the decrease in the importation of window glass of about $270,000, as compard with 1928.

Delco Perfects New Gas for Cooking

NEW YORK, March 1.—The Delco Light Company, a division of the General Motors Corporation, has developed a new product known as Delcogas. Gas for cooking and all other household and commercial uses can be provided anywhere by this new product which converts low cost liquid fuel into safe pressure gas.

The system consists of a simple compressing machine and a specially designed tank, the latter placed underground outside the building where gas is required.

J. T. Lipford Chosen As Flour Club Head

James T. Lipford was elected president of the Pittsburgh Flour Club at the annual dinner meeting last night in the Fort Pitt Hotel. He succeeds R. T. Hambleton who served two years. A. P. Cole was chairman of the nominating committee. The local club is affiliated with the National Federated Flour Clubs.

Other officers elected are: vice president, W. C. Mansfield; treasurer, Henry D. Gilpin; secretary, C. C. Latus and directors, V. M. Wintermantel, C. E. Vickery, J. J. Spagnol, J. A. Swindell and Philip H. Hansen.

Belgium Plans Bill To Pay U. S. Debt

BRUSSELS, March 1.—(AP)—Replying to a question in the Chamber of Deputies, Finance Minister Baron Houtart announced that a bill for repayment of the Belgian debt to America would be introduced by the government next week.

He was apparently referring to the paying off of the seven and a half per cent bonds in the $50,000,000 loan launched in 1920.

MELVILLE SHOE POSITION IS IMPROVED

Sales Set Record But Expenses Cut Into Net; Bank Debts Liquidated

NEW YORK, March 1.—Although Melville Shoe Corporation earnings in 1929 did nto measure up to the record established in the previous year, due principally to large expense involved in developing one division of its business, company made definite progress toward improving its financial status.

Sales last year set a new record at $25,520,675, a gain of $2,968,322 or more than 13 per cent over the previous high mark of 1928. Company's sales record has been one of consistent annual increase, the total for last year being a gain of more than 135 per cent over the $10,903,420 reported in 1925.

Cost of sales last year was the largest for several years past and reflected the extraordinary charges for converting many of the Thom McAn white front stores to the more profitable gold front units. The White Front stores sell shoes for men and boys only, while the Gold Front stores cater to men, women and boys. These expenditures should result in increased income in the current year.

On the 25,520,675 of sales in 1929, costs amounted to $24,003,160 or 94.1 per cent, while in 1928 and in 1927 costs represented 92.4 per cent, and in 1926, 92.7 per cent.

Melville's expansion in 1929 also was not as aggressive as in the previous year. Last year the company opened 49 stores, against 89 in 1928. In 1930 the company plans to continue expansion although general business conditions will be a determining factor in this direction. Reduction in operating costs of present units will be one of the principal objectives this year.

Net income last year totaled $1,594,216 after all charges, including depreciation and federal taxes, equal to $3.99 a share on the 354,376 shares of no-par common issued, deductions being made for preferred dividends. It was the second largest net reported in the history of the company, being surpassed by the $1,657,139 earned in 1928, equal to $4.23 a share on common.

SUN OIL PLANS PIPE LINE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 1.—There has been a substantial increase in buying of small-diameter pipe lately, largely for automobile and building requirements. This has stimulated demands for the butt-welded product. Requirements for lap-welded tubing are quiet, however.

Sun Oil Company plans a 6-inch oil line across the state of Pennsylvania, which will require from 20,000 to 25,000 tons of tubing, and makers believe that other important projects will be presented for specifications in the spring.

One important price development of the week is the weakening in steel scrap prices, which are down 50 cents per ton from recent highs. This is due in large measure to moderation in the activities of steel plants, and consequent reduced demands for scrap. Heavy melting scrap is now quotable at $16.25 to $16.75.

Accounting School Elects Officers

During the past week student council elections have been held at Pittsburgh School of Accountancy. G. D. Beatty, Weirton, W. Va.; C. S. Weaver, Butler; R. G. Ford, R. L. DeWall, W. A. Schwab, J. R. Ullom, Washington; Charles Morgan, Coraopolis, Ethel Williams and W. J. Steen have been chosen by the student body to conduct all school activities. The student council will hold its first meeting in the near future to formulate plans for the annual dinner and dance to be held at an early date.

CINCINNATI, March 1.—Kroger Grocery and Baking Company is experimenting with the sale of two magazines in 'ts stores in the Cincinnati area. Should the experiment prove satisfactory company probably will sell several popular magazines in all its stores.

Durant Cleared In Brokerage Dispute

NEW YORK, March 1.—Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy yesterday handed down a decision denying plaintiff's motion for a receivership in the suit brought by Elizabeth C. Hudson against the officers and directors of the Ungerleider Financial Corporation.

It appears from the record that the suit actually arose out of a controversy between Mrs. Hudson and the brokerage firm of Samuel Ungerleider & Co. over certain stock transactions.

In the suit W. C. Durant, as one of the directors, was mentioned, although he had little to do with the affairs of the corporation, had never heard of Mrs. Hudson, did not know her, knew nothing of her controversy with Ungerleider & Co. and had no connection with it whatsoever.

WHEAT ACREAGE UNDER 1929

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Winter wheat acreage in nine countries for which the Department of Agriculture has reports is 112,816,000 acres, or 2.5% below the 115,725,000 acres seeded to winter wheat in the same countries for the 1929 harvest. The countries included are the United States, Canada, Bulgaria, Rumania, Italy, France, Algeria, Tunis and India. France's winter wheat area is estimated at 12,608,000 acres, or 65,000 acres less than the area seeded in 1929, but 216,000 acres more than the area harvested.

N. Y. Exchange Seat Sells at $415,000

NEW YORK, March 1.—Arrangements have been made for the sale of a New York Stock Exchange seat at $415,000, up $5,000 from previous sale.

HEAR PACKERS' ARGUMENTS

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Justice Stafford, of the District Supreme Court, heard arguments on an application of the Swift and Armour group of packers for modification of the consent decree, against the Big Five packers, under which it was agreed that they would divorce the packing industries from unallied industries.

Counsel for the group contended that economic conditions have so changed since the signing of the decree that there is no reason for continuing it in force. The modification was asked to offset the rapid development of chain stores and increased meat sales in these stores.

$234,414 Subscribed For Viking Metal Co.

RIDGWAY, Pa., March 1.—Subscriptions continue to come in for stock in the Viking Metal Products Company. Up to date there have been 815 individual subscriptions. A total of $234,414 has been subscribed.

Representatives of the 240 Jamestown stockholders and the Ridgway banks held several conferences during the past two days and the board of directors has been named: August Beckstrom, Jamestown; Earnest Swanson, Jamestown; Mr. Swanson, Jamestown; R. A. Cartwright, Charles Jewers, Earl Overholzer, J. S. Schults, all of Ridgway. The following officers were elected: President, R. A. Cartwright, of Ridgway; vice-president, Earnest Johnson, of Jamestown; secretary and treasurer, August Beckstrom, of Jamestown.

Mexican Eagle Oil Production Lower

LONDON, March 1.—Production of the Mexican Eagle Oil Company for the week ended February 22 was 276,000 barrels, against 283,000 in the previous week and 281,000 barrels two weeks ago.

SCHOOL GETS RESULTS

Exceptional results have been secured by the National Institute of Drafting which recently opened its headquarters in the Clark Building.

A novel method of instruction is used by which each student receives individual attention. Each student is given actual engineering problems to work out. Instruction is given as the work proceeds and theory is taught to give the student a complete understanding of the subject.

Special courses are given in aeronautical design, mechanical design, structural design and tool and die design.

Short courses are also available in practical shop mathematics, blue print reading, shop sketching and lay out, mechanical drawing, tracing and detailing, sheet metal layout, structural steel lay out and plan reading and estimating.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Head Up — Local Market Steady

MARKET OPENS SPOTTY, TURNS UPWARD

Inpouring of Orders For Utilities Changes Tone Soon After Start

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP.)—The stock market presented a spotty appearance at the opening today, Gulf States Steel and Auburn Auto each opened about 2 points higher, American Water Works and Parmelee Transportation moved into new high ground and American Smelting, Kennecott, General Electric and New York Central improved fractionally. Atchison and Western Union each dropped 1¾ and Midland Steel Products common 1¼. U. S. Steel opened fractionally lower.

The market turned upward soon after the opening as fresh buying orders poured into the public utility shares and carried several of them to new highs for the year. American Telephone, American Power and Light, North American and Standard Gas and Electric all reached new high ground.

One block of 10,000 shares of Warner Brothers Pictures changed hands at 68, up ¾, and a new high record. J. I. Case and McKeesport Tin Plate were each marked up 2 points and Electric Auto Lite, Borg Warner, National Lead, Lambert, Hershey Chocolate and Columbian Carbon recorded early gains of a point or more.

Foreign exchanges opened easier, with Spanish pesetas touching another new low at 12.12 cents and sterling cables down 1-32 of a cent to $4.85 31-32.

FEBRUARY AUTO SHIPMENTS

Buick Motor Company division of General Motors, reports February shipments of 8,842 units against 12,897 in February, 1929, and 7,299 in January, this year.

Reo Motor Company reports February shipments of 2,568 units against 3,250 for February, 1929, and 2,350 for January, 1930.

Hupp Motor Car Company reports February shipments of 2,029 units against 2,255 in January, and 4,161 in February, 1929.

Merger Involves Twenty-Four Firms

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 1.—A $30,000,000 merger of manufacturers of vitrified products such as sewer pipe, power line conduits and drains, was announced here by A. B. Andrews, of Pittsburgh, industrial engineer.

Twenty-four companies are involved.

The new concern will be known as the Ceramic and Steel Products Company and will be incorporated in Delaware in a few days, Andrews said. There will be three groups of plants. The first will contain four plants for the production of hot taps for steel mills, tubes and roller bearings. The second, containing eight plants, will produce glazed terra cotta pipe and standards, flue linings, building tile and related ceramic ware.

Wabash-Wheeling Intervention O. K.'d

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has authorized the Wabash Railway Company to intervene in the proceedings on the application of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia to acquire stock control of the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad and its subsidiary, the Lorain and West Virginia Railway.

Intervention of the Wabash is significant since a decision upon the Wheeling acquisition may determine whether or not the commission will reaffirm its five-system set-up in eastern trunk line territory. The Wheeling was allocated to the Wabash-Seaboard.

D. & H. Files Brief Against B. & O. Plan

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Application of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to acquire control of the Buffalo and Susquehanna should be dismissed, it is contended in a brief to be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Delaware and Hudson Railroad.

Benefits of the Baltimore and Ohio through acquisition are conditioned on acquiring control of the Reading Railroad in which the New York Central also owns a substantial interest and there is no showing that the Baltimore and Ohio will be able to acquire domination, the brief stated.

National Building Activity Increases

WASHINGTON, March 1.—A moderate increase in national activity took place last week, the census bureau estimated today on the basis of returns from all the area east of the Rocky Mountains.

Figures which follow give the average daily total of contracts for new construction let in the district for the week end comparable periods: Week ending February 22, $10,594,000; preceding week, $10,169,000; same week last year, $14,944,000.

Rubber Market.

NEW YORK, March 1.—Rubber futures opened steady: May, 18.10c; July, 18.50c; September, 18.90c.

Money Market.

LONDON, March 1.—Bar silver, 19d per ounce. Money, 2½ per cent. Discount rates, short bills, 4 5-16@5 9-16 per cent; three months, 5 7-16 per cent.

Sloan, Chrysler, Trade Rivals, Close Friends.

—By B. C. FORBES—

A BRIEF visit to several winter playgrounds, much frequented by notables, has prompted the question, what yield happiness?

Corporation heads and other busy men of large affairs who only occasionally snatch brief release from their daily toils appeared to be revealed in every moment of relaxation. A golf game with congenial cronies was a thrilling adventure, the ocean dip an occasion for gaiety. Every form of activity, enjoyed in health-giving sunshine, yielded genuine pleasure.

But there were others who went through pretty much the same motions but who evidenced boredom. They were mostly what might be called the professional playboys, sons of rich papas or fellows on whom fortune fell easily and whose main quest in life now is merely pleasure. They have no sense of a schoolboy playing hookey as have men immersed in serious affairs almost 50 weeks in the year. They reminded me these non-workers, of the child's definition of salt. "Something that makes meat taste nasty when you don't use it." It was manifest that it takes work to make play wholly palatable.

The formula of a successful life that finally formed itself in my mind was: happiness through useful service.

POWERFUL rivals in business often are pictured as mortal personal enemies. Perhaps the finest and sincerest tribute ever paid Henry Ford was by Pierre S. Du Pont when the active head of General Motors. His address was delivered to a large gathering of General Motor officers, at the time the Ford works were closed down in preparation for the new car and when all sorts of rumors were afloat concerning the difficulties Ford was encountering. Mr. Du Pont, I understand, emphasized that every motor manufacturer in America and every one gaining his livelihood from the industry, owed an incalculable debt to Mr. Ford for the part he had played in popularizing motor transportation.

This week president A. P. Sloan of General Motors took his new yacht on what probably was its maiden cruise in southern waters. And whom, think you, was his chief guest? Walter P. Chrysler.

Happily, American business giants have learned that there is more fun in living and letting live than in trying by hook or by crook to kill off all competitors.

THE PUBLISHED reports that John D. Rockefeller, Sr., was "dictating" Standard Oil policies and that he personally ordered the recent cut in crude prices were the shcerest nonsense.

Each and every Standard Oil company is run entirely by its executives. Nearly all important corporations and institutions have outsiders on their directorates. Standard Oil directors are chosen from the high-up employes. Neither John D., Sr., nor John D., Jr., would dream of ordering, say, Walter Teagle, head of Standard Oil of New Jersey, to raise or lower all prices. If either attempted to do so, Teagle doubtless would conclude that he was considered no longer capable of handling his job—and the Rockefellers know full well that he is.

Standard Oil executives have a freer hand than most executives for the very reason that there are no bankers or other influential figures as directors. I am told that about the only time any Standard Oil executive hears from young Rockefeller is when any allegation is made reflecting on the fairness of some course of action. Then young Rockefeller wants to ascertain the facts. John D., Sr., is no longer a factor in the managerial problems. He is more interested in holding a putt than in putting anybody in a hole.

ROBERT DOLLAR, veteran steamship king, writes:

"I was much pleased with your column showing, among many other figures, that 52,000,000 people are depositors in various banks. This indicates that one-half the people in the United States are saving money. I had got the impression that we were getting improvident and spendthrift. But that disproves that. Then again, that about 20 per cent of the people still going to school is wonderful record.

"My impression is that education is being overdone. Instead of people learning individual pursuits, they are becoming educated, and coming out of the universities at 24 and and 25 years of age. They have lost the best time of their lives to learn the occupation they are going to follow—unless, of course, they are following some profession which requires higher and more intensive study, but that would apply to the minority.

"It is stimulating to read such figures as you presented."

A GOOD many people one meets far away from Wall Street are still undecided about buying stocks. They are waiting. In agricultural districts it is hard for the people to believe that the country can prosper when farm products bring low prices.

WHEAT FARMER WILL TURN TO FLAX

Largest Grain Grower in U. S. Will Change Crop on Vast Industrial Farm in West

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Thomas D. Campbell, the world's largest wheat farmer, though expecting substantially higher wheat prices after the recent precipitous slump, plans in the spring to turn from wheat to a commodity in which the anticipated profit margin will be larger.

At present the Campbell Farming Corporation has 30,000 acres in Montana planted in winter wheat, but when spring comes Mr. Campbell plans to turn his vast industrial farm to flax raising. He believes he can raise one bushel of flax for every two bushels of wheat, and make better net profits. I caught hold of Mr. Campbell while he was in New York to confer with bankers, and welcomed the opportunity to get a farmer's view of the agricultural outlook, now that politicians, businessmen, amateur economists, statisticians and speculators have had their say.

FORESEES BIG GROWTH

Incidentally, Mr. Campbell thinks that the acuteness of agricultural problems will hasten the development of big business in the realm of agriculture.

He predicts a surprisingly large flow of investment capital into farming in the next five years, and in 25 years he foresees farming corporations, which will resemble the United States Steel Corporation in stature.

The small farmer, Mr. Campbell concedes, will persist, but chiefly in the role of small truck farmer, where he will not have to hire outside labor.

The employer of labor, Mr. Campbell insists, will have to apply labor-saving devices, engineering skill and scientific methods to eliminate waste, and reduce operating costs.

Mr. Campbell told me that there are already 5,000 industrial farms in the United States, which are employing business methods in farming.

Mr. Campbell cited his own decision to switch to flax for the next crop as an indication of the operation of the new business philosophy in farming. By the way, he urges other farmers in the United States to consider the wisdom of following his leadership in rotating from wheat this spring into flax and perhaps soy beans.

STRONG FOR FLAX

Mr. Campbell is enthusiastic about flax, because in the first place it commands a higher price—about $3.40 a bushel. Secondly, America is not able to raise enough to meet its requirements, whereas it produces a vast surplus of wheat.

He believes it will take from three to five years for American farmers to catch up with the home demand for flax, on which there is a tariff of 65 cents a bushel at this time.

Mr. Campbell estimates the annual home consumption at 42,000,000 bushels, and the American production at not more than 28,000,000 bushels. He believes that any price over $2 a bushel for flax would be profitable.

Until recently Mr. Campbell had been skeptical of the outlook for wheat prices, but now is definitely of the opinion that bottom has been reached.

WHEAT TOO CHEAP

In explaining why he thought on economic grounds wheat prices should rise from recent depressed levels, Montana's industrial farmer remarked:

"On Tuesday, wheat was cheaper in relation to cost of production and land values than for any time in 20 years. One dollar wheat in Chicago means wheat at 68 cents a bushel in Montana, and an average price of 80 cents on the farms.

"Moreover, wheat prices lost some 60 cents a bushel in the last three months without any significant change in the statistical position of the commodity. There has been much talk of a great surplus, but history shows that such surpluses tend to disappear from the market when prices get low enough.

"Wheat at recent low prices has sold much below the cost of production on the average farm.

PRAISES FARM BOARD

"Ultimately, I think that the Farm Board is going to contribute more to the solution of the farm problem than has been done for years. Mr. Legge has used excellent judgment in his operations during the last three months.

"The competition from Russia has been exaggerated. Russia won't be an important export factor, in my opinion, for five years. The exports from Southern Russia have been offset somewhat by imports from Northern Russia."

Mr. Campbell said that inasmuch as farmers had sold nearly 85 per cent of their wheat before the slump they were not much affected, except sentimentally. Much of the wheat which farmers are still holding, he pointed out, was seed wheat.

The real purchasing power of farmers, Mr. Campbell pointed out, will depend on what prices prevail next July, when Kansas wheat comes on the market, and next September, when the wheat of the Northwest will be marketed.

Stock Exchange Topics

Sears, Roebuck February Sales Gain 3.2% Over 1929 Period.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & Co. reported for the second period of its new 13 month calendar, showing sales for the period ended February 26 last ran 3.2 per cent ahead of the same period of 1929. The report for the first eight weeks or two months, showed sales 6.2 per cent larger than a year ago. At the Montgomery Ward annual meeting, G. B. Everitt, president, reiterated his view that the company would show considerable profit improvement over 1929 this year with a seasonable volume of business. He holds current business conditions are "less favorable than we would like to see them," but stated the company is attempting to adjust its program in all departments to a level which will meet reduced consumer requirements.

The action of the marget itself is generally conceded as its strongest point in favor of the bull side. Since the beginning of the week it has been evident that trading has gone extremely dull when reaction has been in order, and while trading has not been abnormally heavy at any time, the fact remains that business has assumed considerably better proportions with the resumption of operation for the rise. This, it is argued, illustrates the strong technical position of the market, and moreover makes it apparent that stocks generally have remained in strong hands during the rise since the middle of January. Stocks evidently are held in the bulk by strong investment forces who find the market the most satisfactory means for employment of idle funds.

WHILE a few houses contend that their operations indicate a fair amount of public participation, the majority of the larger firms are quite frank in admitting that the market at the moment is a highly professional affair. Traders including the board room element, are generally given to following the line of least resistance as it develops in making their commitments. And moreover a small profit in in either direction is sufficient to satisfy the average trader at the moment. While it appears that the long side of the market offers the best opportunities for profit, the fact remains that the bear element frequently tests the fabric of the list in the hope of uncovering fresh weak positions, but thus far such operations have met with little or no success.

With preparations completed for the month-end interest and dividend payments pronounced ease prevailed in yesterday's money market. The call loan rate yielded quickly from the 4½ per cent renewal figure to 4 per cent. Prevailing easy conditions were ascribed principally to the piling up of funds in New York against checks which were scheduled to go out to corporation stock and bondholders overnight. But in money circles it was not expected the return of these checks toward the middle of next week would create any undue firmness. The average renewal rate for call loans for the month, incidentally was 4.21 per cent as against 4.74 per cent in January and 6.91 per cent in February, last year.

WHEAT continued to move forward rather spectacularly yesterday adding one to three cents a bushel to its already smart recovery from the low levels reached early in the week. For that reason figures on exports of wheat and cotton thus far this crop year are interesting. From August 1, to date cotton exports have totaled 5,323,000 bales or 810,000 bales less than a year ago. Wheat and flour exports from United States and Canada since July 1, have aggregated 218,000,000 bushels as against 416,190,000 bushels in the previous corresponding period. United States exports total 107,443,000 bushels against 111,000,000 bushels last year, while Canadian exports amount to only 110,812,000 bushels against 305,090,000 bushels. It is thus apparent that greatly stimulated export demand is necessary to make for permanent advance in both markets at least until there is assurance of shorter crops in the approaching season.

Eastman Kodak apparently has been meeting excellent buying on several occasions recently. The action of the stock has brought out vague rumors of important new developments for the company and which should result in increased earnings in the future. Long-pull holders have maintained their positions for many months on the theory that the issue is in the group which is likely to show continued upward trend over a period of time because of the stability of the company's business.

HOTELS ATTACK SWINDLERS

Prosecution of bad check passers and hotel swindlers in a concerted campaign to reduce heavy losses incurred each year throughout Western Pennsylvania today was begun by the Pittsburgh Hotel Credit Men's Association.

W. F. Smith

One of the first prosecutions announced was issuance of a warrant through Alderman George Anderson for W. F. Smith, of Columbus, charged with passing a worthless check for $33 against the Fort Pitt Hotel. Systematic exchange of warnings and information will be maintained through all members, with monthly meetings planned to further increase their activities.

24 PIPE FIRMS IN MERGER

A $30,000,000 merger of manufacturers of vitrified products including sewer pipes, drains and power line conduits, has been announced by A. B. Andrews, industrial engineer, of 5506 Kentucky avenue. Andrews made the announcement in Cleveland yesterday. He said the merger involves 24 companies in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana.

The new firm will be known as the Ceramic and Steel Products Company and will seek incorporation papers in the state of Delaware, Andrews declared. Pittsburgh and New York capital is financing the deal, it was stated.

Three groups will comprise the corporation. The first group, of four plants, will be for the manufacture of hot taps for steel mills, tubes and roller bearings; the second, of eight plants, will be for the manufacture of electric products and the third group will include 12 plants for the manufacture of glazed terra cotta pipe and standards, flue lining and other ceramic products.

TERMINAL SITE HEARING HELD

Director Edward G. Lang and representatives of river interests have appeared before Lieut. Col. Jarvis J. Bain United States district engineer, to urge the war department's approval for the proposed rail-river terminal on the Monongahela River at Hays. The hearing was held yesterday. There were no objections to the proposal. Previous to the hearing Col. Bain had inspected the site.

The Hays project and the river terminal proposed for the Ohio River near the Manchester bridge constitute the two best sites for city terminals, Director Lang said. Local river men attended and gave their approval of the two terminals.

HONOR TURNER WITH DINNER

Burgess William M. Turner, of Wilkinsburg, was honor guest at a testimonial dinner held last night in the Penn Lincoln Hotel. Approximately 250 guests attended. Former Councilman Dougald R. Ferguson was toastmaster.

Speakers included Judges Harry H. Rowand, Ambrose B. Reed and Elder Marshall, former Assistant District Attorney Benjamin Lencher, State Senator William D. Mansfield, Coroner W. J. McGregor, William Barnett, State Representatives Frank Riddle, Arthur Storer and John H. McClure, Burgess Grant Ritchie of Avalon, Burgess John Franz of Forest Hills, former County Commissioner James Houlahen, former Congressman William H. Coleman and former Assistant United States Attorney Ralph H. Smith.

5 Men in Army Truck Sought After Holdup

Five men riding in a United States army truck were being sought by police today for an attempted holdup on the North Side this morning. A. C. Betz, of 517 West Burgess street, reported to police that the truck drove alongside the curb while he was walking in Wilson avenue, at Drumm street and the five held him up. They left without loot as Betz was without money or valuables.

Sale of 17 Red Cabs Delayed by Sheriff

Sheriff's sale of the property of the Red Cab Company, set for next Friday, has been called off, it was announced today. Ben Paul Brasley, attorney for the plaintiffs, went to the sheriff's office late yesterday and asked for a stay in the proceedings. The company's 17 cabs were to be sold to satisfy judgments.

March in Like Lamb; Lion On Way

March entered like a lamb today, with the mercury soaring to the upper fifties. But tomorrow will be different, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman predicted. Colder weather with possible light rain or snow flurries is due from the west.

Below freezing temperatures are likely Sunday night.

ARMY OF FIRST-SACKERS IN 34 YEARS

IT IS rather a strange coincidence that, just as Gus Suhr, Pittsburgh's newest first baseman, heads for the Pirate training camp at Paso Robles, a report comes that Harry Davis may return to baseball as general manager of Harrisburg's New York-Pennsylvania League club, with duties similar to those of Billy Evans, of the Cleveland Indians. For Davis and Suhr represent the first and the latest chapters in the story of the most persistent jinx that ever pursued a major league ball club in connection with the filling of any one position. Suhr, following more than 50 others, is about to grapple with a first-base hoodoo that originated with the coming of Davis to the Bucs almost 34 years ago.

Gus Suhr.

While the Pirates and Giants were playing a double-header at old Exposition Park here on July 25, 1896, Managers Connie Mack and Arthur Irwin got together between games and closed a deal whereby Mack traded First Baseman Jake Beckley to New York for Davis and $1,000. Davis did not make good, and after being carried as a utility man for two years, was released to the Louisville Nationals in July of 1898.

EVER since the departure of Beckley first base has been a source of trouble to local managers. With the exception of Kitty Bransfield, who was on the job for four years, and Charley Grimm, who held it down for five, none of the small army of men tried there has lasted any great length of time. One thing or another has invariably bobbed up to render a shift advisable.

Here are only the more prominent of the numerous players, excluding emergency men, who have bucked the hoodo and passed on since the failure of Davis: Abel Lezotte, Denny Lyons, John Rothfuss, John Ganzel, Tom O'Brien, Bill Clark, George Fox, Frank Dillon, Dick Cooley, Kitty Bransfield, Billy Clancy, Del Howard, Joe Nealon, Bill Abstein, Allan Storke, Harry Swacina, Otis Clymer, Jimmy Kane, Warren Gill, Ham Hyatt, Bud Sharpe, Jack Flynn, Bill McKechnie, John Kading, Fred Hunter, Brown Keene, Maurice Kelliher, Jack Miller, Ed Konetchy, Dom Johnston, Bill Hinchman, George Kelly, Bunny Brief, Fred Mollwitz, Ray Miller, Hans Wagner, Ben Shaw, Vic Saier, George Whitted, Charley Grimm, Everett Barnes, George Grantham, Stuffy McInnis, Al Niehaus, Joe Harris, Willis Windle and Earl Sheely.

EVEN if Pittsburgh's hockey franchise in the National League is not shifted to another city next winter, the game between the Pirates and Les Canadiens tonight will be the farewell local number of the present season, at least.

And it will mark the final appearance here of several members of Frank Frederickson's outfit, the best-known player slated for a transfer being Herb Drury, who holds the record for hockey service in one city. About the only men aside from Frederickson likely to be retained are Milks, Darragh, Lowrey, Jarvis, Barton, Fraser and possibly Miller.

Herb Drury.

THE action of the Miami Boxing Commission in unanimously upholding Referee Lou Magnolia's decision, in which Jack Sharkey was declared the winner of Thursday night's fiasco on a technical knockout and Phil Scott's claim of foul was disallowed, was only what had been generally expected. The commission could not have done anything else. There is no question that Magnolia did the right thing in forcing Scott to continue after an examination had failed to disclose any injury, and neither is there any question that the Englishman quit cold later after receiving a fair punch in the stomach.

SCOTT was even worse than Jess Willard in that respect. Willard was the only man ever to lose a championship while sitting. Scott was at least able to stand when he quit. It would have been far more to the Briton's credit had he been knocked out, rather than to lose the way he did.

The opinion sticks that Scott went in with the sole idea of trying to pull his old trick of winning on a foul, which he had managed to get with no fewer than six times in previous bouts. Many are inclined to blame his manager, Jimmy Johnston, more than the boxer himself. Johnston's methods have been open to question more than once. The fight game could get along very well with fewer Scotts and Johnstons.

MEANWHILE the fact stands out, following the Florida fiasco, that the boxing powers are as far as ever from putting a stop to the foul and foul-claiming evils. The practice may be expected to continue until an example is made of some prominent fighter at fault by causing him to forfeit a lot of money.

There is no excuse for such violations of the rules by experienced boxers when they get in the ring. It is only a dodge to get the gilt the easiest way. You never hear of foul blows being landed in training bouts or among the amateurs. Jim McGirr, McKeesport promoter, offers some interesting evidence. Like other promoters, he has had his share of foul troubles in professional shows, but he estimates that he has staged a total of 245 amateur bouts without one having ever been ended by an illegal blow.

George Harper.

TWO former big league ball players, one an ex-Pirate, have carried spring holdouts in the Pacific Coast League to such a stage that they have been notified they must accept what has been offered or remain out of baseball. They are Outfielder George Harper and Bill Skiff, a Buccaneer catcher for a short time under George Gibson's management in 1921. Los Angeles obtained Harper from the Braves in the deal for Outfielder Walter Berger, and purchased Skiff from Jersey City after the recent untimely death of Catcher Gus Sandberg. The club officials say they offered Harper top salary for the league and are willing to give Skiff the same pay he received from Jersey City last year, but Harper wants $8,500 and Skiff demands an increase. "I won't care if they never show up," says President Joe Patrick, of the Angeles. "I think our club is strong enough to struggle along without them if they don't come to terms. As far as I'm concerned, it's either sign at the terms offered or quit baseball for Harper and Skiff."

WHILE on the subject of minor league contracts, it may be timely to note that today is the deadline on the sending of parchments to players in all minor leagues operating under the National agreement. The rules require that such contracts be in the mails on or before March 1.

Unless this is done, any reserved player who is not tendered a contract for the 1930 season will have grounds on which he may be declared a free agent. Major league players annually have the same right to freedom unless they are tendered contracts mailed not later than February 15. A postal registration of that date holds them.

JOHNNY MORRISON, former Pirate pitcher with the Robins, gives Babe Adams credit for showing him how to condition himself properly for a season on the slab. "When I first came into the majors with the Pirates, Adams gave me some valuable pointers," says Morrison. "He told me to get my wind, legs and pitching arm into shape slowly and at the same time.

"I took his advice, and it was good. Later on, I experimented

PITT, DUKES SEE ACTION IN EAST

By JESS CARVER.

Judge Walter P. Steffen, known familiarly as Wally, deserts his duties as a Superior Court judge in Chicago today to attend the annual football luncheon of the Pittsburgh and Varsity Clans of Carnegie Tech at the William Penn Hotel, and at this luncheon, in the capacity of advisory coach of Carnegie, name the man who is to lead the Tartans on the gridiron next fall.

Wally Steffen

The appointing of a captain for next fall is the feature of today's affair, at which a near capacity crowd is expected to put in an appearance. Besides the selection of a leader, the varsity and freshmen gridders of last fall will be awarded monograms and numerals.

CHOICE IN DOUBT

Unless the Judge takes Bob Waddell or Buddy Overend into a corner today prior to time for the luncheon and tips 'em off as to whom he has selected to be his captain, his formal announcement will come without even a hint being dropped before hand. Head Coach Bob doesn't know Buddy is in the dark and Der Maxie Hanum, Tech's new publicity boss can't even hazard a guess. The only thing anyone knows is that the new captain will be a senior.

This matter of appointing a captain is as serious, if not more so, than electing one might be. The coach has to be cussed certain that he names a man who will have the respect and regard of the boys; appointment of whom will not cause envy on the part of other key men and who will be able to make the ball club. The Judge made no mistake in naming Johnny Dresher last year, but his task, unless he appoints John for a second term, appears to have been a lot tougher this time.

CAGERS CLOSE SEASON

Carnegie is in for a very full day all around. The swimming team, following its meet with Wash-Jeff last night, see further action this afternoon, meeting the University of Cincinnati splashers in the Tartan pool, 2:30.

Tonight, Coach Ralph Hogan brings his first year as varsity basketball coach at Tech to a close, sending his Tartans out to meet Geneva in the Tech gym. This game ends the season for the Skibos, and unless they down the Covenanters, they'll have the doubtful distinction of having won one major ball game out of some 16 played.

PLAY IN EAST

Pitt and the Dukes are in action in the East, the Panthers meeting the Army Cadets at West Point, with Cal Bolster handling the whistle, and the Irish engaging New York City College in New York. Last night the Dukes played Manhattan, while Pitt was traveling.

All other tri-state district college quintets are idle tonight, for a bloody wonder.

Capt. Pete Bowen, Eddie Knoblock and Everett Utterback are representing Pitt in the I. C. A. A. A. A. annual indoor championships in New York tonight. Pete is to run in the 70-yard championship run, where the Panthers captain is accorded a fine chance of winning. Utterback will broad and high jump and race in the high hurdles and Knoblock will compete in both the high and lows.

TOMORROW—HOW OYSTERS MULTIPLY.

GOB MAY MEET MAX JUNE 26

MIAMI, Fla. — (AP.) — Jack Sharkey, no matter how much his technical knockout victory over Phil Scott may be disputed, will fight Max Schmelling, the clouting German, at the Yankee Stadium, probably on June 26, in a 15-round bout to decide the world heavyweight championship.

Frank J. Buren, general manager of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, in the midst of checking up the extent of the financial fiasco, made this announcement to confirm previous plans and dispose of rumors that Sharkey, because of his poor showing against Scott, might be required to engage in another test bout, possibly against Tuffy Griffiths.

At the same time, Bruen stated emphatically that Scott had fought his last fight in this country so far as the Garden Corporation is concerned. The British champion was accepted reluctantly for the match, because of his reputation for figuring in fouls and his lack of color and drawing power. Bruen considers that his showing was "the last straw."

SAYLOR LACES MORETTI

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Ol' Man River Homer Gebert, the Belgian-American box-fighter of Charleroi, keeps going on beating up the youngsters. He admits to being 26 years old, but it seems to the oldest inhabitants around here that he has been fighting at least that long under the ring de guerre of Young Saylor. Last night he introduced himself forcibly to young Gene Moretti, of Atlantic City, in the 10-round main bout before a packed house in the rearranged Moose Temple and walked in with the decision over the man who only eight nights before at McKeesport, had handed out a lacing to Mickey Solmen, of New Castle, who is a fighter of parts.

What Young Saylor didn't do to Moretti in winning every round but the ninth can't be found in the book. Boxing like cagy old Jack Britton at the latter's best, he left-handed Moretti silly and at times made the elongated Easterner look like a novice as left jabs and hooks sent his head snapping back and other lefts raked his body. Gene just simply couldn't get going and made a showing as miserable as his opponent's was brilliant. He appeared to be handicapped by the small ring, frequently finding his back to the ropes at critical moments or getting himself entangled in the strands. Saylor never let him set, hounding him continually about the ring and nailing him at will with that educated left, which probably can do more things on an opponent's anatomy than any other left-hander in the business.

ONE ROUND TO LOSER

Moretti won the ninth round when he threw caution to the winds and banged away with both hands to the body, momentarily hurting and slowing down Saylor. As soon as Saylor got back his wind, however, he dictated the fighting again to the finish.

In the eighth round, Moretti tipped off what may have been the real reason for his bad fight. Then, for the only time in the battle, Saylor led with a right for the

WEIGAND, GUBA LOSE

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., March 1.—(AP.) Billy Jones, 174, of Philadelphia, won a close decision over Art Weigand, Buffalo, in the 10-round windup here last night. Tony Stetz, Wilkes-Barre, won the judges' decision over Jack Guba, of Pittsburgh, in six rounds.

MEINE HURT AS LEG STOPS HARD DRIVE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, March 1.—Cool and moist weather to the contrary notwithstanding, the Pirate pitchers today were in such a fine form after a week of preparation that Manager Jewel Ens was ready to inform the veterans of the staff that they could begin to let fly with their "hooks" and "swifters."

Frenchy Kremer, Jesse Petty, Ervin Brame, Heinie Meine, Larry French, Steve Swetonic and others this morning were a bit sore and stiff from their exertions on the mound yesterday, but all of these first choice boys came through their first batting practice drill in a satisfactory manner. They confined themselves to fast ball deliveries.

The only sour note of the day took place when Heinie Meine was felled by a hard drive. The ball struck the big right hander on the left leg and he had to leave the scene. Heinie was still limping this morning and it is likely that he will be kept off the slab for a day or two.

LONG WORKOUT

The sun of yesterday was hot enough to make the athletes scamper all over the park, and there was no let up from 10:30 until almost 1 o'clock. Manager Ens has deviated from his plan of two workouts a day to one long session, after he had run against some wet weather.

Ens thinks he will have any number of veterans and rookies in shape to give the second squad some interesting drills at the plate. The infielders and outfielders are speeding toward camp, they being due to reach town tomorrow afternoon.

The first general workout of the entire cast is set for Monday morning. The new arrivals will take things easily the first day, yet it is altogether likely that Ens will start right into the batting drills at the beginning.

Ens will feature batting and infield practice today. The skipper yesterday put his first defense rookies through a remarkable session, the feature of which was the performance given by Ben Sankey, Charley Engle and Stuart Clarke. All three of these lads are clever shortstops, but Clarke is being groomed to act as understudy to Capt. Traynor and therefore is confining his activities to the hot corner.

SANKEY IMPRESSIVE

Once again the doings of Sankey was the high spot of a Pittsburgh fielding session. Engle was just about as impressive as the rangier kid, but there is a certain something to the boy of lesser experience that makes him stand out. No candidate for the shortfield position since the days of Wagner, with the exception of Glenn Wright, impressed one like the boy who is battling for a berth at present.

Sankey's snappy underhand throw is exceptionally accurate and he has a method of rushing in on ground balls that makes the oldtimer shout in glee. When he starts after a batted ball, he has a big gallery. The young man threatens to stop the show every time he goes to the short field.

HOLDOUTS STILL OUT

Nothing new on either case, declared Vice President Sam Dreyfuss.

ALIQUIPPA, AMBRIDGE TANGLE TONIGHT

FIFTH AVENUE TAKES LEAD IN CITY SERIES

A repeater from 1929 and a school that never before has won its way into the tourney clash tonight in the second first round game of the annual W. P. I. A. L. championship elimination tournament on the Pitt Stadium floor as Aliquippa and Ambridge representing Sections IV and II respectively tangle.

Moe Rubenstein

Both quintets came through their sectional campaigns on top without having to go through play-offs. Aliquippa won handdown in Section IV, while Ambridge, though pressed all the way, beat out Bellevue in Section II, a fete not without merit as it was Bellevue that slipped into the final of last year's tourney with Homestead.

COACHES RIVALS

Moe Rubenstein coach at Ambridge, and Nate Lippe, the mentor at Aliquippa, are and always have been, great basketball rivals, although they both played on the same college team, they spent prep days battling with each other and have carried their rivalry into the semi-professional game, being County League opponents at present.

Tonight's game will be Ambridge's first appearance in W. P. I. A. L. title play, and the Bridgeworkers are correspondingly thrilled. Coach Rubenstein has done a fine job with only fair material, and has put out a smart and alert ball club, one that will give Aliquippa and any team they may meet, if the Section IV five is beaten, a merry old ball game.

Both schools will send hopped-up delegations of fans to the Stadium, Aliquippa planning to transport its rooters via special trains.

FIFTH WINS FIRST

Fifth Avenue had to put on a house-on-fire finish in the first game of the series for the city title in the Stadium yesterday afternoon to down the stubborn South Hills quintet, Section II titleholders. Fifth won the ball game by a 20-16 count, but not without the toughest sort of an uphill battle.

South Hills, rated the underdog in the series, flashed a fine attack and a strong defense during the first half, and led by an 8-to-3 count at the half. The score at the end of the first period was 7 to 2 and they each scored a foul in the second quarter.

The Uptowners rallied like the champions they are in the third period and with Marty Reiter, Lou Skeegan and Shorty Levine leading and directing the attack, they tallied 15 points to South Hills' two. The three-to-two rally of the Tunnelties in the final stanza fell four points short of deadlocking the tussle.

Fifth avenue failed to get a field goal during the first half, South Hills setting a record of having held its opponents scoreless for four consecutive periods. Perry did not score from the court during the last half of the play-off game Tuesday. The lineup:

Fifth—20		South Hills—16
Skeegan (C)	F	Viglietti
Levine	F	Gruber
Brenner	C	Regan
Friedeman	G	(C) Rigo
Reiter	G	Kessler

Fifth Avenue ..... 8 | 12 | 1 | 20
South Hills ..... 7 | 2 | 7 | 16

Substitution—Kress for Viglietti. Field goals—Skeegan 2, Levine, Brenner, Reiter 3, Regan 2, Rigo, Kessler. Fouls—Fifth, 6 out of 12; South Hills, 8 out of 13. Referee—Cal. Bolster.

Defeating South, 16 to 14, the Herron Hill team won the City Junior League title yesterday afternoon. The score at the half was tied at 5-5, but Herron pulled out in front during the last two periods. The lineup:

Herron Hill—16.		South, 14.
Brown	F	Lepkoski
Clement	F	Harris
Rosenthal	C	Kurakowski
Grant	G	Jung
Arles	G	Smith

Substitutions—Jackson for Rosenthal, Spatovich for Guerrie. Field goals—Clement 3, Rosenthal, Grant, Lepkoski, Kurakowski, Harris 2, Fouls—Herron Hill, 8 out of 12, South, 4 out of 11. Referee—Doney. Time of quarters—4 minutes.

RANKIN DEFEATED

Three W. P. I. A. L. sectional play-off games were staged last night, the victors in each contest clinching their section title.

On the Stadium floor, North Braddock turned in an 18-15 win over Jock Rosenberg's Rankin quintet to win the Section VIII crown. Up on the Bluff, Coraopolis took down the Section XI gonfalon by beating McKees Rocks 26 to 19 and at New Kensington, the Ken-High passers downed Harbrack 15 to 8 to sew up the flag in Section I.

Scott—18		Rankin—15
Tomko	F	Burker
Kohler	F	D. Silverstein
V. Bache	C	Makarsky
J. Bache	G	Katz
McMullen	G	M. Silverstein

Substitutions—Kuno for V. Bache, Field goals—Tomko 2, J. Bache 3, McMullen, V. Bache, Burker 3, Katz 2. Fouls—Scott, 6 out of 11, Rankin, 7 out of 17. Referee—Wentzel and White.

N. Kensington—15		Har-Brack—8
Wilson	F	Fuscheriak
McCandless	F	Linhart

BUC HURLERS SHOW FORM

fuss, of the Pirates, today in discussing the team's two holdouts, Burleigh Grimes and Dick Bartell.

News of the status of Dare Devil Dick startled the Pirate camp and many of the veterans are "buzzin'" on the ultimatum delivered by the peppery infielder to his bosses.

Bartell returned several contracts unsigned and states there is no use of further negotiations until the team is able to meet his demands. Although the officials do not care to go into details on the figures, Dick apparently is holding out for a sum that can hardly be so far from "five figures."

The little infielder last season played for a sum between $3,000 and $4,000. The management probably has offered to add a couple of thousands to his last year's check, but Dick is striking at a higher target.

BISSI-BYERS TAKE LEAD

Bissi and Byers, of the South Side, took the lead in the doubles competition of the annual Southern duckpin tournament, being rolled in the Recreation Alleys. Their combined score of 1,081 gave them a good lead over Haas and Wandel, who were in second place with 1,068. Thes ingles and five-men event leaders held their places.

The final rolling will be staked this evening, beginning at 8 o'clock.

COLUMBIA WINS

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP.)—A strong finish in the second half enabled Columbia to defeat Yale, 46 to 29, here last night and strengthen its hold on the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League lead.

ALLEGHENY VICTOR

GREENVILLE, Pa., March 1.—Thiel College faded in the final half to drop its closing home game of the season to Allegheny College, here last night. The lineup:

Allegheny—33.		Thiel—23.
Bair	F	Morris
Dennison	F	Wardle
Dodd	C	Frampton
Gerberk	G	McCoy
Berger	G	Bell

Substitutes—Brown, Harter, Lawson, Reinoll. Field goals—Harter, Morris, Wardle 2, Frampton 2, McCoy, Bell, Bair, Dennison 2, Lewis 2, Gerberk 2, Berger. Fouls—Allegheny, 7 out of 8; Thiel, 8 out of 8. Referee—Fitting.

head and Gene crossed him solidly with his own right, which for the most time remained cocked and inactive. It seemed Moretti had been lying back all of this time waiting for Saylor to let go with a right to the head so he could blaze away with his own in return. But Saylor isn't that sort of a boxer. In fact, although he used it more last night than usually, his right is as ineffective a weapon as his left is effective. Throughout he outgeneraled the waiting Moretti, who probably never saw so many left hands in one bout in his entire career.

In his last previous appearance in the same ring, Saylor handed Tommy Maico an almost similar cuffing, but failed to get a single vote from the judges and the referee. Last night he deservedly got all of them and he will be brought back for another shot at a good opponent on an early date. He weighed 149½ pounds against 151 for Moretti, and also conceded advantages in height and reach.

SMACKEY IS WINNER

Johnny Smackey of Canonsburg, and Andy Andrucci, of the East End, put on another slambang fight in the semi-final, with Smackey winning the judges' decision, while the referee voted for a draw. Last week, in the same ring, Smackey received an undeserved referee's decision over Andy, who demanded a return bout. Although the crowd booed the verdict last night so boisterously that the announcer could not be heard when introducing the main bout principals, the decision in favor of Smackey was fair. Andrucci did the greater portion of the forcing, but Smackey was the harder and straighter hitter, and, in the third, fourth and sixth rounds, he had Andrucci weak and bending over from body smashes. Incidentally, Andrucci also finished up this way in their first meetings, but his early lead should have saved him on that occasion. He weighed 134½ pounds and Smackey 135¾ for last night's fight.

Jackie Murray, rangy Negro, of the Hill, 142 pounds, did a lot of fancy shaping up and posing instead of fighting against an undersized, stocky foe in the person of Abe Dempsey, of New Kensington, in the six-round second bout and took a pasting in every round but the first and sixth and drew a warning from the referee to get to work. Dempsey looked like a setup as Murray smacked him around in the first round, but thereafter it was Murray, who can do much better if he only will, who was the chump. Judge Frank Ferris called it a draw, but the two other votes went to Dempsey.

Peaches Gallagher, of Swissvale, Bunny Buntach's latest protege, made a hit with the crowd by the manner in which he carried the fight to Jackie Griffiths, Negro, of the Hill, and finally floored him for a count of nine and then knocked him out late in the fourth round of the opener. The finishing punch was a pip, a right flush on the jaw that sent Griffiths pitching sideways to fall on his face. Jackie pulled himself up too late to beat the count and was in a sorry condition as the referee led him to his corner. Both weighed 132 pounds.

Al Grayber referred all of the bouts and Frank Brown and Frank Ferris were the judges, with Bill Schuster the announcer and Chappie Couch the timer. The rearrangement of the place, with the ring extending out from the footlights and seats turned to face it, is a fine improvement and drew much favorable comment from the spectators.

Between Rounds

Jackie Rodgers and Howard Mayberry box the windup at the Moose Temple next Friday night and Benny Schwartz and Willie Davies likely will be in the feature bout the following Friday instead of the previously announced battle between Cowboy DeLuca and Dominick Proho.

Black Bill and Midget Wolgast will meet in their much-delayed flyweight championship tournament final in Madison Square Garden, New York, March 21.

The new Duquesne Garden Boxing Club, which opened its doors last Wednesday night with the Jimmy Belmont-Vincent Hambright fight, now is at work on a Freddie Mueller-Tommy Maloy windup for next Wednesday night.

There will be no boxing show at McKeesport next week.

Seven amateur boxing bouts are scheduled under the auspices of the North Braddock American Legion Post in the Avalon Borough Hall tonight.

The Homewood Progressive Club will stage its second amateur boxing show of the year, January 6th, the night of March 18.

Hans Roberts and Ted Yarnes have been matched to box the eight-round windup at East Liverpool, O., March 11. Sammy Faris and Frankie Fouts will box in the semi-final, and Kenny Davis and Frankie Lenti in one of the other preliminaries.

DUKES BEATEN IN EAST, 26-22

NEW YORK, March 1.—Manhattan College registered its twelfth victory in 16 games by defeating Duquesne University of Pittsburgh, 26 to 22, in the Jasper gymnasium at Manhattan College last night. Manhattan led at half time, 17 to 12.

Manhattan led until 10 minutes before the close, when the visitors went ahead 20 to 19 on a field goal by McGeever. Manhattan's second team was inserted and came to the rescue, field baskets by McCormick and Keber and a foul by McCormick making the score 24 to 19. Thereafter the Jaspers were never headed. The lineup:

Manhattan—26		Duquesne—22.
J. Ryan	F	Abele
Noonan	F	Benedict
Fallaher	C	McGeever
C. Ryan	G	Lisko
Shand	G	Stefanic

Substitutes—McCormick, Hinch, Keber, McGeever, Kreyak, Cleary, Keber, Leonard, Perry, Vernon. Field goals—J. Ryan, 2; McCormick, Keber 2, Shand, Keber, Benedict 2, McGeever 2, Stefanic 3, Perry 1. Fouls—Manhattan 8, Dukes 4.

By JULIUS LEVIN

Two important games are scheduled in the Allegheny County League tonight, the Duquesne Lafayettes invading Charleroi to engage the Lions, while the Fintex team appears in Homestead to battle the Ackermans.

The Duquesne Lafayettes must scorea victory over the Lions to tie the Goldensons for first place in the second half of the County League race, while the losing team in the Fintex-Ackerman battle faces elemination from the race.

FINTEX IMPROVES

The Fintex team has been coming along in fine style and as it still has a chance of overtaking the leaders, the downtown passers are expected to show their best form tonight. A defeat for the Lafayettes would almost clinch the laurels for the Goldensons. The champs, however, should have no trouble continuing their winning streak.

Two old rivals come together in the only West Penn League contest, the Ray E. Schneiders, league champions, opposing the North Side Community House on the latter's floor. The Schneiders meet the J. J. Veronas at Columbus Temple next Saturday night.

ELIZABETH BEATEN

The Allentown Club took a one-sided game from Elizabeth, 43 to 29, in the County League last night. I. K. S. came through in the Central, with a 40-21 win over National Music.

The I. K. S. Juniors topped the Flying Dutchmen, Penn Highway, 40 to 27, in the Greater Pittsburgh circuit.

Pressed Steel won a C. & I. contest from Drave, 39 to 28. The Mt. Washington Triangles defeated Homestead Library, 43 to 29, in the A. A. U. tourney. hTe lineup of the County League game:

I tried neglecting my arm while working on my legs and discovered my arm was not in the condition it should have been in when I tried to use it."

Tommy Burns.

TOMMY BURNS, former heavyweight fistic champion, now owner of a restaurant in New York's middle Seventies, rates the heavy champs since John L. Sullivan's time in this order: First, Jim Jeffries; second, Jack Johnson; third, Bob Fitzsimmons; fourth, Jim Corbett; fifth, Jack Dempsey; sixth, Gene Tunney; seventh, Jess Willard. He excludes himself and omits Sullivan because he never saw him fight. "Jeffries, big, rugged and strong, was particularly effective because of his crouch," Burns is quoted. "Johnson was the greatest defensive fighter and picked off or smothered punches before they were fairly started. Fitz was a good boxer and a terrific hitter, with an especially good fighting brain. Corbett was the cleverest boxer and revolutionized the sport. Dempsey, a savage fighter, had the hardest punch that any man ever carried in a left hand coming out of a weave. Tunney ranked next to Corbett in sheer cleverness. Willard lacked the fighting or boxing skill of the others, but was a physical marvel."

Sport Vignettes

Things might have been different down in Miami if the Madison Square Garden Corporation had not permitted Jack Sharkey to name his own opponent and to select, of all persons, Phil Scott . . . The Garden people at first chose the very rough and tough Tuffy Griffiths, but Sharkey said nay, nay Pauline . . . Tuffy can punch and Sharkey doesn't like punchers . . . He's a murderer against a fellow who can't hit or has a weak heart . . . He knocked out Tommy Loughran in a hurry because he knew Tommy couldn't hurt him and waded in and loaded up his attack . . . He took Philip because he knew the Englishman lacked intestinal fortitude . . . The thing was a flop and deserved to be, the same as the Gene Tunney-Tom Heeney battle . . . Tunney picked Heeney as the perfect foil against whom to make his farewell appearance in the ring . . . Gene knew his Heeney and Sharkey knew his Scott . . . Tunney unbuttoned himself of some first-class fighting opinions while in Miami awaiting the Sharkey fight . . . Went over the ground of his second fight with Dempsey in Chicago and especially his Long Count knockdown . . . "A really game fighter never hears the count of 10," said Gene, "if he is able to get up" . . . "And if he's smart he'll not be ashamed to take a count of nine when he's knocked down" . . . "Those nine seconds belong to him and not to his opponent; they are a respite" . . . "Only a foolish or stupid boxer with a false sense of pride will jump up at once and be easy prey for another knockdown and possibly a speedy knockout" . . . Of such thoughts are champions made. It is plain that Gene did his own thinking in the ring and it is no mystery how he managed to climb to the top and outsmart Dempsey in both of their fights . . . Another Tunney observation is that a good punch is the best defense . . . He cites Tommy Loughran as an example of a boxer who failed because he lacked a punch with which to make his opponents respect him.—HARRY KECK.

By CARL W. SHATTO.

An exceptionally interesting page will be written into Pittsburgh's hockey history this evening when the Pirates meet Les Canadiens, of Montreal, at Duquesne Garden.

Certain of the reasons why the fray can be regarded as one of unusual importance are as follows:

1.—It is to be the last National League game of the season here.

2.—It will mark the passing from Pittsburgh of about six members of the local "old guard" of hockey.

3.—Bert McCaffrey, traded to the Candiens for Gordon Fraser a few weeks ago, is to make his first appearance here in an enemy uniform. Marty Burke and Roy Worters, other former Bucs, also will be in the Flying Frenchmen's lineup.

4.—The regular program will be augmented by exhibitions of fancy, trick and comedy skating by the team of Colean and Ake and by a ceremony just before the start of the battle, at which local admirers of McCaffrey will present their favorite a suitable gift.

GAME TRANSFERRED

Further manipulation of the regular schedule, late yesterday, is responsible for tonight's joust being the last league battle on the local slate. The original chart calls for Chicago to appear here next Saturday, but the duel with the Hawks has been transferred to Fort Erie, Ont., the Bucs' training "camp."

The fray with the New York Rangers, which was to have been played here on Saturday, March 15, has been transferred to New York and will be played there on Sunday, March 16. The finale of the 1929-30 campaign, with Detroit, which was to have been played here on March 18, has been shifted to Buffalo, and will be played there on that date.

About six of the boys who will be playing for Pittsburgh tonight will be playing in livery other than that of the Pirates next season, Manager Frank Frederickson, during a recent scouting trip through Canada, signed five young Canucks to play for the Bucs next season, and arranged to have about 15 others come here for tryouts at the start of the 1930-31 race.

MANY RELEASED

The wholesale importation of new talent will result in about half of the members of the present Buc squad being released, and it is generally understood that certain of the old favorites are among those who will be "given the gate."

Indications are that a capacity crowd will witness this last act of an exceptionally disastrous local season, for the game would stack up as an exceptionally attractive one even if though it were devoid of the unusual features that it boasts. The appearance of the Flying Frenchmen, the most colorful club in the ice sport, ever has been the signal for a big turnout of local hockey enthusiasts, and the thrills which the Canadiens provided when they battled the Bucs to a 3-3 draw when they last appeared here served to enhance their great popularity.

WORTERS IN GOAL

Worters, who tended the Pittsburgh nets for man years, has been borrowed by the invaders from the New York Americans to fill the gap caused by the injury of Hainsworth, the Frenchmen's regular goaler. McCaffrey and Burke, who saw plenty of service here, will be in front of Worters, and Morenz, the speed king, and Joliat, whose deadly shooting is matched only by his trickiness, will be on the visitors' front line.

It is not likely that Manager Frank Frederickson will elect to revamp the locals' lineup for their last home appearance. The Bucs have engaged in a spirited workout each day since they returned from Boston, on Wednesday, and are primed to ring down the curtain with a victory. The probable lineup:

Pirates.		Canadiens
Miller	G	Worters
MacKinnon	D	C. Mantha
Mike	D	McCarthy
Fraser	C	Morenz
Darragh	W	LaRocheIle
Lowrey	W	Joliat

Spares—Pirates: Dugay, Jarvis, Barton, Maloney, Smith, Spring. Canadiens: Burke, G. Mantha, Wasson, Carson, Mondou, Desrosiers, LaPine, Ledoir.

PAIGE COPS TWO TITLES

Lincoln Paige, of the Superior Club, captured two crowns, the light-heavyweight and the heavyweight, as the Negro amateur championship tournament was brought to a close at the Boys' Club, in Lawrenceville. The summary:

112-pound class—Cleveland Wright, Clairton, won by default.

118-pound class—Billy Hatch, Superior A. C., defeated Wright, Clairton, three rounds, decision.

126-pound class—Sammy Burns, Superior A. C., defeated James Kemper, Superior A. C., three rounds, decision.

175-pound class—Lincoln Paige, Superior A. C., won from Theodore Brown, Superior A. C., two rounds.

Heavyweight class—Lincoln Paige, Superior A. C., won from N. Marcus, unattached, three rounds.

How Sharkey Knocked Out Phil Scott

JACK SHARKEY — REFEREE MAGNOLIA — PHIL SCOTT

Finish of the Miami heavyweight fizzle Thursday night, showing Scott helpless on the ropes and telling Referee Lou Magnolia he cannot continue. This occurred in the third round after he had repeatedly claimed foul. Sharkey was declared the winner by a technical knockout.

SHARKEY — REFEREE MAGNOLIA — SCOTT

Scott claiming the foul in the third round on which the referee halted the bout to give him a rest, ordering him to continue under pain of disqualification. Sharkey, chased to a corner, jumped about in great excitement, denying he had fouled his opponent. The end followed immediately after the bout was resumed.

CORONER'S AIDE TO RETIRE

Chief Deputy Coroner Henry T. Ewing today was to formally give up his duties and retire, having preferred resignation to accepting a demotion. After serving 22 years as an attache of the coroner's office, he will be replaced by John Aldisert.

Early this week Ewing was notified by Coroner William J. McGregor that he would change places with Aldisert, then chief clerk to the chief deputy coroner. Ewing claims the demotion a direct result of opposition to former President of Council James Malone in the recent mayoralty campaign.

LOVEJOY

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XLVI

THE long ride back was a nightmare and a horror to Lovejoy.

She could neither eat nor sleep. She couldn't settle down to read any of the magazines that Steve had bought for her in the station.

She sat, hour after hour, her eyes fixed on the wheeling landscape. Twice, during the heartbreaking journey, the porter brought telegrams from Aunt Em to her.

"Baby just the same. Doctor [illegible] them read.

"No change [illegible] says," the second one read.

"Well, that was some [illegible] any rate. [illegible] ting his own at rest.

If I can just get there [illegible] joy found herself planning [illegible] ly as the train [illegible] through the [illegible] and the little [illegible]

The trip seemed [illegible] eternity. All [illegible] and terror [illegible]

But at last [illegible] as everything [illegible]

There was [illegible] tion to meet her.

That was odd, she thought, as she followed a red cap to the taxicabs drawn up [illegible] building.

And yet who was there who could be expected [illegible] Aunt Em surely would [illegible] the baby. And [illegible] Shane would hardly [illegible] to the train [illegible] with open arms.

But Tom might have [illegible] down in his car to drive her home, she thought. Let [illegible] sentment toward him, [illegible] up in her heart once more. He knew I'd be frantic about the baby.

As the cab went [illegible] along through the [illegible] her thoughts [illegible] Oglebay. How [illegible] der Steve had [illegible] remembered the [illegible] dreadful hours of [illegible] when he had held her in the crook of his arm while they drove along Malibu beach. She remembered how he had looked at her when he kissed her good-by and made her promise to come back to him.

Reaches Destination

Steve really cares for me, she said to herself. And there was warm comfort in that knowledge now in the midst of her anxiety and racking pain.

Then the front of the dingy Bullard street apartment came into view through the mist of rain, and she forgot Steve Oglebay and everything else on earth except the baby.

She was shaking all over with fear when she pressed the door bell in the vestibule of the old building.

Aunt Em herself opened the door to her. Her hair was strained back from her face and she looked as if she had not slept for a week.

But Lovejoy did not take a second look at her.

"How's the baby?" she asked breathlessly, pushing past her.

"Just the same," she heard Aunt Em whisper as she went on swift, noiseless feet through the sitting room and the dining room.

There was a lamp burning on the telephone table in the back hall. Beside it, sound asleep in a chair, was Tom.

The shades were down in the baby's room. One window was open and a piece of white cheese-cloth had been tacked over the screen.

In his little crib drawn up beside the bed where Lovejoy had slept for so many years of her life, lay the baby.

His eyes were closed and he was breathing quickly and unevenly. She laid her hand lightly on his forehead and found that his skin was dry and hot to her touch.

She looked down at him realizing how helpless she was. There is so little that can be done for a sick little baby, and Lovejoy knew it.

Blames Self

What a pathetic little thing he was, curled up there under the blanket, with his two hands bunched up under his cheek like two tightly-closed buds.

How did I ever go away from him? she found herself wondering as she knelt there beside him in the darkened bedroom. I'm his mother, and I should have had him with me no matter where I went.

The big square diamond on her finger winked up at her in the dim light.... All her life she had wanted a diamond like that. And now that she had it she knew that it was of no value at all compared to the small sleeping thing in the crib beside her.

She heard a rustle behind her and turned her head. Aunt Em was standing in the doorway.

"I've made a cup of tea for you," she whispered, and Lovejoy followed her out to the dining room, going on the tips of her toes so as not to waken Tom.

"He's been up all night," Aunt Em told her. "He and Norrie Shane and I. That's an awfully sick little baby, Lovejoy. Dr. Arnott says it's just nip and tuck with him." She shook her head as she poured out two cups of strong steaming tea.

"Well, you can all go to bed now," said Lovejoy, "and Norrie can make up her mind not to [illegible] [illegible] Lovejoy [illegible] with sudden fury [illegible] their way to [illegible] there [illegible] baby? I took care of him for months and months and I guess I can do it again as well as she can."

Furious at Norrie

Ten minutes later, when Dr. Arnott came he found her with one of Aunt Em's big white aprons tied around her slender waist, ready to carry out any orders of his.

[illegible] people she [illegible] Lovejoy, to this emergency. She was calm and cool and collected now. Only the straight line of her mouth showed the strain that she was working under.

"There's not much we can do in a case like this but to keep the baby warm and quiet," said old-fashioned Dr. Arnott [illegible] her. "He must have any [illegible] while this fever lasts. But [illegible] remembered [illegible] when [illegible] I'll wake [illegible] He must be kept [illegible] as it will be for him."

At 1 o'clock while Lovejoy and Aunt Em were having another cup of tea, Tom woke up.

"Oh, you're here," he said dully to Lovejoy when he came walking into the dining room.

He turned to Aunt Em.

"How's the baby?"

"Just the same, Tom. But he's got to get better or worse pretty soon now. That fever's wearing him out."

Tom said nothing. He sat down at the table, his fingers working up and down at the edge of the cloth that covered it. He did not touch the toast, the cup of boiled eggs and the cup of tea that Aunt Em set before him presently.

"Don't you want to go to the office, Tom?" she asked him. "Don't you think you'd feel better if you got out into the air for a while?"

He shook his dark head and said nothing.

Norrie Turned Away

Late in the afternoon a knock came on the door of the kitchen where Lovejoy sat waiting for a kettle of water to cool.

She opened the door. There in her white dress stood Norrie Shane. The rain and the gray sky made a background for her as a background as gray and dismal as Norrie's life had been.

"I've been sitting up with the baby at night lately," she said hesitatingly.

"You aren't needed now, though," Lovejoy answered her clearly. "I'm taking care of my baby."

And without another word she closed the kitchen door in Norrie's plain good face.

She stood listening to the sound of Norrie's feet going slowly back up the stairs that led to her upstairs flat.

That night Aunt Em went to bed. Lovejoy and Tom settled themselves down in the dining-room with the door open so that they could hear any sound that the baby made.

The lamp on the table showed Tom's face haggard and thin as if he had just come through a long illness. For the first time it struck Lovejoy that he looked as if he had been sick.

"Been sick, Tom?" she asked.

"No. What makes you think so?"

He smiled, his mouth hard with pain.

"You'd hardly expect me to be fat and smiling when my kid's dying by inches in there," he said bluntly.

It came to her, with a sense of shock, that he was suffering just as much as she was. And through her own sorrow she was suddenly sorry for him.

She stretched out her hand to him across the table. He looked down at it, seeing Steve Oglebay's ring for the first time.

"What's that thing?" he asked, although he must have known what it stood for.

At that instant the telephone rang sharply through the quiet house.

"Minden, Nevada, calling Mrs. Lovejoy Nicholson," said the long distance operator in Lovejoy's ear when she went to answer it. "Mrs. Nicholson? Hold the wire, Mrs. Nicholson."

'WILL YOU WALK INTO MY PARLOR?' -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley

UNGALLANT to liken a lady—a pretty lady—to a spider! A golden lady, brown-eyed with the brown of a butterfly's wing, gold with the gold of Viking hair and helmets, dainty with the daintiness of a baby kitten, happy with the happiness of child hours, elegant with the immaculate elegancy of the lily; beautiful with the beauty of the dancer, the swimmer, the worker, the player, the idler, the woman and the child—that makes the woman around us, so many of her. Call that a spider! But yes, in many ways—curious and picturesque ways. See here.

The spider's [illegible] A fine, exquisitely fine!
[illegible] and lives along the line.

Mr. Pope wrote that in his "Essay on Man." And we set it underneath the picture of a clever and pretty girl to show in how little—but ah! how much—she is like Mons. or Mlle. Spider. Just in praise of her touch, you see! "How exquisitely fine." "Feels at each thread," to test its silvery strength. "And lives along the line." That last is not so nice. The real spider lives upon snared, helpless captives that children in pity toil to release—forgetting that "spiders must live" and know no other way to do so. But the girl behind the silver web of her fine weaving lives delicately upon Cupid, captures him just for his presence. She is no cannibal. And who's sorry for Cupid, anyhow; he's a spinner himself, spinner of artful webs dewed with the firgs of the rainbow! And when he in turn gets caught, wing-tangled, toe-bound, nose-netted, bundled up and delivered bodily to a lady by the power of her charms and the subtlety of her weaving, there's a bit of cheering done!

Woman has been compared to all the world of beast and birds. She has been called pussy-cat, both in fun and bitterness. She has been called another, more deadly member of the cat family, but known for grace, the leopard. She has been likened to the peacock for vanity and the dove for meekness, the wren for neatness, and the nightingale for a voice of beauty. The big-eyed gazelle, the wildcat, the bird of paradise, the timid gray mouse, the spaniel—all have taken each their turn describing woman for you; painting her color, her disposition, her manner, her brain, her fidelity or lack of it, her menace, her winsomeness, her ferocity, her affection, her grace, her splendor, her timidity, her loyalty.

And now we're calling her a spider! But only in a harmless manner of speaking, don't you see. Just because she is the magic hand at spinning jeweled webs and catching something in them!

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Making a Gracious Statement.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My friends and I have had many discussions on a certain subject, which, I am sure, is puzzling, not only us but many other young ladies. If a young man is introduced to a young lady and he escorts her home who should say: "I am very glad to have met you," the young lady or her escort?

MICKEY.

EITHER says this gracious statement. When the girl starts to say good-night she would most naturally say too: "I am very glad to have met you." Or if the man starts to leave and as he shakes hands with the girl says: "I am very glad to have met you," why, that's natural too. The one who answers this friendly compliment says: "Thank you. I am very happy to have met you, too." And I hope that I am to have the pleasure of seeing you again some time."

A Gentleman's Formal Attire.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I would appreciate it very much if you will tell me what sort of attire a man should wear when attending a dinner dance (formal).

RALPH.

IF the dinner dance is strictly formal, the gentleman would wear his tail coat. And increasingly this is the attire that American men are wearing—having taken a page from the lives of their English cousins. For some time after the war there was not such a distinction between formal and informal attire, and men did not so often wear tail-coats. But lately the well-dressed man is very punctilious about his clothes and inclines to wear formal clothes for what he knows will be a formal occasion.

For the dance of semi-formality, or perhaps it would be better to say semi-informality, the dinner-jacket is worn.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Winning Gesture.

THE day has gone when a rubber-plant and a brass door-plate gave you "class." Today, you MUST have a "gesture!"

Nearly everything you do, from wearing a red bathing-suit to divorcing your husband, is simply a gesture. A publicity stunt!

With some women smoking is a gesture, and with nearly all men love-making is a gesture.

A girl doesn't marry the man she really wants, but the one who will make her marriage the most dramatic "gesture," the butler, the life-guard or the traffic cop; the one who will give her the most publicity—or the most money with which to cut a glittering figure.

A man doesn't pick out the woman who will make him happiest — but the one who will make the best "show-window," the most ornamental and expensive-looking thing he can find.

A woman doesn't wear her hair in the most becoming or the most comfortable fashion, but in the most grotesque and eccentric fashion — the one which will attract the most attention, and cause the most sensation.

The average woman doesn't abbreviate her skirts because she is naturally shameless or even because she is vain of her knees, but "just as a gesture," to catch the masculine eye.

No woman chooses her clothes because they are beautiful, graceful or artistic any more; she picks out the most bizzare, the most exotic, the most hideous things she can find—and consoles herself that she is "different."

* * *

"Be startling! Get in the limelight! Knock 'em dead!" These are the slogans of the day. Do ANYTHING except the normal, the natural, or the expected!

Even "petting" is a gesture, with most girls. Men will never believe it; but any normal girl hates to be mauled or kissed by any man, with whom she is not at least temporarily a little bit in love. Honestly, it isn't a BIT thrilling to have a bristly cheek rubbed against yours—unless it is the cheek you love to touch. But, not to appear to be a "wild woman" would be to play a "gesture!"

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Maneuvers to Get Contents of Letter

THERE was a note of bitterness in Lillian's voice as she spoke of "the ethereal heights in which highly sensitive musicians float," and I knew full well what memory had brought it there. Once a literary critic of the type which counts the turning of a cheaply smart phrase more important than just and shrewd review of work had devoted a half column of his pleasantries to Lillian's jingles, and to my surprise and Dicky's—it was during the years of her estrangement from her husband, so Harry knew nothing of it—she had taken the man's strictures as if they had the weight of the greatest literary authorities of the world. Usually the most poised and equable of women, she had permitted the thing so to obsess her that for weeks she was unable to turn out any work. Only the sharp lash of necessity drove her back to labor, and gradually she came back to her old self. But I knew that the thing had left its mark upon her, and that the overworked term "inferiority complex" was as pat as any to describe her state of mind toward her own work, and to that of the people in all lines of artistic endeavor whose attainments or pretensions—gave her the excuse for dubbing them "highbrow."

Secretly I agreed with her dictum that Noel would jeopardize his standing in high musical circles if he wrote scores for her advertising jingles under the name of Boris Raminoff, the which he had made known in the world of good music. But her depreciation of her own work had so nettled me that I answered her from my impulses rather than my judgment.

"Why bones' work of any kind should hurt a reputation, I can't see," I told her hotly. "You never have had a line in your jingles that wasn't as clean as it was clever. Boris Raminoff or a man ten times greater than he could not possibly hurt himself by writing scores of them."

She smiled lazily at my excitement, but there was warm affection in her eyes.

"Please consider that I've taken my bow," she said, "and of course I secretly agree with everything you've said. But the sad truth remains, and you know it, that while Noel might not hurt himself, he certainly would risk tearing the exceedingly gossamer like threads of his musical reputation. Remember, he isn't an old and established composer, but a young and new one. It would be very easy to spoil his whole future. No, Madge, I can't let your warm partisan heart manage this. If Noel consents to write the scores he must do it anonymously, just as he played the violin in that night club. The job will be a pot boiler, but he ought to be able to keep a fairly decent fire bubbling beneath the pot."

"Of course, it is your affair entirely," I said a little stiffly, and Lillian looked at me steadily.

"If I thought you meant that, I'd smack you," she said, "but I know you don't, so we'll go on to the next question. I can't do any more with this—say anything to Noel, I mean—until I've found out what the boys say to the scheme."

"Form letter, Number 347," I mocked, and she laughed even as she flushed at my gibe.

"I suppose consulting them is rather superfluous," she admitted, "but I'm going to do it, nevertheless. However, that's not the next point of order. Have you thought what you're going to do with that coat of Noel's now that you have it mended?"

I eyed the coat with the realization which had just come to her that my surreptitious mending of it was going to be a hard thing to explain to our sensitive young friend.

"Press it," I said laconically after a pause.

Lilian laughed.

"You sound as I imagine Mr. Dick did when he answered 'Wash him' to Aunt Betsy Trotwood's query as to what was to be done next with runaway David Copperfield."

"I feel like Mr. Dick," I retorted. "But I mean it about the pressing. I shall have to press this mended place."

She rose lazily from her chair.

"I felt in my bones that I'd have to work if you came in here," she said. "But I'm not proud. I'll bring you all the pressing paraphernalia. I'll even offer to take the job off your hands."

"No you won't," I told her emphatically, and she grinned impudently at me.

"It's a great advantage to have a reputation as a sartorial moron," she said. "I get out of a lot of work that way."

She brought the pressing board and connected the small electric iron to the socket. Then she sat down in the easy chair again, and stretching out gave me another grin.

"Go to it, old dear," she said. "Would you like me to read to you while you work?"

"I'd love it," I said, with a sudden absurd little hope that she would carry the jest out by reading to me the thing closest to her hand, Helena Brixton's letter, which her husband wished me to remember for him.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

"Blues" May Be Traced to Real Ills.

WE are inclined to blame the moods we have upon our environment. If we don't do this we lay them to something we think we may have inherited. Yet the chances are they come from some physical cause.

What we do inherit is an over-sensitiveness of the nervous system. Or, going deeper into the cause, there may be some lack of harmony in those wonderful glands of the body, the "endocrine glands."

These glands, called glands of "internal secretion," play a large part in the development and nutrition of a child. It is particularly important that they do their good deeds before the age of 14.

The mind does its work from a nest of nerve cells. When these nerve cells are out of order then one's attitude toward life is not quite normal.

When the nervous system goes wrong, then some sort of nerve disorder appears. Some such troubles are lasting, but thousands of them can be corrected by physical and mental measures.

In these cases, one mood follows another. There may be great depression, when all the world looks black. Then the spirits rise in high excitement over some happening which makes an impress on the emotions. Sometimes they begin with great fatigue, with over-excitement, or lack of sleep.

When such symptoms appear it is not uncommon to find there has not been enough relaxation. Intestinal and other poisons may have affected the system. After prolonged mental work, overstudy, long continued worry or fear, emotional reactions are set up which cause these extreme moods.

Again, the cause for moodiness in a person may lie in the mental realm alone. If a child is of a sensitive nature, he is unpleasantly affected by ridicule from his friends in school for being "different." I am sorry to say he may be belittled at home. As a result of all his troubles he may become melancholy. He finds it hard to concentrate. All in all he is miserable. Even though they are only molehills his troubles seem mountain high.

What is the cure for these miserable moods? First of all, the mental and physical causes must be sympathetically studied and treated. Your doctor will find the physical cause. It may lie in some infection in the body, in wrong habits of eating, improper assimilation of food, or lack of the right food. It may be one or more of a great many things.

We cannot estimate the extent to which the life-giving rays of the sun affect our bodies and minds. No human being or animal or living thing can exist without its rays for any length of time. It is no wonder that so many persons are affected by our modern indoor life. Such cases as we are discussing today, of people with more or less serious nervous disorders, should be out-of-doors in the fresh air and sunshine as much as possible.

A child, particularly at the adolescent age, needs kindly understanding of his moods by parents and friends. He should be encouraged to take up some engrossing work, or relaxation, as the case may be. He should follow his bent, do the things he likes to do and is interested in doing, so far as possible. Let him read a book, take long walks with a pleasant companion, but he must fight dejection and cultivate happy thoughts.

More relaxation, good food, plenty of sleep, the out-of-doors and a calm spirit, go far in curing those black moods that cause so much unhappiness for yourself and others, and the probability is your blues will disappear very quickly.

Answers to Health Queries

M. E. E. Q.—What do you advise for a bleach to make superfluous hair less noticeable?

A.—Fresh peroxide of hydrogen frequently applied will bleach the hair and, it is contended by some, that it will retard the hair growth.

Horoscopes

Sunday, March 2

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows prosperous conditions for all affairs of church and charity, but there may be minor annoyance, probably precipitated by a rash and ungoverned tongue.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a successful year, unless their own rash and contentious inclinations defeat good fortune. Shun quarrels, disputes and litigation. Sign all writings with vigilance.

A child born on this day should be ambitious, keen, clever, but may militate against its own progress by indulgence in fiery, impetuous and ill-timed speech.

Monday, March 3

MONDAY'S astrological map is beset with many contradictory configurations. While employment, new projects and renewed contracts are favored, yet there is a radical change as well as stubborn obstacles to be met and handled with much keen judgment and shrewdness.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of important change, with employment and new undertakings favored, but also attended by frustrating forces calling for clever management and cool judgment.

A child born on this day may be brilliant, versatile, resourceful and may encounter many obstacles to test its power of endurance and initiative.

MR. TAFT—what a lovely old soul he was, fat and good-natured. You know of all our presidents of this generation, some we knew, some we felt we didn't know, some we admired their great ability, some we had great faith in, and all of them to us symbolized the great office they occupied, but just as a man, and a real honest-to-God fellow, Mr. Taft will go to his grave with more real downright affection and less enemies than any.

He always seemed like he was one of us. It's great to be great, but it's greater to be human. He was our great human fellow, because there was more of him to be human. We are parting with three hundred pounds of solid charity to everybody, and love and affection for all his fellow men.

'Ulysses' Has Come to Tech And Greek Gods Talk In Blank Verse

By GEORGE SEIBEL

AMBITION is the keynote of our young dramatic circles, and the same week that saw the production of Galsworthy's "Loyalties" at the "Y" Playhouse also witnessed a presentation of Stephen Phillip's "Ulysses" in the Little Theater of Carnegie Tech. It is even more difficult to counterfeit Homeric majesty than to copy the minor amenities of the British Beerage, as some one called the nobility of hops and malt

George Seibel

"Ulysses" was written for Beerbohm Tree, England's most distinguished contemporary of Henry Irving. Tree, brother of Max Beerbohm, came from a Hungarian family the original name of which was Birnbaum, German for "pear tree." He was an excellent character actor who delighted in pageantry and gallant display. When he discovered Stephen Phillips, a poet who could write good blank verse and had a sense of theater, he commissioned him to write a series of tragedies of which "Herod" and "Nero" were the most conspicuous.

Phillips could contrive very effective scenarios. He could write vibrant poetry that had the effect of animated marble. But he never penetrated deeply into the hearts of his people, except in "Paolo and Francesca," to give his plays real life.

When "Ulysses" was produced in America, with Tyrone Power as the hero, it was a failure. And Power had the voice and physique for one of Homer's heroes.

GODS AND DEMIGODS

That is the supreme audacity of the young players out at the Tech Theater. Aside from William Johns, who plays Zeus with Olympian dignity and humor, and Arne Boesen, who has put a moving pathetic note into Ulysses, these gods and demigods are too evidently of the present century.

That even applies to such an excellent character study as the Eurymachas of Arthur Sprenkle, and to the low comedy of John Miller as Eumaeus the swineherd.

Vocal volume is needed, richness and resonance of utetrance, without ranting or bellowing. The cast of "Ulysses" refrain from ranting and bellowing, but there are few voices that have Homeric amplitude.

Pauline Bauersmith as Athene, Dale Thompson as Hermes, Isobel Yealy as Penelope, and Freda Cazen as Calypso reach moments of exaltation. And it is a pleasure to hear the intelligences of nearly every reading, even where the tonal value is weak.

DESCENT INTO HADES

The most effective of all the scenes is the descent into Hades, though some of the weirdest sights, like the woes of Sisyphus and Prometheus, have ben omitted.

Frant Stout is responsible for the scenery, and he has done nobly. Tree had two learned antiquaries, W. R. Lethaby and Percy Anderson to design his production, but Frank Stout has caught the spirit of the Hycenean Age quite as truly as if he had gone along with Schliemann's expedition, to Troy—not N. Y.

This is not the Greece of Phidias and Pericles, but the Greece of 1100 B. C.—although we miss the hills of dung that lay in the forecourt of Ulysses' palace according to Homer.

Well, the descent into Hades isn't true to Homer either—Phillips copied the more picturesque Inferno of Virgil and Dante.

Menuhin Tonight In Syria Mosque

Yehundi Menuhin, boy violinist, will give a concert in Syria Mosque tonight. His program will contain three major works in the Cesar Franck Sonata in A major, the Bach Sonata in C major for violin alone, and Bruch's Scottish Fantasy, opus 46. The shorter works will include a Jewish folk number, entitled "Nigun," from "Baal Shem," "Siciliano and Rigaudon" by Francoeur-Kreisler, and Scherzo-Tarantelle by Wieniawski.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT, CROONING LUCAS IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Dorothy Mackaill came to the Stanley talk screen yesterday as a young authoress who believes romance ends when marriage begins—that is, believes it until she becomes the victim of love at first sight. Then the complications begin for the man of her affections is no other than the fiance of her cousin. And the wedding is only two days away. So it looks like Novelist Dorothy is destined to be a pale flower of futile love.

But no such thing happens. She gets her man—and so, by the way, does the cousin, for a second gentleman is injected into the plot for this purpose.

A RAINY AFTERNOON

The picture involved by all this is "Strictly Modern," which, we hasten to add, is strictly modern in title only. For the rest it has a flirtation on a train, a rainy afternoon in a lonesome cottage, a kid brother who can't wait until the wedding cake it cut, an exploding-cigar, and an artist, who, in typical movie fashion, never paints.

The production is light entertainment, with the laugh-angle face up. Sydney Blackmer portrays the artist and Warner Richmond is present as the second man, a queer sort of judge. And recalling his work in that old film, "The Fire Brigade," we're convinced he's a better fireman than a jurist. The rest of the cast is just so-so.

CROONING LUCAS

Nick Lucas, crooning troubadour, makes an appearance on the stage, presents four or five numbers and gets a big "hand." His program includes his movie songs, "Tiptoe Through the Tulips," "In a Kitchenette" and "Painting the Clouds With Sunshine."

Dick Powell and his band again win with their novelty antics in a not-so-hot revue, "Tip Toppers." In settings this production carries out the high hat idea. Featured entertainers are a couple of dancing girls and a fellow and girl in a fun act, the material of which these comics displayed in our town before. David Broudy and Bernie Armstrong combine in an overture of Victor Herbert melodies.

Believe Pittsburgh Auto in Gun Duel

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 1.—Believing that the occupants may have figured in a gun battle local police are awaiting word from the Pittsburgh police concerning an automobile which was partially destroyed by fire and abandoned here. Two bullet holes were found in the car. The license plates of the car were issued to J. Hirsch, 140 Travella boulevard, Pittsburgh.

"Believe It or Not"

There's only one Ripley, and, "Believe It or Not," he's in the Sun-Telegraph every day in the week. You have lots of time to read on Sunday—for amazing and strange revelations give a few moments of your Sunday time to Ripley and his "Believe It or Not."

Griffith Gives Una Merkel Role Four Years After Her Screen Test

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 1.

REGARDEZ. The perfect description of Hollywood. Expressed by an English actor, who pithily phrased it "Hollywood is a joke, but it isn't funny."

SOME TWO YEARS AGO, Harry D. Edwards gave Evelyn Brent (now his better half) a Pekinese yclept Kim. Kim became quite the king pin of the household. 'Tother day the little fellow strolled a few blocks from home. The story is narrated here from a youngster in Glendale. Said youngster reports he saw a man in a Ford kick the dog to the street. The youngster rushed to him and took him home.

Evelyn Brent

But Kim, being a frail canine, evidently suffered from the kick. The youngster's mother saw Miss Brent's advertisement about the cog and telephoned her. A few hours later, however, she phoned again to say Kim had died. The little fellow, being a frail canine, had evidently suffered from the kick. Now why do people pick up dogs and then mistreat them so viciously?

REMEMBERS UNA

HER NAME is Una Merkel. She is a W. K. stage actress in New York. She's here to portray the role of Ann Rutledge in D. W. Griffith's outloud production of "Abraham Lincoln," with Walter Huston in the name part.

An interesting story accompanies the above statement. Or maybe I'h wrong.

D. W. Griffith

At all events, four years ago Griffith went to DeForrest's studio in New York to make screen tests of Chester Morris, Mary Eaton and several other legit emoters. It so chanced that Miss Merkel's father was associated with De Forrest. Una asked permission to accompany him to the studio and see D. W. direct the tests.

She went. And sat quietly in a corner. Watching. A few hours elapsed. Griffith queried Mr. Merkel whom the girl was in the corner. He then suggested that she make a test. Which she did, regardless of the fact that she had little or no make-up with her. Nothing further happened.

But D. W., who's memory is nobody's business, remembered Una Merkel. Came time to cast "Abraham Lincoln." He communicated with a man in New York who had Miss Merkel's phone number. Ergo, here she is.

SHE COMES to the Cold Coast armed with a United Artists contract. Her mother and father accompanied her. The Merkels hail from Covington, Ky. They moved to New York 10 years ago. It being in the middle of the school year, Una was permitted to attend dramatic school. From D. S. she hit straight to Broadway, after sampling, without encouraging success, the flicks. She recently closed in "Coquette," with Helen Hayes."

SCREENALITIES. With the tooting in of each new year Ruth Roland ups and purchases herself a lil' book dedicated to flick autographs. She has a slew of W. K. signatures already. . . . Friends of Jimmy Gleason dropped in unexpectedly for Sunday morn breakfast. They wanted orange juice. Jimmy excused himself. He returned in a few minutes. Likewise, in a few minutes the orange juice arrived. "I just slipped into the neighbor's yard and gathered some of that juice," Jimmy confessed. "We were out of oranges." . . . On the Pathe lot, a chap named William Dietz has monikered the stray cat the studio sound track. . . . Dixie Wilson, W. K. writer, tells the story of a bozo who fluttered into a village hostelry and asked the proprietor if he could get a bottle of Scotch. "Sure, if you wait around," reckoned the proprietor. "How soon?" "Soon as Congress changes the Eighteenth amendment!!" Being my idea of a unique hotel man. . . . Sorry folks: Don't know a darn thing more today. Ran out of question-energy too early in the day. . . . I'll be seeing you.

HERBERT WORK, STOCK AND NEW TALKIES ARE BOOKED

Eleanor Painter in "The Fortune Teller," opens in the Alvin Tuesday night. Seats are now on sale and there will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

This afternoon and tonight the two final performances of "Sari," starring Mitzi, will be presented at the Nixon.

"Salt Water," a comedy, will be next week's attraction of the George Sharp Players in the Pitt.

NEW PICTURES TODAY

The talking screen version of "Cameo Kirby" opens today in the Harris. It is a romantic story of a gambler of the old Mississippi steamboat days. There will be a Victor Graff show on the stage.

Gustav von Seyffertitz, veteran character actor, plays an important role in "The Case of Sergeant Grischa," the attraction coming to the Sheridan Square screen today. Chester Morris and Betty Compson play the leading roles.

George Arliss is supported by Alice Joyce, H. B. Warner and Ralph Forbes in his second talking production, "The Green Goddess," which is on a second week in the Warner.

IN "ANNA CHRISTIE"

Marie Dressler realizes a life's ambition in enacting a dramatic role of old Marthy in "Anna Christie." Greta Garbo's first talking picture which comes to the Penn Monday. Acclaimed as a comedienne for more than 40 years, Miss Dressler has always harbored a great desire to portray a straight dramatic role.

Richard Dix in "The Love Doctor," the all-talking feature which comes to the Aldine Monday, shows some of the dangers that beset a popular young doctor who attempts to advise in love affairs yet remains single. It is taken from the stage play "The Boomerang." The cast includes June Collyer, Morgan Farley and Miriam Seegar.

"Chuck" Wilson does a character skit in the Winter Garden Roof with his popular partner, Joe Lang. He will continue in the Winter Garden for an indefinite engagement.

BACK-STAGE MOVIE AND JAY MILLS IN ENRIGHT

By HOWARD L. BROWNING, JR.

Another back-stage movie, "Behind the Makeup," has come to Pittsburgh. It is at the Enright. William Powell appears as the genius, the lover, the temperamental gentleman playing the great Gardoni. Hal Skelly, poor chap, plays the part of the man of whom Gardoni is always taking advantage.

Fay Wray is the "peaches" who has the cream. Gardoni. Kay Francis, aptly called "Kitty," is the beautiful feline who comes along and takes the "cream," only to cast it aside after skimming off the top.

The girl friend will like William Powell for his lovin.' He'll be a little nearer her because he is a former Pittsburgher. The boy friend will like Skelly for his self-sacrificing suffering, for he's coming out on top. Everybody will like Miss Wray, will feel their pulse quicken a bit to the tune of Kay Francis.

A good show, nothing new, but entertainingly done.

Again the chorus at the Enright crashes through with a couple of smooth hits in a mediocre show on the stage. Jay Mills, with a sigh of relief, has found "Singing a Vagabond Song" a good substitute for "Cryin' for the Carolines" and does a good dance, should do more of it—it's the best thing he has. Organist Cyril Guthoerl goes over well with a few organ numbers.

I am sorry to report that, for lack of sufficient good first-run pictures, the Enright will soon take a fling at second-run hits.

Five Seized in Raid On Lottery Rooms

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., March 1.—Police last night arrested five persons for operating lotteries on the New York Stock Exchange, all of whom are under $1,000 bond.

Lieutenant Joseph Hutchie and Patrolman Andrew Philips confiscated books and other paraphernalia. The prisoners are: William Scott, 21; Albert Friend, 31; Charles Hardgraves, 37; Peter Aresta, 34, and Sam Mayo, 37.

HONOR PITT'S FOUNDING

The one hundred and forty-third anniversary of the founding of the University of Pittsburgh was observed by members of the board and faculty who attended the annual Charter Day banquet last night in the Hotel Schenley. Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor of the university, spoke.

Chancellor Bowman compared Charter Day to another milestone in the progress of education, and that the erection of the Cathedral of Learning was a monument to the work being accomplished at the university. S. A. Taylor, of the board of trustees, presided. Other speakers were Heber D. Curtis, director of Allegheny Observatory, and Dean E. A. Holbrook. Dr. William J. Holland delivered the invocation.

EXIT

THANKS for the delicate clasp of your hand,
The sisterly pat on the cheek,
And accept my assurance that I understand
Your manner is strikingly meek
No forward young lady of method astute,
But rather a shy one, as few are—
No sins or discrepancies can I im-pute
In the instance of such ones as you are.

And you must admit that, in justice to me,
I've made no annoying advance
For, if I may say it, I'm gentlemanly,
And have spared you my amorous glance.
Unburdened by conscience, I part from you, then,
While the proof of my merit takes root. You're Delightful! I hope I may see you again
In the highly indefinite future.
—Robert Newcomb.

BOOMERANG

The Big Idea, you might have suspected all along, at the parties held along Sutton Place, is to crush the other fellow before he squelches you. There is the one frinstance, pulled by the plump Alexander Woollcott recently at Mrs. Paul Bonner's expense when the smart Alec waited until she entered a room loaded with intelligentsia and chirped: "Well, now, aren't you the saucy baggage?"

To which Mrs. Bonner snapped back: "And you're a baggy sausage!"

HAVE A PUN-ANNA

Charlie Butterworth's lady fren, Mathilda Longflannels, had a frightful cough, so Charlie ankled her into a Broadway drug emporium to get her some cough drops. The clerk was sorry, but the supply had run out.

"Why not give her some menthol?" suggested the clerk.

A FORM OF CRITICISM

ALL the way from Beverly Hills, Cal., Dorothy Fields, who wrote such delightful lyrics as "I Can't Give You Anything But Love, Baby" and other swelegant song words, comes this report. They were making a picture on the Fox lot, and Willie Collier, Sr., was assigned to a very small role. He wasn't very agreeable about it, and while the others were reading their parts, Collier sat sulking when he wasn't looking out of a window. The director bellowed: "Collier! Where's your part?"

"A flea ate it!" thundered Willie as he ankled out of the room.

BY WAY OF REPORT

THE "inside" on the recent Jim Tully-John Gilbert scrap is explained by Tully, who writes: "I really didn't mean to hit him. But after he missed five times, I thought it best—as he was liable to fan himself to death—to deal him one." Then I only hit him once."

John Gilbert.

Boys will be boys.

INCIDENTALLY

Miss Fields is one of those responsible for a newly opened revue which was roundly panned by the critics, although her contributions are fine, and the flipcrackers along the Canyon put it this way: "Words by Dorothy Fields, music by Jimmy McHugh and sketches by Mistake."

FACT

REUBEN'S, the rendezvous for night loafers and celebs, features costly perfumes in its showcases. One brand, in a huge bottle, sells for $350, and Reuben displayed one bottle of it in his inside showcase and another to decorate his window display. An intoxicated sport came in the other night, asked the price of the stuff in the big bottle, and then ordered two bottles. "But we hate to break up the window display," he was told. "If you'll wait, we'll send for another bottle at our uptown branch." The man hadn't time, he said. He would pay $700 if he could take the two bottles with him. The manager gave in.

When Mr. Reuben, who was out, returned, he asked about the bottle that had been in the window. "We had to sell it to a sport, who bought the two of them."

"That's a shame," said the conscience-stricken Reuben. "The one in the window was filled with water.

Mr. Reuben hopes the man sees this here before the bottles are delivered to his girl friends.

HEHEHEH

A GROUP of racetrack characters were expressing their opinions of tough spots they had raced at, "tough spots" meaning places where the panic was on financially. One of the boys mentioned Tia Juana.

"Tia Juana?" cnirped Otto Torrell, a real plunger and well known wherever horses race in North America. "Tia Juana! Why, that's the only place in the world where I ever saw the men wearing patches in their hats!"

ON THE OTHER HAND

Some of us understand why the provincial yawns at the type from the Big Town. One cannot blame the average hinterlander for "wasting a lot of time hating New York," particularly when a Manhattan policeman steps out of character and sasses Mr. and Mrs. Public, as one did recently.

At any rate, they were hoisting a huge electric sign at 43rd and Broadway and the crowd that gathered was difficult to handle. One cop, who lost his dome, used force on an elderly man and shouted: "What are you people? Hicks from the sticks?"

"I suppose," softly retorted the man, "that you are one of the famous 'Finest' New York boasts about."

The squelched officer's cheeks got as red as—well, as red as a girl's used to get.

IT IS TO CHUCKLE

AMONG other amusing commentaries on prohibition is this: One of New York's slimiest speakeasies, which is patronized chiefly by murderers, gangsters, degenerates and other foul citizens, was raided recently, but not closed. As a punishment the law placed a patrolman in the place as some sort of gesture. He is a gay young officer, who apparently has found the assignment a pleasant one, for he is the butt of the entertainers' jokes, and when he is in the mood, he plays a tune at the piano and otherwise makes himself agreeable.

But what we started out to report was that the officer was not assigned to the speakeasy to see that it doesn't sell liquor or because it is a playground for criminals. He was put there, it appears, because a few weeks ago the management permitted a 12-year-old newsboy to peddle papers in the joint after midnight.

NO. 32.

AN ORDINANCE — Authorizing the Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works to execute an agreement with the Secretary of Highways acting for and on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in connection with the improvement of State Highway Route 330, a portion of which is located within the City of Pittsburgh, formerly Overbrook Borough.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works, for and on behalf of the City of Pittsburgh, are hereby authorized and directed to execute an agreement with the Secretary of Highways acting for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in connection with the improvement known as State Highway Route 330, a portion of which is located within the City of Pittsburgh, formerly Overbrook Borough, said agreement to be in the following language:

AGREEMENT

Made and entered into this ..... day of ..... 1930, by and between the Secretary of Highways acting for and on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, hereinafter called the Commonwealth, of the first part and the City of Pittsburgh in Allegheny County, by its Mayor and Director of the Department of Public Works, party of the second part, hereinafter called the City, of the second part.

WHEREAS, By Act of Assembly No. 409, approved May 1st, 1929, certain moneys were appropriated to the Department of Highways, among and among the City of the Commonwealth for the improvement, construction, reconstruction and or maintenance of City Streets which are not on the plan of the State Highway System, but which are connecting links of State Highways entering such Cities, or running through such Cities of which furnish the shortest or most convenient route through such Cities for the traveling public, and

WHEREAS, The total sum of $217,473.96 has been allocated to the City from said appropriation by the Department of Highways for the purpose of reconstructing or improving said streets forming a continuous link of the said Highways through the City, as provided in said Act; and

WHEREAS, The sum of $27,473.96 has been set aside from the City allocation from the said appropriation for the purpose of constructing Fifth Avenue, Bernard street, Bates road and Library road from the Baldwin Township, Pittsburgh City line, Station 378+75 to a point 24 feet north of the north curb line of Maine street, Station 500+50, and of Maine street, Station 500+50, and of Bates road, Station 0+00, to have been designated as the shortest or most convenient route for the traveling public through the City, and

WHEREAS, The Department of Highways has made a survey of existing connection and as a result has designated Stewart avenue, Fairhaven road and Library road as the shortest or most convenient route for the traveling public through the City of Pittsburgh, and as a part or section of Route 330, the part of which is to be improved under the provisions of the Agreement being fully explained as follows:

From a point on the dividing line between Baldwin Township and the City of Pittsburgh, Stewart avenue, thence in a general northerly direction over the Fairhaven road and Library road to a point 24 feet north of the north curb line of Maine street.

WHEREAS, It is desired to construct and reconstruct the said streets as hereinbefore designated for the purpose of safely and adequately accommodating the traveling public in and through the said City, and

WHEREAS, The Department of Highways has entered into a contract for the construction of said State Highway Route 330, and on or about December 21, 1929, the Borough of Overbrook, J. Grosso & Sons Co. for the construction of an additional width to said state highway, as located within said territorial limits of said Overbrook Borough, and

WHEREAS, The estimated cost of said contract thus entered into by said Overbrook Borough was $22,500.00, with provision therein that the State would, if it so desired, increase the amount of said contract in an amount not exceeding 15 per cent of the cost of said improvement being the said sum of $22,500.00 plus 15 per cent thereof, or a total amount of $27,473.96.

NOW, THEREFORE, THIS AGREEMENT WITNESSETH, That the City of Pittsburgh hereby authorizes and directs the Secretary of Highways, out of the moneys allocated to the City of Pittsburgh from State Highway funds, to pay to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Department of Highways, the cost of the work that had been agreed to be paid by Overbrook Borough, said payments to be made upon certificates or requisitions of the Secretary of Highways, approval of the work by the Secretary of Highways in accordance with the terms of the aforementioned contract.

Said highway when completed and accepted by the State and the Department of Public Works of the City of Pittsburgh shall be maintained by the City of Pittsburgh as any other city street.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the City of Pittsburgh has caused this agreement to be executed by the Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works thereof pursuant to an Ordinance of Council, duly approved by the Mayor, on the ..... day of ....., 1930, and to authorize the sale from time to time, as he may see fit, and the Secretary of Highways, for and on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, has hereunto affixed his hand and the seal of said Department, the day and year first above written.

DAILY TRUE STORY

"Loveliest Man"

"THERE'S the loveliest man in my town, Edna," said Aunt Olive. "I am going to have you meet him!"

The glance of understanding between Edna Anson's mother and her Aunt Olive was not lost on Edna, although they did not intend her to suspect.

Aunt Olive lived on a comfortable income but not one that was sufficient to help her sister, Mrs. Anson. Both women were widowed and Edna's mother had the more difficult problem to solve in the matter of finances.

"That's nice," said Mrs. Anson, showing interest as though she and her sister had not discussed this "loveliest man" for hours at a time.

"Yes, indeed he is the loveliest man." Aunt Olive repeated.

"Lovely men do not interest me—I prefer manly men," Edna said, mildly.

"That's what I mean." Aunt Olive hastened to say. "Of course I didn't mean a doll-faced effeminate man, my dear child."

"Who is he?" asked Mrs. Anson.

Edna was thinking—"As though they hadn't talked about him for hours today!" But she listened.

A girl is bound to be interested in hearing about the man that her people hope to have her marry.

"His name is Wright—George W. Wright," Aunt Olive answered.

Edna smiled.

"He may be Mr. Wright and yet not be Mister Right for me."

"Oh, you'd be crazy about him."

"As if I would!" Edna exclaimed.

"And he'd be crazy about you," Aunt Olive went on.

He's Wealthy

"So many nice men are crazy about Edna," her mother said.

"Yes; look out and see the long line forming on the right," Edna retorted, not bitterly but in a spirit of levity.

"Just the same there are dozens of men who want to marry her," Mrs. Anson said after the manner of doting mothers the world over.

"Four, Aunt Olive—just four."

"Nice chaps, Edna."

"Oh, yes, but—"

"No love in a cottage for you, eh? That's being sensible in these days."

"Oh, they were all right that way. Three of them have a lot of money and the fourth has a splendid business. I just didn't find it possible to fall in love with any of them."

"You'd fall in love with Mr. Wright," Aunt Olive declared.

"What about him—what does he look like—what does he do?" Edna queried.

"Oh, he doesn't do anything. He's wealthy. He putters around with his properties."

"Point number one: wealthy; point number two: he putters. So one offsets the other. I hate putterers."

Aunt Olive and Mrs. Anson looked at each other rather dismayed.

"What does he look like?" Edna asked, more to break the embarrassing silence than anything else.

"Good looking—you'll see him and judge for yourself, my dear."

Just before Edna left for Hillridge with her aunt for a long visit, her mother had a talk with her.

"It would be wonderful if you could like this Mr. Wright well enough to marry him, dear. Olive has told me so much about him—and I can't keep you up in any sort of style on our little income," she said.

"I can work."

Mrs. Anson showed signs of "nerves" so Edna soothed her.

"Well, I'll do my very best providing he thinks he wants me after we become acquainted. I promise you that, Mumsy," and Edna kissed her worried mother.

Hillridge was a handsome little city. Edna had forgotten how it looked, as she hadn't been there since she was a small child. Her Aunt Olive, Mrs. Sargent, lived in a suburb on the outskirts of a new building development that had already enhanced the value of her property.

Aunt Disappointed

Poor Aunt Olive was terribly disappointed, for she had an attack of rheumatism that came to her once in a while. It kept her indoors and she couldn't take Edna about or plan receptions and parties until she was fully recovered. Rheumatism hinted at advanced years and Aunt Olive was desperately fighting at 45 to remain looking no more than 35.

Edna used her aunt's little sport car and was out about the country sizing up the city that might be her future home.

The third day in Hillridge Edna stopped at a drug store to get some books—it was the sort of a drug store where what few drugs were sold were kept far back in a secluded corner—when she saw Hetty Winston.

"Hetty Winston!" Edna cried.

"Edna!" Hetty screamed. She was the gushy, effusive type.

"What are you doing here?"

"Living here—I'm married," Hetty explained. "Whatever are you doing here?"

Edna laughed. She couldn't be truthful in every detail; she couldn't confess that she was in Hillridge to become acquainted with a George W. Wright and try and marry him.

"Visiting my aunt—Mrs. Sargent."

Edna was a little bit relieved when Hetty couldn't come out to her aunt's that day. Edna felt sure that her Aunt Olive would try and enlist Hetty into her services get her to help arrange a meeting with this Mr. Wright.

Edna explained that her aunt was temporarily kept indoors with illness.

"Well just telephone her that you'll be my guest today. Joe and I are going to the Ridge Club. We belong—lots of fun. We'll take you along."

Edna was delighted. Three days of being her own company had palled a little. Aunt Olive was surprised but pleased that Edna had met an old friend.

Meets Mr. Wright

The Winstons lived across the town in a nice "homey" street and Mr. Winston seemed to be a pleasant sort of man. As Edna had been driving her aunt's sport car she was wearing her newest sport clothes, so was just all "set" for the country club.

They had luncheon at the club. Joe Winston said he would find some chap and make up a foursome.

In a little while Joe Winston appeared with a man. A tall man, rather impressive. Perhaps it was his handsome wavy white hair. He wasn't good looking at all, and he was around 60. Edna was sure.

Then came the introduction and Edna got a jolt. The name was "Wright."

They started to play. Mr. Wright seemed greatly interested in Edna. She wondered if her Aunt Olive had dared tell Mr. Wright about her long before this. Then she decided that this couldn't be the man. Surely her aunt wouldn't expect her to marry an old man like this.

"What's his full name?" Edna whispered to Hetty when the chance came.

George W.—he's richer than mud, owns flocks of houses and——"

Mr. George W. Wright came up then.

Edna played a good game. It was because she was bitterly angry.

Aunt Olive was worse when Edna got home that night, after dinner and bridge at Hetty's, where Mr. Wright had come along. Edna couldn't tell her what was on her mind then. But she did write to her mother and said she had seen this Mr. Wright and so far as she was concerned he was "Mister Wrong"—no wedding bells for her if she never married, that is, if Mr. Wright had to be the man.

Edna drove out into the country, up through the new section where new streets were in the making and handsome suburban residences were being built.

Her Car Mired

She mired her car at a corner of a half-finished street. A young man sitting on a pile of tapestry bricks, scowling at a blue-print, heard the motor of Edna's car "sing" as the rear wheels merely spun around in the soft mire. He looked up, he looked again and then, methodically putting bricks on the blue-print to hold it down, he came to her, lifting his hat.

"In a jiffy, Miss," he said, smiling.

He brought some cement bags and put them down.

"If you'll sit over and let me take the wheel—"

Edna obeyed. He got in, started the car, cut to the left on some sods and had her back on the hard road in no time.

Edna thanked him. They talked a while. She asked him if he worked on those buildings. He admitted that he was the architect. She admired his plans. He told her that he knew she was a stranger because if he had ever seen her in Hillridge he would never forget her.

"It's a nice line, anyway," Edna said and she told him about her aunt.

"Nice old girl—for Pete's sake, Miss Anson, never tell her I said 'old,' we're great friends—I'll drop around to see her tonight and pretend I'm surprised to meet you!"

"Great!" cried Edna, blushing to think she had seemed so willing.

At luncheon Aunt Olive was better. Edna took courage.

"I've seen your Mr. Wright and played golf with him—and I wouldn't marry him if he had all the money in the world. Don't feel badly, I just couldn't," Edna told her.

"Oh, dear," sighed Aunt Olive.

The young architect came that night, nicely dressed for dinner. Edna grinned and pretended that she hadn't met him.

Aunt Olive was flustered.

"Edna says she played golf with you, George," said Aunt Olive.

"Ha—that was Dad—he mentioned he met a Miss Anson," said George W. Wright, Jr., "but he didn't tell me what a wonderful girl she was."

Three hours later Aunt Olive saw Edna and George, Junior, still out on the south porch in the glide hammock, sitting very close together—it seemed as though they had their arms about each other. She sighed happily and called up Edna's mother on long distance.

"My dear," she said, softly, "it's perfect—he was the right Mr. Wright—Edna's in his arms this very moment!"

YES MRS SMITH — AND I WAS WONDERING IF WE COULDN'T GET YOU TO JOIN OUR WOMENS CLUB IT'S COMPOSED OF THE NORTHVILLE SOCIETY PEOPLE
AND I WAS JUST WONDERING IF YOU KNEW THAT YOUR SON IS PAYING A LOT OF ATTENTION TO MINNIE MUNCHER A WAITRESS IN THIS HOTEL, AND A DAUGHTER OF NORTHVILLE'S COMMON SET. OF COURSE YOU KNOW — EVERYBODY IN TOWN KNOWS
I DONT THINK MY LEMMY WOULD PAY SERIOUS ATTENTION TO A WAITRESS — HES GOT EDUCATION AND REFINEMENT, LEMMY HAS
I REALLY WOULDNT HAVE MENTIONED IT BUT IT SEEMED SO OUT OF PLACE FOR A MAN OF HIS EDUCATION AND BREEDING. AND IN A LITTLE PLACE WHERE EVERYBODY KNOWS EVERYBODY ELSE'S BUSINESS — AND PEOPLE CANT KEEP THEIR MOUTHS TO THEMSELVES — YOU CANT BE TOO CAREFUL

A SENTIMENTAL JOURNEY

This saga from the Montpelier, Indiana, Herald has been lovingly clipped and forwarded by Mr. Rex Gay, of Chicago—

Old Man Jinx was with eight ladies of this city, last Thursday, as they were en route to the "Farmers' Week" program. Sixty signed up but buses were not able to make the trip, and the Montpelier people rented a machine with Mr. Philabaum, of Pennville, as driver.

The party left here at 6 o'clock in the morning. The roads were icy, and difficulty was encountered in getting to Marion, where chains were put on, and the trip was resumed, only to be stopped in South Marion, when the chains were found to be too large.

Twenty miles out of Marion, a rear tire blowed out. This tire was changed, and the party resumed. Two miles west of Lafayette, the second blow-out occurred. This time there was no spare so the driver had to walk a mile to telephone. The repair man soon arrived, but said the tires were in such bad condition that they could not be fixed. Mr. Philabaum then accompanied the repair man back to Lafayette to purchase a new tire, coming back later with the word that no new tires could be found that size, so he went out on the hunt of a second hand tire. At 2 p. m. the second hand tire was put on and the party was riding merrily through the university grounds when the third blow-out occurred.

The driver took the car into a garage and the ladies went to get lunch, it then being near 3:30 o'clock. As the ladies were eating lunch, the fire truck went past and one of the party exclaimed that it would be just their "luck" to have their machine catch fire. A few minutes later, Mr. Philabaum came with word that the garage was on fire, and firemen would not let him take the machine out. This about "capped the climax."

Finally the firemen permitted the driver to take his machine from the burning garage. The machine was brought out and no damage done.

Repairs were made and the party started on the return trip at 6:45. All went well until something went wrong in the engine, which was repaired. The return trip was again started, only to have their last second hand tire which they had purchased in Lafayette, go flat. More time was taken to repair this, and the party came on to Marion. At Marion, Mr. Philabaum had to have rest before coming on the last stretch. After an hour the trip was resumed, and the party arrived safely home at 1:30 a. m.

Although the party failed to get to their destination, and to enjoy the entertainment that they had planned, their spirits were not downcast and they reported enjoying the trip.

1930 Budget Is Adopted; Irregularity Charged

The adoption of the 1930 budget by Council was marked by at least two significant features. It lacked the vote, for or against, of Councilman Robert Garland, veteran city legislator and for a long time chairman of Council's most important committee, that of finance. Discussion of it brought out accusation that its preparation was irregular and that "log rolling" in the matter of salary adjustments benefited the politically favored to the detriment of others who deserve fair treatment.

Councilmen Garland and Anderson both criticized the budget and the procedure of adopting it, although Mr. Anderson said he would vote for it. Mr. Garland's charge as to irregularity was that it "was prepared, not in regular budget committee meetings, as the law provides, but in special sessions in the mayor's office and elsewhere."

Mr. Garland also criticized salary raises, not because he was opposed to them, but because, he said, no opportunity was given him to judge the merit of the increases, as no information in that regard had been given to him. He did, however, assail salary increases for the North Side Carnegie Library, because they applied to one particular library and were a "sop" to Councilman Clifford B. Connelley, former head of that institution.

The public, of course, will be glad to learn that deserving servants receive merited salary increases, but it will not be complacent about favoritism.

And it will not absolve the mayor and his councilmen of heavy responsibility for most unbusinesslike methods in preparing the budget, which carries a total of $27,664,000, meaning an increase in taxation decided upon in face of protests of citizens and without regard to what could be done in the way of deleting waste in the management of the city.

Beginning of Skycraper Means Two Years Work

The Gulf Refining Company has sufficient confidence in the future to begin work on what will be Pittsburgh's tallest skyscraper. Ground is being dug from the lot opposite the Koppers Building in preparation for beginning the foundation of what will be a 40-story structure. Two years is the period estimated to be required for its completion.

That means more than a notable addition to Pittsburgh's rising temples of business. It means that for two years men will be employed on one project. An army of men. Men on the "job" and men in mills, shops and quarries, fashioning the materials that will go into the building.

Coming events cast their shadows before. The man who knew he had outgrown the old tavern and built a hotel that was "too big for the town" cast the shadow of our present skyscraper hostelries. What will be the shadow of such a mammoth pile as a 40-story structure may be foreseen by comparing the present downtown Pittsburgh with what it was 20 years ago.

Swinging the Propeller

This Picture will Amuse Fliers of the Future.

TEACHING OXFORD STUDENTS TO START A PLANE

At Oxford University, young English undergraduates have formed an air squadron, the government, anxious for many capable pilots, supplies machines and instructors.

Here, some young Englishmen, directed by a professional flier, are learning to start the propeller of an airplane.

Starting a plane is DANGEROUS. Once in motion, the propeller whirls with frightful speed, and if you make a false step after starting it, as many have learned to their cost, it is apt to strike and kill you.

Here there are three boys holding hands, one of them holding the hand of the man about to start the powerful airplane engine.

They all pull together toward the left, and even should the man starting the propeller stumble or make any other mistake, the two men holding him will pull him out of danger in spite of himself.

This interesting form of co-operation for safety will seem amusing to fliers of the future.

Electric starters, taking the place of hand starting, today's methods and today's airplanes will be as much out of date as the funny little four-wheeled "gas buggy" that Henry Ford was driving less than 30 years ago, with a "dashboard" such as old horse buggies had, to keep the horse from kicking mud into the driver's face and other remnants of long ago.

All our colleges and universities ought to have air squadrons, encouraged and financed by the government.

Some day this country may find itself obliged to make up for lost time by building thousands of planes in a great hurry.

Then it will want men that know how to fly them, especially young men willing to run risks.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

The Host Pays the Bill

HOSPITALITY has now reached that acute stage in investigation where it's every man for himself.

"Bugs" Baer

Ever since Senator Dobbsworse told the twisted world that he had looked upon the wine when it was amended all guests are staggering into the publicity arena with fermented facts.

We considered it very morose when a famous dryster told Congress all about prohibited humidity at a dinner in Wall street. He was a guest at that dinner and was the most popular man under the table.

The first law of nature is not the Eighteenth Amendment. Congress was infuriated about this bedewed repast because the evidence arrived too late for them to receive invitations.

It is ungentlemanly to kiss and tell. It is even more boorish to drink and then turn on the phonograph. But the states are full of partisan Casanovas who partake of the forbidden extracts and then smack the host over the skull with a legal bottle.

We concede that some drys go to banquets merely to collect harrowing details for use in court. But most of these drys swiggle clues as if they considered themselves a 12-man jury and were representing the other 11 proxies.

What happens in executive session? The judge asks the pigeon to produce the evidence sampled by the genial malefactors. The snooper of honor says he has swallowed it.

Not being able to sentence the witness to an autopsy the judge is compelled to throw the case far enough out of court to preclude all chance of its bouncing back.

Now the wets are also squealing on their hosts. The seating arrangements at banquets now include seats for the guests and stools for the pigeons.

The good Samaritan who annoints the bedraggled wayfarer with contraband oil is tugged into court and discovers that the head witness against him is the same dusty hobo.

Which validates the authentic Persian proverb that a guest and a fish both smell after three days.

Until this epidemic of state's evidence frizzles away we advise all hosts to cancel their banquets and to eat in one-arm lunches.

Whether he be moist or arid, the guest who squeals on his host is like unto the swollen sponge that accuses the ocean.

Even though many dinners may be drenched by cooling showers of unseasonal alcohol we have never seen either a wet or a dry guest carrying an umbrella.

THE OLD ARMY GAME

By Herbert Kaufman

DURING 1929—so week-end cables report—(the SAME year which first witnessed telephone communication with ships at sea—which saw pictures flashed from Schenectady to Melbourne, and beheld Admiral Byrd's flight to the South Pole)—fourteen thousand persons made pilgrimage to the little town of Gallsbach.

Saint Louis never led a motlier crew. They arrived barefooted, on crutches, and in crested limousines—sore with every affliction from cancer to cataract—commonly assured that the "miracle reed" of Valentine Zeileis would end their ills.

A civilization served to radio, insulin, atom-splitters and anti-toxins, must blink in amazement at such wholesale acceptance of shamanism.

One might dismiss the situation with a cynical SHRUG, if substantial authority did not credit so many INTELLIGENTS with belief in a manifest charlatan's powers.

MAGNATES, lawyers, merchants and aristocrats, as well as a heterogeneous rabble from every district in Central Europe, increasingly insist that personal experience confirms this voodoo doctor's audacious pretensions.

Halt and blind zealously proclaim that Zeileis has made them whole again. Women come to him swollen with tumor, goitre and dropsy, return home to abandon legitimate ministration and confide their maladies to hysterical faith.

Zeileis, who claims to be two hundred years old, and attributes his potency to secret Oriental lore (that trite refuge of fraud and imposture), has created a panic in foreign medical circles and invoked the concerted wrath of Germany's and Austria's foremost practitioners.

They vainly beseech the Vienna government to intervene and halt his dangerous activities, prophesying indefinite consequences if official action is long postponed.

Multitudes of seriously ill persons, desperately clutching at rumor, will otherwise reject competent scientific method, and imperil chances of ultimate recovery by experimenting with this new Balsamo's chicaneries.

HUMAN nature obviously hasn't changed as much as we thought.

We aren't rid of witchcraft and mumbo-jumbo by a long sight.

Let him who is without a surviving trace of aboriginal instinct cast the first stone at one hundred and twenty fellow Americans ALREADY listed among Zeileis' votaries.

Fifty per cent of your neighbors would STILL be gawping over crystal balls, hanging breathlessly above fortune-teller's cards, buying "gypsy spells," or seeking guidance from planet-readers as to marriage, speculation, propitious dates for journeys and business deals, if legislation hadn't declared a permanent CLOSED SEASON on SUCKERS.

Wall Street is a NOTORIOUS gull's nest—a dozen of its field marshals nightly look to the STARS for market advice.

THE hardest heads have some of the softest spots.

John Jacob Astor's favorite remedy for stomach ache was to be tossed in a blanket, and Ur of the Chaldees never held a more willing victim of quackery than Commodore Vanderbilt.

Old Cornelius, according to biographer Minnegerode, was prey to "practically every intestinal disorder, heart, kidney, liver and abdominal, borne with a magnificent fortitude, reinforced by belief in mesmerism, in clairvoyance, and in charms.

"He was convinced that certain individuals could see the interior of the human system by means of miniatures and locks of hair."

He not only patronized magnetic healers and slept above a salt cellar, but once actually engaged a medium "to summon forth the corpulent ghost of Jim Fiske to a conference on railroad stocks."

Incidentally, what's YOUR abracadabra for removing warts, and how do you stand on Friday the thirteenth, and "knocking wood"?

∴ LISTEN, WORLD! ∴

By Elsie Robinson

A YOUNG mother writes—"We're having a dispute in our family and I wish you would give your opinion. My husband's people, who are college graduates, feel that I should have more interests outside my home. They are advising me to attend certain lectures and take a correspondence course. I realize how fine this would be and I wish I could do it, but I feel that I haven't any right to indulge in such personal ambitions when my babies are so little, just 2 and 5. I may be wrong, but I feel that a good mother's interests should center in her babies, home and husband. I find that if I swing the home, keep everything pleasant for Harry, do a little entertaining and, above all, keep in sympathy with my children's and Harry's interests, I have a full-sized job without trying to develop my own individuality."

That's a fine statement. You want to cheer such devotion . . . so do I. And yet, unless she changes that attitude, she is headed straight for tragedy! For, beautiful as her ideal is, it isn't sufficient for successful motherhood and wifehood in the year 1930.

Time was when a married woman fulfilled her every duty if she was a competent cook, nurse, seamstress, housekeeper and loving, self-sacrificing attendant. But much more than that is necessary now, for our whole scheme of life has changed.

Life is no longer a standardized performance to be repeated generation after generation. Homes are no longer hideaways. Life has become a challenging, ever-changing adventure. It is not enough for a woman to keep her husband and children happy and healthy in the home. She must keep them hustling outside the home. She must stir them up and stimulate them, excite and inspire them . . . be a magnet and a challenge herself.

But she will need much more than love and domestic science to qualify her for that task.

The greatest and most necessary gift which a modern woman can give to her family is the gift of herself—the quickening of her own vital spirit. But she must have a self before she can give it. And she can't acquire that self by having "no interest outside the home." Her heart may center in the home, but her mind must range or those she loves will soon outgrow her ministrations.

The married woman of 1930 must be a real person as well as a wife and a mother. She must have ideas and interests and adventures quite apart from her family's—else she is little better than an affectionate incubator. And is soon regarded as such!

Wretched women often write to this department complaining that their families have drifted away from them after years of devoted drudgery. They can't understand such "ingratitude" and their confusion is pathetic.

"I just lived for them . . . I never gave a thought to myself!" they cry, not knowing—poor souls—that therein lies the reason for their tragedy.

If you don't give a thought to yourself the rest of the world will soon cease to give a thought to you. For, in spite of all the love you may lavish and all the chores you may do, you won't be worth giving a thought to.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

THE result of this simple sexual process is a microscopic plasmodium, a miniature of the protoplasmic sheet with which we began our description.

This tiny film creeps about, feeding on bacteria and the like and slowly growing, but it does not develop directly into the fully-grown plasmodium—at least, not by its own unaided efforts. It takes more than one to make an adult.

H. G. Wells

Whenever the tiny creature meets another such sheet belonging to the same species, it mixes eagerly with the new acquaintance, the two forming a single living mass. And so on.

So that the final large plasmodium is in reality a union of hundreds of dancing swarm-spores that have completely merged their individuality into one shapeless gelatinous sheet.

7. BACTERIA

The smallest and most humbly organized creatures that we have hitherto considered are the single celled animals and plants—amoeba, the flagellates, the lower algae, and the yeasts. But there are smaller and simpler organisms even than these.

The bodies of most bacteria are incredibly small—small even in comparison with the single-celled creatures with which we have already dealt. The common bacillus that is found in infusions of dead organic matter the world over is a short rod about one-thousandth of a millimeter (one twenty-five thousandth of an inch) across and five or eight times as long.

That may be called an average bacterium. Some kinds of bacteria are longer than this and some are very much smaller, but most are of about this size.

Imagine such a bacillus enlarged to the size of a cigar, half an inch across by four inches long; a man magnified to the same extent would be fifteen miles in height.

There is little room for specialized structures in such a tiny interior, and indeed its organization is far simpler than that of any of the cells that we have hitherto examined. It has none of the various writhing bodies in a tissue-culture cell. There is not even a nucleus.

The chemical substances that characterize the nucleus in animals and plants are diffused through the whole bacterial body mixed in with the rest of its substance, instead of being confined within a special vesicle.

A bacterium is little more than a microscopic blob of protoplasm having a definite shape. Moreover the life history of our bacillus is as simple as its anatomy the things it can do are very limited.

It can grow and proliferate (by simply breaking into two halves with incredible rapidity.

The average length of life of a bacterium that finds itself in favorable surroundings, the time between successive divisions, is 20 minutes, so that in rapidity of multiplication they leave even the protozoa behind.

And it can weather difficult periods, when conditions are unfavorable for its growth, by turning into a resistant, tough-walled spore. There is an important difference, we may note, between the spores of bacteria and those of other creatures.

The spores of amoeba, for example, are reproductive devices each amaeba produces a great number of spores at a time.

In bacteria then the life history (or, better, race-history, because it is difficult to interpret the things that bacteria do in terms of our own personal experience) consists in an alteration of two phases—the active phase proliferating with astonishing rapidity and the passive, resting spore with equally astonishing powers of resisting adverse conditions.

It will be worth our while to look more closely into this toughness of bacterial spores. Active bacteria are killed at once by the heat of boiling water, but bacterial spores may survive boiling for several hours.

Indeed, in order completely to sterilize surgical instruments or fluids for use in bacteriological work it is necessary to expose them to moist steam at about double atmospheric pressure and a temperature of 120 degree centigrade in an instrument known as an autoclave—and even under these scalding conditions, some spores survive for a quarter of an hour.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 1.—Big department stores and specialty shops are capitalizing telephone courtesy. Mumbling, stereotyped greetings are entirely passe. Customers had grown tired of hearing "Jess a minute" and then dangling on the other end of the phone.

Today when a patron telephones there is a cheery answer of "R. H. Macey Co.—Good morning!" or "Cartier's—Good afternoon" as the case may be. The voice is pleasant and vibrant with interest, and as a result in a few months' time there was a marked increase in orders.

Mercantile establishments discovered telephone orders were falling off and traced it to the indifference of receiving operators. Patrons were turning to neighborhood shops, preferring to walk a few blocks for purchases to unsatisfactory results over phone.

One of the big stores on the avenue brought about a revolution. It engaged a staff of 16 carefully selected girls and put them through six weeks of intensive training. The chief idea of the credo was that no purchase was too small to receive attention.

A rule read: "When answering a call try to inject into the voice a quality of warm friendliness. Remember that many are giving a first call and if you succeed in making it easy for them you have won permanent customers in nine chances out of ten."

Traffic congestion has given an added impetus to telephone sales and proprietors, recognizing this, are paying higher wages to such employes. In some instances a percentage system has been installed. And the whole experiment has been a pleasing revelation in the value of good manners.

I sat next table to a fat and red-haired woman of middle age at dinner last evening. She was being coy and flirtatious with an oily-haired gigolo escort of about 22. And while it was none of my business whatever, my bridgework feels loose today from grinding my teeth. Just an old Victorian prude.

Definition of a gigolo: "The relief man for a bored husband." And on Broadway one is no longer "high hat." He is "grand opera."

A gentleman whose business success depends largely on ingratiating himself with a group of professional men finds himself in a dilemma. And just because of an unusual streak of luck at poker. He staged a Saturday night soiree at his home, inviting the gentlemen he wished to impress with his particular brand of hospitality.

The game started off evenly enough, but soon the host started winning. Throughout the evening he recklessly raised on small pairs but could not lose. His guests losing heavily, grew calm and a little white-faced. Came the big pot of the evening.

The host held a ten and ace and discarded three kings. He was making a draw to what he considered an impossible chance of filling a straight flush, but he filled it. In desperation he tried to dispose of one card in the discard to draw another, but was caught. And branded a cheat!

And a tale comes from a Long Island studio of another streak of luck. A stock actor had gone there in hope of getting a $7.50 a day extra job. He was told by a friend to accept nothing less. It so happened he was the type badly needed for a small part. The casting director asked him what salary he expected. He replied: "Seven fifty!" The director said: "I'll pay six!" But the actor held out for "seven fifty" and got the part which lasted a week. Imagine his surprise when he received a check for $750!

Every time I decide to quit smoking somebody gives me a cigaret case, and bang goes another resolution. The latest is a lulu. Roy Howard brought all the way from Japan, and right when I was down to a half cigaret daily. And ever since I have been imitating the left funnel on the Mauretania.

Writes H. B., New Rochelle: "That tip you were craning your neck to see and which I left at the table adjoining yours Friday night was 45 cents. And where did you get that poisonous pink shirt?"

It is getting tougher every day for us peepers. Sometimes I think I'll give it up altogether.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

IS THERE some influence pulling you away or tempting you to violate principles which you have held until recently as your guiding lights?

Are you having a fight to maintain your position against this force?

Do you realize that the urge to abandon your high ideals is becoming more insistent?

Are you not surprised sometimes that you do give so much thought to evil and trouble-breeding thoughts?

Why are you not making a definite and earnest effort to get rid of them?

Because, if carried out, they would please you, you harbor them. You think you might satisfy your pride if you carried out certain evil designs. You might achieve a balm for your ego and so you are willing to engage in something that might bring you disgrace.

Most of these things that are beckoning you are bound to be crowned with dishonor if you are found out.

And yet you play with fire like that.

If your moral sense won't help you, use your brains and play safe.
